FOREWORD

FOR many years, too many indeed for comfort, it has been a fond desire of the Directors of the Adyar Library, that for the convenience of students and visitors a printed catalogue might be at hand of the books in the Western Section, that is to say of all the books, original or translated, in one or other of the Western languages. For its Eastern Section, containing books and manuscripts in the original Oriental languages, untranslated, several catalogues of manuscripts exist already, and a descriptive catalogue is going through the Press.

But of the Western Section nothing of the kind. Circumstances were not favourable. Changes in the management, in the personnel, in the housing, and the equipment, constantly interfered. That now, at last, a beginning is definitely made, and within passable time may also be completed, is primarily due to our present Director's strong sense of the need and the importance of such a catalogue, which made him spare the means, financial and personnel, for this work. Had it not been so, we might still be in the land of dreams and wishes, instead of action and realization.

It must be well understood however that the present catalogue is a first effort, not a finished product; not as we wish it should finally be, but as that which we could accomplish in the shortest time. Our principal consideration was to have as soon as possible a catalogue in the hands of the students and visitors to the Library, for their convenience not less than for the Library's sake. For it will undoubtedly make the search for books easier, and so increase the borrowing of them. And is not the existence of a Library ultimately justified by the "using" of its books, and not by their "keeping" only? To such an increased usage, then, is this labour dedicated. And from this its usefulness may all who have helped in its compilation derive so much greater satisfaction as their labours have of necessity been somewhat dull and uninspiring.

A few words more to explain some of its features. The complete catalogue will consist of nine sections: I. Theosophy, II. Religion and Mythology, III. Philosophy, IV. History, V. Literature, VI. Arts, VII. Science, VIII. Miscellaneous, IX. Books in other languages than English. In this arrangement the compilers have but followed the general system of cataloguing and shelving adopted in the Adyar Library for so many years. A total rearrangement, though thought advisable, would again have indefinitely prolonged our labours. Besides, the existing division in sections had the advantage of enabling us to complete our work in parts, and thus at least make a start and accomplish something, sooner than otherwise would have been possible.

Within the above mentioned sections and their subsections, the books have been arranged alphabetically according to authors and titles. An alphabetical list of authors in all the sections together will be added at the end of the catalogue.

An Index of the books, arranged according to subjects, will only be attempted after the completion of this catalogue as the basis from which to start upon that more ambitious work.

Of the four columns following each book-title, the first two only concern the student, the other two the administration of the Library. The advantages of knowing the year of publication so as to be able to judge about its comparative modernity, and the number of pages so that one may immediately know whether one has to do with a pamphlet or a book, are obvious, both for the reader, and the administration. For it will, as we hope, prevent many a needless and fruitless asking for a book or pamphlet which one does not really want, either for its ancientness or for its smallness, or for the opposite reasons.

11-9-1941

ARYA ASANGA,
Jt. Director,
Curator of the Western Section.

Imprimatur: DR. G. SRINIVASA MURTI,
Director of the Adyar Library.
