PREFACE.

The Government of India Act, 1915, came just too late for inclusion in the original volume ; hence it is published as a small supplementary volume. This statute brings up to date the record of constitutional landmarks along which the Indian Constitution has developed since the acquisition by the East India Company of the Dewani of Bengal in 1765.

Indian Constitutional Documents

(1773-1915).

COMPILED AND EDITED WITH AN INTRODUCTION

BY

PROF. PANCHANANDAS MUKHERJI, M.A. F.R.E.S.

Demy. 8vo. pp. 473 and Introduction pp. lxxvii. Rs. 6/-

Some Select Opinions.

SIR GOOROO DASS BANERJEE, K.T., M.A., D.L.—It contains in one handy volume all the important documents relating to the Indian Constitution, together with an admirable Introduction tracing concisely but clearly the different stages in the gradual development of that constitution. The book will be a valuable guide to students of the Indian constitution, and will prove interesting reading for the general scholar as well.

STATESMAN, CALCUTTA :—Professor Mukherji has added to his excellent 'Indian Citizen' series a volume for which he himself is responsible entitled 'Indian Constitutional Documents, 1773-1915.' It is designed on the model of the famous volumes of documents for different periods of English history compiled by Stubbs, Prothero, Gardiner, and Adams and Stephens. To say that it is invaluable is not to overstate the case.

CAPITAL, CALCUTTA :—It is a compilation entitled "Indian Constitutional Documents, 1773-1915" which begin with the East India Company Act, 1773, and end with the Government of India Resolution on Local Self-Government, 1915. This statement is sufficient to show its comprehensiveness. * * * Its value to the student of the constitutional history of British India is commensurate with its price. The editor enhances the value of the book by a lucid introduction which traces for the general student the development of the polity of India and its governance under British rule. This is very well done, and the result to the intelligent reader is satisfying. Another attraction of the compilation are the speeches of great statesmen explaining and justifying the various Acts. Of the book before us, we may say that it is indispensable to anybody who would thoroughly understand the debates in the Imperial Council.

CALCUTTA WEEKLY NOTES :—Not many Indians, even amongst those who have a claim to be considered cultured, are aware of their precise position in the British Constitution, for it is an undoubted fact that such a position has, subject to limitations, been assured to them not merely by proclamations issued by the sovereign but by Acts of Parliament. The present is one of the few books which point unmistakably to the growing interest educated Indians are taking in the study of this subject—a study which lies at the foundation of all sound political education.

Turning now from the subject to the compilation, one cannot speak too highly of the manner in which the editor has carried out his scheme. * * * To make the tale complete, a well written Introduction takes the reader back to the origin of this Constitution in the East India Company's Charter of 1600, from which point the author tells briefly in his own words the story of the development of the Indian Constitution to date. In it he deals also in a similar way with the story of the development of the system of Provincial Financial Settlements and of Local Self-Government under British Rule. Even if it were not the only book on the subject, it would be difficult to think of a better one to recommend to those who are desirous of studying the Indian Constitution historically.

BENGALÉE, CALCUTTA :—A notable addition to the Indian Citizen series has been made by the publication of a volume of "Indian Constitutional Documents, 1773-1915." Based on the models of the well-known collection of similar English documents by Stubbs, Gardiner and Prothero, the volume before us is comprehensive enough in its scope to include all charters and statutes that have the slightest bearing on the Indian Constitution. The book possesses two striking features which will greatly enhance its utility. One is the valuable introduction by the editor wherein is given a short summary of the development of the Indian Constitution from the Elizabethan Charter of 1600 to the present day. The other is furnished by the extracts from the speeches of great statesmen like Pitt, Palmerston, Disraeli Gladstone, Morley and Asquith in support of the various enactments which the book contains. As expository of the principles and ideals underlying these measures those speeches are of great interest, and the Editor has done well to include them in the book. * * * The book is thus quite up-to-date and indispensable to all students of the Indian polity and the Editor has spared no pains to make it useful by including all matters that have any bearing on the subject of the treatise. We shall be glad to see the labours of the Editor rewarded with the success that it eminently deserves.

AMRITA BAZAR PATRIKA, CALCUTTA :—A real and invaluable service has been rendered to the students of the constitutional history of India and to all those who are interested in the political growth of the nation such as publicists, members of Councils, administrative and judicial officers by Prof. Panchanandas Mukherji, by his newest addition to the very useful "Indian Citizen" series, entitled "Indian Constitutional Documents, 1773-1915." * * * Invaluable as these are, brought together in one handy volume,—so long scattered through a large number of statutes and spread over a century and half and thus beyond the reach of all save a toiling and persevering few,—the value of the book has been further enhanced by the insertion of an Introduction which, in the absence of any book on the subject, may well serve as a constitutional history of British India dating from 1600. * * * The thanks of the Indian Community as also of officialdom are undoubtedly due to Prof. P. Mukherji. The book has been published by Messrs. Thacker Spink & Co., and is certainly cheap for Rs. 6.
