It is 15¼ m. N. b. E. from Cambridge, and 66¼ m. N. b. E. from London. The Market is on Saturday. The Fairs are on Ascension-Day, and 29th October. The Quarter Sessions for the Isle of Ely are holden at Ely, and Wisbich, alternately: viz., at Ely, in April and October; at Wisbich, in January and July. At those two Places are also holden adjourned Quarter Sessions monthly, and Petty Sessions or Meetings, when necessary. The Isle of Ely is a Jurisdiction within, but entirely distinct from, the County of Cambridge. It is subordinate to the Bishop in its Civil Government. Here is a Free Grammar School.—“The Tradition about King Ethelbert's founding, at the Instance of St. Augustine, a Church or Monastery here, or at a Place about a Mile from hence called Cradindene, seeming not to be well grounded; Etheldreda, one of the Daughters of King Anna, and Wife first to Tombert Prince of this Country, and afterward to Egfrid King of Northumberland, may more justly be accounted the first Begunner of a very famous Religious Society here, about A. D. 673. This first Church was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary, and in it the Service of God was performed both by Monks and Nuns, who lived together under the Government of an Abbess, according to the Usage in these early Times, at Coludesbergh (where the Royal Foundress and first Abbess made her Profession of a Monastic Life,) and other Saxon Monasteries; and in this State probably it continued near two hundred Years, till this Country was over-run, and all the Houses of Religion destroyed by the Heathen Danes about A. D. 870. Some few Years after, a small Number of the Religious Men, that had escaped the Massacre, returned hither, and repairing some Part of the Church and Buildings, lived here as Secular Priests under the Government of Provosts or Arch-priests for about one hundred Years. But, in the Year 970, Ethelwold Bishop of Winchester introduced an Abbat and Regulars, nobly re-edified the Monastery, and amply endowed the same, partly by his own Purchases, and partly by the Munificence of King Edgar, and other Benefactors. A. D. 1108, the See of a new Bishoprick, taken out of the Diocese of Lincoln, was established here, which occasioned

"a Division of the Lands of this rich Abbey between the Bishop, (who was to be in place of the Abbat,) and the Prior and Monks; the share of the Bishop was valued, 26th Hen. VIII., at £2134..18..6 ob., and what remained to the Convent was reckoned at £1084..6..9 ob. per ann. Dugd.; £1301..8..2 Speed. This Monastery was dedicated to St. Peter and St. Etheldreda, commonly called St. Audrey, and in it were a Prior and between thirty and forty Monks of the Order of St. Benedict. Upon their Surrender, King Hen. VIII. placed here, A. D. 1541, a Dean and eight Secular Canons or Prebendaries, with Vicars, Lay Clerks, Choristers, a Schoolmaster and Usher, and twenty-four King's Scholars, &c., and endowed them with the Site and greatest Part of the Lands belonging to the Priory.—An ancient Hospital here, founded probably by some of the Bishops, and partly maintained out of the Revenues of the Bishoprick, occurs, 16th Hen. II., in the Account of the Vacancy upon the Death of Bishop Nigell. But it is not evident whether the Hospital of Ely, there mentioned, was that of St. John Baptist, or that of St. Mary Magdalen, two Hospitals, both in Ely, which were united by Bishop Hugh Norwold, about A. D. 1240, and managed by some of the Monks of the Priory till the Year 1458, when Bishop William Gray made one of his Secular Chaplains Master or Warden. It was valued, 26th Hen. VIII., at £25..5..3 ob. q. per ann.; and, 4th Elizabeth, settled on the Master and Fellows of Clare Hall in Cambridge."—Tanner's Not. Mon.

It is 168 m. W. S. W. from London. The Markets are on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday. The Fairs are on Ash-Wednesday, Whit-Monday, 1st August, and 6th December. This City sends two Members to Parliament; the Sheriff is the Returning Officer. The Corporation consists of a Mayor, 24 Aldermen, a Recorder, Chamberlain, Town-Clerk, Sheriff, 4 Stewards, and other Officers. All Pleas and Civil Causes are tried by the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council. But Criminal Causes, and Breaches of the Peace, are determined by eight Aldermen, who are Justices of the Peace. The Assizes for the County of Devon are always holden here.—"This City is said by the Saxons to have been called Monketon, from the great Number of Monks in it; yet the Account of the old Religious Houses here is but “imperfect, by Reason of the Silence of our Historians. There is no question but in a City so famous as this was in the Roman, British, and Saxon Times, here were, early after their Conversion to Christianity, Congregations and Societies of Holy Men and Women: yet it is not certain whether this was the famous Monastery of Adestancester, wherein St. Boniface the Apostle of the Germans, who was born at Crediton in this County, had his Education under Abbat Wolfhard, about A. D. 690. The industrious Mr. Joseph Hooker alias Vowell, the first Restorer of the Antiquities of this City (whereof he was Chamberlain,) saith, ‘That in ancient Times, within the Precincts of the Close, were three Religious Houses; the first was a Nunnery, which is now the Dean’s House, (or as Mr. Risdon will have it, the Kalendar Hay,); the other was a House of Monks, reported to have been built by King Ethelred, A. D. 868; the third was a Monastery founded by King Æthelstan, A. D. 932.’ For this last there is a pretty good Authority, and that it was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin and St. Peter, and endowed by the Munificence of that King with twenty-six Villages, and filled with Benedictine Monks, who not long after forsook the same for fear of the Danes: But King Edgar, that great Restorer of Monasteries, A. D. 968, replaced the Religious here, who were again forced to fly upon the Devastation of this City and Country by the Danes under Swein, A. D. 1003. After this, King Canute encouraged the Monks once more to settle here, confirming their Lands and Privileges, A. D. 1019. But upon the Union of the Episcopal Sees of St. Germans and Crediton, and their Translation hither, A. D. 1050, the eight Monks remaining here were sent to Westminster Abbey, and some Secular Canons placed in their stead by Bishop Leofric. However the Chapter of this Cathedral was not fixed to a Dean and twenty-four Prebendaries till Bishop Brewer’s Time, A. D. 1225. The Revenues of this Bishoprick were valued, 26^o Hen. VIII., at £1566..14..6 per ann. But so much was shortly after taken from it, that they have long been rated at £500..0..0 only. Besides the separate Corps, the common Revenues of the Dean and Chapter are rated at £1132..18..11 ob. per ann. There are now belonging to this ancient Cathedral a Bishop, Dean, and twenty-four Prebendaries, whereof nine are Residentiaries, viz., the Dean, Precentor, Chancellor, Treasurer, and five others; four Archdeacons, four Priests Vicars, eight Lay Vicars, whereof one is Organist, five Secondaries, ten Choristers, besides Vergers, Sextons, and other Officers.—Gilbert and John Long, Merchants of Exeter, were accounted Founders of the Priory, or rather Hospital, of St. John Baptist, within the East Gate of this City about A. D. 1239. It was of the Order of St. Austin; consisted of five Priests, nine Choristers, and twelve Poor, and was valued, 26^o Hen. VIII., at £102..12..9 per ann. The Site, with the Ankeresse House in the Church yard, was granted, 32^o Hen. VIII., to Thomas Carew, but it was afterward restored, endowed with several new Benefactions, and continues still an Hospital under the Management of the Chamber of this City.—Here were also a Benedictine Nunnery dedicated to St. Katharine, and a Benedictine Priory dedicated to St. Nicholas: a College or Free Chapel, dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary; an Almshouse, converted into a College for the Vicars Choral of the Cathedral; an Almshouse, called the Cell of St. Alexis, afterward St. Burien’s; Bonville’s Hospital; an Hospital, called God’s House; a Lazar House, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene; Moore’s, Palmer’s, Stevyn’s, and The Ten Cells, Almshouses; and Houses of the Black, and Grey Friars.”—*Tanner’s Not. This Situation might have been chosen merely for the Whim of constantly eating, drinking, and sleeping, in three different Parishes, and with no Idea of evading Church-offerings, Parish-offices, and Assessments, or the Authority of Peace-officers to execute limited Warrants and ascertain Parish-settlements. It occasioned, however, a Dispute, in 1765, between the Parishes of Farway and South Leigh, concerning the Settlement of a Man, who, by having lived a Servant in this House, was become chargeable as a Pauper, on one or both of them. As the Part of the House, which stands in Colyton, consisted only of a Dairy and some Offices; and as the Man could not be supposed to have dwelt any where but where his Table and Bed were placed, the Dispute lay only between Farway and South Leigh, in one of which Parishes his Settlement must have been acquired. At length it was agreed, that the Charge of his Maintenance should be borne by that Parish in which he usually rested his Head when in Bed. For it seems the Bed stood in both Parishes, though the Pillow was not so extensive. Two Persons, therefore, being shewn the Line in the Floor of the Kitchen, which was known to divide the two Parishes, constructed a true perpendicular Line from thence to that Part of the Garret where the Man slept; and by that Means determined, that his Head and Part of his Body must have lain in Farway, and his lower Parts in South Leigh; in Consequence of which Decision, the former took the Charge of him.”—Polwhele's Devon, vol. 2, p. 307.

E X H
