2674. Foreclosure absolute against second sub-mortgagee—By first sub-mortgagee—Right of first sub-mortgagee against mortgagor.]—B., the owner of a lease of a house, assigned it to D. for the residue of the term by way of mtge., to secure £3,000 & interest. D. sub-mortgaged the debt, & assigned the house for the residue of the term, less three days, to E., to secure £1,200 & interest. B. died, & in the administration suit against his exors., D. & E. brought in a claim for £3,000. B.'s exors. assigned their equity of redemption to D. D. further sub-mortgaged the debt, & assigned the house for the residue of the term, less three days, to L., to secure £1,000 & interest. D., by registered deed, assigned all his estate to trustees for the benefit of creditors. E. filed a bill against B.'s trustees & L. for foreclosure; B.'s exors. not being parties. D.'s trustees disclaimed by answer, & L. was foreclosed. E., who had been paying the ground rent for some years, at length ceased, & the original lessors entered:—Held: (1) E. was entitled to prove against B.'s estate, which was insufficient, for the whole sum of £3,000; but he was not to receive more than the amount due to him for principal, interest, & costs on the £1,200 mortgage debt; (2) the disclaimer by D.'s trustees extended only to matters in issue in the suit, & did not operate so as to enlarge the estate of pltf.

It is said that he is not in a position to restore the estate if the mtge. claim be satisfied; & that consequently, he has lost his right to enforce payment of the debt. He is not in a position to restore the estate, simply because the freeholder, by title paramount, has evicted him & everybody else. . . . There has been no default on his part; he has not received payment; he has not released the debt; & I think he is entitled to prove for the whole, & receive in respect of it as much as the estate can pay (JAMES, V.-C.).—Re BURRELL, BURRELL v. SMITH (1869), L. R. 7 Eq. 399; 38 L. J. Ch. 382; 17 W. R. 516.

2675. Foreclosure action pending—Order for personal payment—Second action unnecessary.]—Mtgees. commenced in May, 1891, an action claiming payment of the principal & interest, an account of what was due, foreclosure, & a receiver. In June the equitable tenant for life of the mtge. money was appointed in the action to be receiver of the rents of the mtged. property, with directions authorising him to retain the arrears of interest & the current interest out of the rents. The rents were insufficient to pay the current interest. The action had not been tried. In Sept. 1892, pltfs. commenced a second action against the mtgor., indorsing the writ for a definite sum, being the amount of two years' interest from Aug. 1890, less the amounts of rents received, & they applied for immediate judgment under R. S. C., Ord. 14:—Held: (1) as, according to the form of order settled in Farrer v. Lacy, Hartland & Co., No. 2200, ante, a mtgee. in a foreclosure action obtains a personal order for payment of the principal with interest down to the date of the certificate, the money to be recovered in the second action could be recovered in the first, & the second action, therefore, was improperly brought; (2) the case did not come within R. S. C., Ord. 14; for as the receiver was receiving the rents with liberty to retain the interest out of them, there was no liquidated sum for which the writ could be indorsed under R. S. C., Ord. 3, r. 6. The order for payment was, therefore, discharged.—POULETT (EARL) v. HILL (VISCOUNT), [1893] 1 Ch. 277; 62 L. J. Ch. 466; 68 L. T. 476; 41 W. R. 503; 2 R. 288, C. A.

2676. —— —— —— Principal & interest.]—As a mtgee. who brings an action in the Ch. Div. for an account of principal & interest due under the mtge. has a complete remedy by claiming in that action a personal order for payment, a second action brought in the K. B. Div., while the Ch. action is pending, to recover principal & interest, is improper, & should be stayed.—WILLIAMS v. HUNT, [1905] 1 K. B. 512; 74 L. J. K. B. 364; 92 L. T. 192, C. A.

2677. Puisne incumbrancer submitting to foreclosure—Without insisting on right to redeem—Right of action on covenant not lost.]—Where various parties to an action agree an order purporting to be a consent order, the agreement must be treated as embodying terms to which all assent, & by which all are bound.

A puisne incumbrancer who voluntarily submits to a foreclosure order absolute being made upon an originating summons, without insisting upon his right to have a time allowed within which to redeem a prior incumbrancer, does not thereby preclude himself from suing on the covenant for 2678. Contract to buy other property from mortgagor—Debt to be deducted from purchase price.]—It is no ground for restraining a mtgee. from enforcing his security at law, that he has contracted to buy from the mtgor. another estate from the purchase-money for which the mtge. debt is to be deducted.

If an injunction be granted on such a ground as is here stated, is not this the consequence, that the mtgee. of any estate, by agreeing to become the purchaser, abandons his right to sue at law upon the specialty, until an account can be taken between him & the mtgor. as vendor? Afterwards, pltf. paying both sums to B. & advancing an additional sum to deft., by deed between pltf., deft., B., & B.'s trustee, the former securities were assigned to pltf., B. giving pltf. a power of attorney to sue in his name as to the first sum borrowed, & the lands were conveyed to pltf., to hold them to the same trusts, but for his own benefit, as were mentioned in the other deeds with respect to B. None of the deeds contained a covenant to pay. Pltf. sued deft. in debt, payable on demand, for money paid, money lent, interest, & on an account stated:—Held: he was entitled to recover the whole sum, on proof that he had paid it as above: & he was not bound to declare on the deed.—YATES v. ASTON (1843), 4 Q. The mtge. deed contained a covenant by deft. that he would, out of the moneys which should come to his hands as such trustee, from the lands comprised in the mtged. security & the personal estate, if any, of L., pay to pltf. the principal & interest:—Held: as there was an express covenant by deft. to pay in a qualified manner, no contract by parol could be implied for the repayment, & consequently an action for money lent would not lie.—MATHEW v. BLACKMORE (1857), 1 H. & N. 762; 26 L. 2729. To whom given—Discretion of court.]—When an equitable mtgee. applies to the ct. to realise his security, the conduct of the sale is in the discretion of the ct. As a general rule where the security is sufficient the conduct of the sale will be given to the trustee, but where the security is insufficient the conduct of the sale will be given to the mtgee. In either case the costs, charges, & expenses of the trustee, properly incurred, will be a first charge upon the proceeds of sale.—Re JORDAN, Ex p. HARRISON (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 228 ; 53 L. J. Q. to pay off the mtge. debt within three months, & that if it was not so paid they would proceed to sell under their power of sale. On Feb. 17, 1892, the mtgors. commenced a redemption action, & moved under Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 25, that the property should be sold out of ct. & the conduct of the sale given to the mtgors. The first mtgees. opposed this application, but certain second mtgees. of the property consented to it:—Held: there was jurisdiction to allow a sale by the mtgors. out of ct. & they should be given liberty to sell within three months, subject to a reserve price being fixed sufficient to cover the mtge. debt, interest, & costs, & to payment into ct. by the mtgors. of £100 as security for the costs of the mtgees.—BREWER v. SQUARE, [1892] 2 Ch. 111; 61 L. The mtgee. afterwards contracted to sell both the estates, & then filed a bill for the administration of the estate of the mtgor., who was dead, praying for permission to carry out the sale, & for payment of his whole debt out of the mtgor.'s estate:—Held: the equitable mtge. was not foreclosed, & pltf. was entitled to the relief prayed for.

Default having been made in payment of the interest a bill of foreclosure was filed, although the period for payment of the principal had not arrived:—Held: the condition having been broken, the mtgee. was entitled to a decree of foreclosure, notwithstanding he had taken possession of the property, & had realised by sale of a portion of it more than enough to cover the interest due.—EDWARDS v. MARTIN (1856), 25 L. Proviso for redemption on payment of principal at distinct date—No foreclosure before date fixed—Notwithstanding breach of covenant for periodical payment of interest—Proviso apart & distinct from covenant.]—A mtge. of a reversionary share in the proceeds of realty & in personalty in ct. contained a proviso for redemption upon payment, on or before the death of the life tenant, of the principal sum, "with interest for the same in the meantime" at the specified rate. Then followed distinct covenants for payment of principal on the life tenant's death, & of interest in the meantime half-yearly respectively; but the proviso did not refer to these covenants. When the life tenant died some thirteen years' interest was unpaid:—Held: the proviso for redemption was a distinct contract & the covenant for payment of interest ought not to be imported into it; &, therefore, the mtgee.'s right to all the interest unpaid, which was expressly given by the proviso, was unaffected by any stat. limitations or principle of equity.—Re TURNER, TURNER v. SPENCER (1894), 43 W. The mtgor. having paid an instalment of interest twenty-seven days after the specified day, the mtgee. sued for foreclosure:—Held: on the construction of the deed, the proviso for redemption did not import a condition that interest was to be paid half-yearly on the specified days or within twenty-one days thereof, &, consequently, as there was no condition broken, the mtgee.'s estate was not absolute at law, & there could be no foreclosure.—WILLIAMS v. MORGAN, [1906] 1 Ch. 804; 75 L. 2762 i. Default in payment or breach of mortgagor's covenants—Effect of.]—A mtge. deed dated Oct. 16, 1866, provided for payment of the principal in three years, & interest meanwhile at twelve per cent. half yearly, on Apr. 16, & Oct. 16, in every year; & declared that to secure prompt payment of said interest the mtgee. would take at the rate of ten per cent. if the interest was paid on the said Apr. 17, & Oct. 16, respectively:—Held: the first reference to the day being unequivocal must govern; the interest was due on the 16th; & not having been paid then, a bill on the 17th to foreclose was not irregular.—BENNETT v. FOREMAN (1868), 15 Gr. 117.—CAN.

being forfeited by the non-payment of the interest. —GLADWYN v. HITCHMAN (1690), 2 Vern. 135; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 287; 23 E. R. 695.

2763. —— ——.]—Deed of mtge. at 5 per cent. contained a proviso that as often as the interest should be paid half-yearly on the days appointed, or within three months next after each, so much should be deducted as would make the interest 3½ per cent. By a separate agreement, mtgee. covenanted not to call in the money within five years, unless the interest should be in arrear. The first half year's interest not having been tendered till after the three months, but the second half year's interest before:—Held: (1) mtgee. was only entitled to interest at 5 per cent. for the half year which had been tendered after the time; (2) in consequence of the default, he was entitled to call in his money.—STANHOPE v. MANNERS (1763), 2 Eden, 197; 28 E. 2764. —— ——.]—Where an agreement for a mtge. contains a stipulation that the principal money shall not be called in for a certain time, the ct., in settling the form of the deed, will, although the agreement be silent on the subject, insert a proviso that the postponement shall be conditional on punctual payment of interest, &, if the property be leasehold, on observance of the covenants; so that, if the mtgor. should make default in either of these respects, the mtgee.'s remedies by sale or foreclosure will immediately arise.—SEATON v. TWYFORD (1870), L. 2765. —— What constitutes.]—A policy subject to a charge in favour of the insurance co. was mortgaged, the mtgor. covenanting to do & suffer nothing whereby the policy might become voidable or void. Under the terms of the mtgor.'s agreement with the co., the co. took over the policy at its surrender value upon the mtgor.'s default in payment of interest to the co. Upon the mtgee.'s seeking to foreclose on an alleged breach of the mtgor.'s covenant:—Held: the mtgee. was not entitled to foreclose, inasmuch as the mtgor. had done nothing in breach of the covenant.—SAPIO v. HACKNEY (1907), 51 Sol. 2767. —— ——.]—Agreement in writing not to call in a mtge. for two years, the mtgor. fulfilling his covenants. On one occasion within the two years interest was not paid on the day, & the mtgee. shortly afterwards, after giving notice that he was no longer bound by the agreement, demanded & received payment of the interest & incidental costs:—Held: this was a waiver of the default; & injunction granted to restrain an ejectment brought within the two years.—LANGRIDGE v. PAYNE (1862), 2 John. & H. 423; 7 L. Six months' interest became due & was demanded but was not paid; & the mtgee. then demanded payment of principal & interest. Three days afterwards the mtgor. paid the six months' interest, which was received by the mtgee.:—Held: the mtgee. had not thereby, nor by a subsequent unaccepted offer to receive an instalment, waived his right to call in the principal.—KEENE v. BISCOE (1878), 8 Ch. 2769. Effect of giving further charge—Agreement that further charge should not be redeemable until payment of whole amount.]—Pltf. was transferee of a mtge. on defts.' property, the original mtge. deed containing a personal covenant by the mtgee. not to proceed for the recovery of the mtge. money until the expiration of a notice. After the transfer pltf. made a further advance to defts. on the security of a deed further charging the same property, defts. agreeing that it should not be redeemable until the payment of the whole amount due to pltf. On a bill by pltf., who had not given the notice, praying for an account of what was due on his securities, & for payment or foreclosure:—Held: (1) assuming the covenant as to notice to affect the right to foreclose the original mtge., it did not affect pltf.'s rights under the subsequent mtge.; & (2) as defts. had precluded themselves by their agreement from being admitted to redeem the subsequent without also redeeming the prior mtge., pltf. was entitled to the relief which he asked for.—HAYWOOD v. GREGG (1875), 24 W. Immediately afterwards a legatee, whose legacy was charged on the estate & had priority over the mtge., filed his bill to have the legacy raised:—Held: the decree in the other suit was no bar to his proceeding with his suit, for a prior incumbrancer is not bound to go in under a decree obtained by a puisne incumbrancer, but is at liberty to institute a suit of his own.—ARNOLD v. BAINBRIGGE (1860), 2 De G. (j) Bankruptcy of Mortgagor.

2773. Whether mortgagor's rights interfered with — Mortgage fraudulent in character.] — A father purchased a piece of land, & took an agreement that the vendors would convey it to him. He afterwards built a granary, & allowed his sons to occupy the premises for their business. They supplied goods to their father to the amount expended by him in building the granary, & they erected other buildings on the land of greater value. The father, pending these transactions, became surety for his sons to certain bankers for £10,000. The sons afterwards surreptitiously obtained possession of the agreement; & one of them, representing that his father had given the land to them, signed his father's name on the blank leaf of the agreement, & deposited it with pltfs., who were bankers, to secure their cash credit. The sons afterwards became bkpt.; the son depositing the agreement was, upon several indictments, convicted of forgery; & the father was required to pay the £10,000 for which he was surety. Upon a bill, by pltfs., to obtain the benefit of the deposit made with them:—Held: the sons had a lien on the land to the value of the goods supplied to the father & the money expended by them in building; the deposit of the agreement, though made under false representations, was good to the extent of that lien; pltfs. had no notice of the father's interest; the father, as against pltfs., was not entitled to any set-off in respect of his subsequent liability as surety; & a decree was made to foreclose the security in favour of pltfs. as against the sons, with costs, & as against the father, without costs.—UNITY JOINT STOCK MUTUAL BANKING ASSOCN. v. KING (1858), 25 Beav. 72; 27 L. 2777. —— Right to benefit of foreclosure suit instituted.]—(1) A. mortgaged to B., who filed a bill of foreclosure, & B., pending the suit, assigned to C., who mortgaged to D., & became insolvent. D. filed a supplemental bill to have the benefit of the suit for foreclosure:—Held: he was entitled to such relief.

(2) A mtgee. filed a bill of foreclosure, & pending the suit, transfered the mtge. to A., who transfered it to C.:—Held: the extra costs thus occasioned were not to be charged against the mtgor.

(3) Pending a suit, by a first mtgee. to foreclose, pltf. obtained a transfer from the second mtgee.:—Held: the costs occasioned were chargeable against the estate.

(4) A. mortgaged a leasehold property, & afterwards specifically bequeathed it to F. & B., on certain trusts for C., D. & E.:—Held: C., D. & E. were proper parties to a bill to foreclose.

(5) A mtgee. had been in possession. She transfered the whole of her interest, & afterwards became insolvent. Her assignees were made defts. to a bill of foreclosure:—Held: their costs ought not to be charged on the mtged. estate, but on pltf.—COLES v. FORREST, WARD v. FORREST (1847), 10 Beav. 552; 50 E. R. 694.

2778. —— Transfer without notice.]—A., & B., mtgees., transferred their mtge. to pltf., who gave no notice to the mtgors. Subsequently the mtgors., intending to redeem, paid the amount secured by the mtge. to the solrs. of A. & B., without ascertaining that they were authorised to receive it. The solrs. misappropriated the money. A. & B. executed a deed prepared by their solrs., but without perusing the same or knowing its contents, which contained a recital acknowledging the receipt of the money, & which purported to convey the property by the direction of the mtgors. to their nominees. There was no proper receipt indorsed on the deed. Pltf. having filed his bill for foreclosure against the mtgors.:—Held: the transferee of the mtge. was entitled to a decree; the payment to the solrs. had been made by the mtgors. in their own wrong.—WITHINGTON v. TATE (1869), 4 Ch. 2779. —— —— Transferee's right subject to equities.]—In 1886, a mtge. debt for £1,500 was duly transferred & the mtged. property was conveyed, by way of security, to F., pltf., the mtgor., being a party. Several subsequent transfers, to which the pltf. was not a party, were made, & in Feb. 1896, the mtge. debt & the security were vested in one A. In 1892 the pltf. gave H., her solr., the money to pay off the mtge., which he did not do, though he continued to pay interest on the mtge. as it became due to the transferee for the time being. Pltf. made no inquiry in 1892 for the reconveyance nor for the title deeds, but left the whole matter in the hands of her solr. In Oct. 1897, A. transferred the mtge. debt & the property to H., & the next day H. transferred the same to defts., to whom the deeds were handed. The cheque for £1,500 from deft. was paid by H. into his private account, & the cheque to A. was drawn by H. on his firm's account, which was then in funds, at another bank. In Dec. 1899, application was made by deft. to pltf. for arrears of interest, & the fraud was discovered. On an action by pltf. to establish her priority over deft., & for a reconveyance of the mtged. property:—Held: on the transfer to H. the mtge. debt became discharged, & he held the property as trustee for pltf.; deft., having taken the transfer from H. without the privity of the mtgor., could only hold it against the mtgor. subject to the state

2808. —— —— Discretion of court.]—In Feb. 1916, defts. bought shares subject to a charging order obtained by pltf. before the war. On June 27, 1916, pltf., without obtaining leave under the Courts (Emergency Powers) Acts, 1914 to 1916, issued a summons to enforce the charging order against defts. by sale of the shares :—Held : pltf. being in the position of a mtgee. under the charging order was really applying for his proper remedy of " sale in lieu of foreclosure," & as his charging order was before the war, leave was necessary under Courts (Emergency Powers) Act, 1914 (c. 78), s. 1 (1) (b), as amended by Courts (Emergency Powers) Act, 1916 (c. 13), s. 1, (1) (b), although defts. had only acquired the shares after the war.

I regard the view taken by NORTH, J., long ago in the case of D'Auvergne v. Cooper, No. 2835, ante, that sale & not foreclosure was the proper remedy of a person having a charge under above sect., as merely a rule of practice, & not a question of jurisdiction. As a matter of convenience the ct. says that the charge shall be enforced not by foreclosure but by sale. I guard myself from saying there is any real prohibition which could prevent the ct., if it thought fit, from granting either foreclosure or a sale in lieu of foreclosure (COZENS-HARDY, M.R.).—HOSACK v. ROBINS, [1917] 1 Ch. 332; 86 L. Before 1829 L. had demised two estates to P. for long terms of years by way of mtge. On Feb. 11, 1829, P. made to L. a further advance, & L., by a deed to which P. was a party, but not a conveying party, conveyed the fee in those estates & another estate to C., upon trust for P., his heirs, exors., administrators, & assigns, nevertheless upon the further trusts thereinafter declared; which were, to permit L. to continue in possession & receipt of rents till Aug. 11, & if L. should then repay the further advance with interest, & the other mtges. charged on the property & thereinafter specified, to reconvey to L., his heirs or assigns; but in default of payment, then that C., his heirs or assigns, should immediately, or at their or his discretion, enter into possession, & sell the estates, & stand possessed of the proceeds in trust, in the first place, to pay costs, then the sums due to P. with interest, & a sum due on mtge. to another person with interest, & to pay the surplus to L., his exors., administrators or assigns. L. at the same time attorned tenant to P. Default having been made in payment, P. entered into possession in 1832, & thenceforth received the rents & let the property. Sales were subsequently made of parts of the property, the last being in 1848, & C. conveyed to the purchasers, P. being a party, & it was agreed that all terms should be assigned in trust to attend. In 1871 L.'s heir-at-law filed a bill to have the trusts of the deed of 1829 carried into execution:—Held: (1) the deed of 1829 did not create a trust of the estate for the benefit of the mtgor. which he could enforce, so as to bring the case within Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), s. 25, but was a mtge. within sect. 28 of the same statute; (2) although the deed created an express trust in favour of L. of the surplus proceeds of sale after paying incumbrances, no relief could be given to pltf. on this ground, as it was not alleged, nor was there anything to lead to the supposition, that there had ever been any such surplus; therefore that the bill must be dismissed with costs.—LOCKING v. PARKER (1872), 8 Ch. 2826. —— With power of sale.]—An equitable mtge. by deposit of title deeds, with an agreement in writing by the party making the deposit, to execute a formal mtge. of the property to the mtgee. for the balance which might be due to him, constitutes the equitable mtgee. a purchaser for good consideration within 27 Eliz. c. 4, in respect of such balance; & it being a term of the agreement that the mtge. to be executed should contain a power of sale, the ct., on a bill to set aside a prior voluntary conveyance by the mtgor., as fraudulent & void, under 27 Eliz. c. 4, decreed, that, on default of payment, the mtged. property should be sold.

The next question is, as to the form of the remedy to which pltf. is entitled, whether the decree is to give pltf. the benefit of a legal mtge. or to direct a sale. The decisions with regard to the right of an equitable mtgee. are not uniform; but, in this case, the express terms of the contract are, that S. shall convey the premises by way of legal mtge., & that such mtge. shall contain a full & absolute power of sale; & to make the suit available for its objects, it is necessary that there should be a decree for sale. PART XIII. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 2.—D. (f).

2843 i. Grounds for ordering sale—Benefit of infant.]—The ct., where it is considered beneficial to the interests suits, framed for the purpose of administering testator's personal estate only, & the devisee of the real estate was an infant, a suit by mtgees., for the purpose of realising their security by a sale of the mtged. premises, was properly instituted. In a suit for realising a mtge. security, where the devisee or heir of the mtgor. is an infant, the ct. usually directs a reference to the master to inquire whether a sale of the mtged. premises will be for the benefit of the infant; but, where it is clear that such sale will be for the infant's benefit, the ct. will direct a sale in the first instance.—DAVIS v. DOWDING (1838), 2 Keen, 245; 7 L. J. Ch. 169; 48 E. R. 622.

Annotation :—Folld. Cockburn v. Aukett (1855), 3 W. R. 641.

2846. Grounds for ordering foreclosure—Infants doing no more than submitting rights & interests to court.]—The ct. will not make an immediate decree of foreclosure, under 7 Geo. 2, c. 20, where any of defts. do not admit, though they may not absolutely deny pltf.'s title. Qu.: whether the ct. will not make such a decree against an infant, unless he do more than merely submit his rights & interests to the ct.—ROE v. WARDLE (1838), 3 Y. & C. Ex. 70; 2 Jur. 640; 160 E. R. 618.

2847. —— Admission of debt by some co-owners—As against infant co-owners.]—A., seised in fee, mortgaged for a term of years, & afterwards devised the mtged. premises, & died. Mtgee. brought his bill against the devisees, some of whom were infants, for foreclosure:—Held: pltfs. during the infancy of the devisees, were not entitled to a decretal order on motion, under 7 Geo. 2, c. 20, s. 2, or under the general jurisdiction of the ct. to take an account of what was due.

The question was, whether the ct., in absence of all proof, on the admission only, as against infants, should place pltf.'s in a position to foreclose the infants' estate. He thought this should not be done (WIGRAM, V.-C.).—TAYLOR v. COATES (1843), 3 Hare, 263; 67 E. R. 381.

2852. Whether sale will be decreed after foreclosure—By variation of foreclosure decree.]—The ct. refused, on the application of the mtgee., after a decree of foreclosure had been made, to vary the decree by directing a sale under 15 & 16 Vict. (c. 86), s. 48.—GIRDLESTONE v. LAVENDER (1852), 9 Hare, App. LIII.; 20 L. T. O. S. 176; 16 Jur. 1081; 68 E. R. 788.

The first mtgees. & the owner of the equity of redemption asked for foreclosure, the latter anticipating that the property might increase in value, & allow of redemption. The ct. was not satisfied as to the sufficiency or insufficiency of the security; but, considering that the property was in various places, & not likely to sell, except as a speculation, in one lot, declined to exercise its discretion by ordering a sale.—PROVIDENT CLERKS' MUTUAL, ETC. 2891. —— Mortgagor restrained from committing waste.]—After decree in a foreclosure suit, a mtgor. in possession began to commit waste ; he was restrained by injunction, though no injunction was prayed by the bill.—GOODMAN v. KINE (1845), 8 Beav. 379 ; 50 E. R. 149.

2892. Right to disclaim lease.]—Testator devised a leasehold house to M. R. for life, she paying the rent & performing the covenants of the lease ; he also left her the dividends of certain stocks for life. By the lease testator had covenanted to keep the house in repair. M. R. accepted the legacies & mortgaged her interests under the will to deft. society in one mtge. The society obtained an order for foreclosure but did not take possession of the house. M. R. was now a pauper lunatic. The trustees paid the fire insurance premiums on the house & the rent out of the dividends on the stock & handed over the balance to the society. The lessor claimed possession of the house on the ground of breach of covenants to repair it. The society disclaimed all interest in the house & declined to do the repairs although they claimed to be entitled to the dividends on the stocks. On a summons to determine whether they were liable to do the repairs :—Held : on accepting the legacies M. R. became personally liable to perform the covenants of the lease ; the society had done nothing to make themselves liable to do the repairs ; the gifts in the will were independent ; & the society were entitled to retain the dividends on the stocks without being liable under the lease.—Re LOOM, FULFORD v. REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY, LTD., [1910] 2 Ch. 230 ; 79 L. SUB-SECT. 4.—PARTIES TO PROCEEDINGS.

A. In General.

See R. S. C., Ord. 16, r. 8.

2894. All persons interested in equity of redemption—Necessary parties.]—The bill alleged that pltf. A. had sold Blackacre to B., upon an agreement that B. should execute to him a mtge. both of Blackacre & Whiteacre ; that the mtge. was accordingly made, & that B. afterwards mortgaged Blackacre to C. The bill then, after alleging that B. had conveyed Whiteacre to a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of the mtge., prayed a foreclosure of Blackacre :—Held : the purchaser of Whiteacre was a necessary party to the suit.

I must look at it in the same way as if a party had a mtge. upon two estates which became separated in different hands. Pltf. has filed a bill to foreclose on one estate only. It would be very hard if the purchaser of that one estate were compelled to pay the whole mtge. ; the party must

b. Foreclosure against owner of equity of redemption—Personal judgment against mortgagor.]—When a mtge. is in default, & the principal is due only by virtue of an acceleration clause, & the mtgee. has sued & obtained judgment for foreclosure & possession as against the owner of the equity of redemption, & also a judgment & execution, for principal, interest & costs, against the mtgor. upon his covenant, the payment by the owner of the equity of redemption of the interest in arrear & the costs does not operate to supersede the execution of the mtgor.—CLEMMER v. PANTON (1922), 52 O. J. Ch. 254; 59 E. R. 510.

2896. ——— ———.]—In 1829 A. was admitted to a copyhold, & in 1832 he deposited the copy of his admission with B. as a security. In 1837 A.'s heir, after admission, attempted to sell the property without effect. C. acted therein as his attorney, & D. as the clerk of C. On July 20, 1837, A.'s heir mortgaged the property to C., by deposit of his own admission. In this transaction D. acted as the agent & clerk of C., & as the agent of the heir. It appeared that in Nov. 1835, D. had notice of B.'s incumbrance, & that on July 19, 1837, D. knew that the produce of the sale was to be applied in discharge of B.'s demand:—Held: (1) the knowledge which D. possessed in Nov. 1835, could not be imputed to C. in 1837. (2) D.'s knowledge in July, 1837, that the proceeds of the sale were to be applied in discharge of B.'s demand, did not clearly show, that even he, at that time, recollected or knew that which he had known in Nov. 1835; (3) semble: C., who knew that the party from whom he took it had been admitted only as heir & that the ancestor had been admitted under copy of ct. roll, dated in 1829, must be deemed that the ancestor, having the copy of ct. roll, might have created an equitable mtge. by deposit, & consequently C. ought to have required its production before he advanced his money.

It has been objected that pltfs. have unnecessarily made some of defts. parties to the cause; but considering this as a bill of foreclosure, I think that every one of defts. was a necessary party, because each of them had a right to redeem (LANGDALE, M.R.).—TYLEE v. WEBB (1843), as reported in 6 Beav. 552; 49 E. R. 939.

2897. ——— ———.]—A husband & wife assigned leasehold premises, of which the husband was possessed in her right, to a mtgee. for securing money then lent & interest, by a deed containing a proviso for redemption by the husband & wife, or either of them, or the representatives of either. The husband subsequently became insolvent, & the mtgee. filed a claim seeking a foreclosure against the assignee in insolvency, & the insolvent & his wife. The married woman proved that her husband had been without employment, & that she & her child were destitute, & claimed an equity to a settlement out of the mtged. property:—Held: the married woman had no equity to a settlement; but the proviso for redemption being on repayment of the sum advanced by the insolvent & his wife, the power to redeem must be given to the married woman as well as to the insolvent's assignee.

If it had not been for the leaseholds, Mrs. B. [the wife] ought not to have been made a party to the claim; but she, having a right to redeem the leaseholds, is necessarily brought before the ct. on a claim to foreclose (PARKER, V.-C.).—HILL v. EDMONDS (1852), 5 De G. & Sm. 603; 16 Jur. 1133; 64 E. 2963. —— ——.]—Pltf. was the mtgee. of premises, the equity of redemption in which belonged to G., against whom in May, 1857, an adjudication in bkpcy. was made, & assignees of the estate & effects duly appointed. B. in Dec. 1856, & L. in Feb. 1857, entered up judgments duly recovered against G. On a bill filed by pltf. for foreclosure, B., by answer, disclaimed all right & interest in the mtged. premises. L., by answer, after stating that his judgment remained unsatisfied, stated that he did not claim to be entitled to any charge on the mtged. premises, being advised that under Judgments Act, 1837 (c. 110), such judgment was unavailable by reason of the bkpcy. of G., & that he was an unnecessary party to the suit. He did not, however, disclaim all right & interest in the premises:—Held: though by Judgments Act, 1837 (c. 110), judgment creditor is not entitled to proceed in equity to obtain the benefit of his charge until after the expiration of one year from the time of entering up his judgment, yet it seems that there is nothing to prevent him from taking proceedings to make his charge available at the end of one year.

Where a judgment is not entered up one year before the bkpcy. of the person against whom judgment is entered up, it will not operate to give the judgment creditor any preference; & therefore, although L. was deprived of his right to a preference, he was not deprived of his right to a charge, of which he would at the end of one year be entitled to claim the benefit, & consequently he was properly made a party to the suit; but as he had not sufficiently disclaimed by his answer, he was entitled to his costs.—HARRISON v. PENNELL (1858), 32 L. 2964. —— —— In register county.]—Subsequent judgment creditors, whose judgments are registered under Judgments Act, 1839 (c. 11), but not in the county register, are not necessary parties to a suit for the foreclosure of lands in a register county.—JOHNSON v. HOLDSWORTH (1850), 1 Sim. 2965. —— Actual execution not necessary.]—S., a registered judgment creditor, who had issued execution & registered, but never executed the same, was held to be a proper party to a foreclosure suit instituted more than three months after registration of execution, & having appeared after having disclaimed, & received notice not to appear, was disallowed his costs of appearance.

The Act [Law of Property Amendment Act, 1860 (c. 38)] is for the benefit of bonâ fide purchasers & mtgees. & although a judgment cannot affect any land as to them unless execution shall have been put in force within three calendar months from the time when it was registered yet, the judgment creditor is not deprived of all interest in the land. Deft. is therefore a proper party in the first instance. He has received notice not to appear. He therefore cannot have his costs (STUART, V.-C.).—APPLETON v. STURGIS (1862), 10 W. R. 312.

2966. —— Whether issue of execution necessary.]—Certain judgment creditors of a mtgor., who had not issued execution, were made defts. to a suit for foreclosure:—Held: if the judgment creditors should issue execution, & the returns to the writs should be made before the expiration of the six months allowed for redemption, they would be entitled to redeem, but not otherwise.—MILDRED v. AUSTIN (1869), L. My opinion is that a judgment creditor who has not issued execution has no interest in land; & the object in a foreclosure suit being to bring before the ct. those only who have an interest, it is evidently improper to make these judgment creditors parties (MALINS, V.-C.).—CORK (EARL) v. RUSSELL (1871), L. 2976. —— ——.]—Effect of lis pendens: subsequent mtgees., of an equity of redemption bound by a decree of foreclosure; though not made parties. An exception by a purchaser on that ground was disallowed; & a specific performance decreed with costs.

The objection is that two mtgees. of the equity of redemption are not brought before the ct. & therefore are not bound by the decree of foreclosure. The answer is that they became mtgees. after the bill of foreclosure filed, & one even after the decree nisi. . . . Ordinarily, it is true, the decree of the ct. binds only the parties to the suit. But he who purchases during the pendency of the suit is bound by the decree that may be made against the person from whom he derives title (GRANT, M.R.).—WINCHESTER (BP.) v. PAINE (1805), 11 Ves. 194; 32 E. J. Ex. Eq. 43.

2978. —— —— Assignee not bound to inform court of assignment.]—To set aside on the ground of fraud a decree signed & enrolled, actual positive fraud ought to be shown. Mere constructive fraud is not sufficient, at all events after long delay.

W., as solr. of V., a second mtgee., received the rents of the mtged. property. The first mtgees. obtained a decree for foreclosure, & a first report was made finding what was due to them. W. paid them off with his own money, in V.'s name, & also paid off V. The proceedings went on without W.'s interest being disclosed, & shortly afterwards a second report was made finding what was due to V. in respect of his own security, & of what he had paid to the first mtgees., after allowing for the rents received by him. P., the mtgor., not paying this, an order absolute for foreclosure was made, V. making the usual affidavit that he had received nothing towards payment of the sum found due. Between the second report & the making this affidavit W. had gone on receiving rents. He was entitled to an undisputed third mtge., given him by P., on the same property. P., twelve years afterwards, filed a bill to impeach the order for foreclosure absolute as having been obtained by fraud:—Held: (1) it was not the duty of W., when he became owner of the mtges., to disclose his interest, & make himself a party to the proceedings, & although the affidavit made by V. was in the circumstances irregular, the irregularity did not prove any fraudulent design on the part of W., as it was a doubtful question whether he was not entitled to retain the rents towards satisfaction of this third mtge., which he claimed to do; & if he was so entitled V.'s affidavit was substantially correct; therefore the decree for foreclosure absolute could not be set aside.

There is no rule of the ct., that I am aware of, which requires a person acquiring an interest in that way to state to the ct. that such change of interest has taken place; though of course he frequently, perhaps generally, does so, because the transferee in most cases is anxious to become a party to the litigation in order to maintain his own rights (CAIRNS, L.J.).

(2) Slight circumstances will induce the ct. to enlarge the time before the day arrives, but after the order for foreclosure has been made absolute, it must be shown that the person who seeks to set it aside or to have it disregarded fully intended & was prepared to pay the money on the day, but was estopped by some accident from complying with the exigencies of the order (ROLT, L.J.).—PATCH v. WARD (1867), 3 Ch. (3) In a foreclosure action the mtgor. can redeem after the order for foreclosure absolute & notwithstanding that, after the order, the mtgee. may have disposed of his interest to a purchaser; but whether or not he shall be allowed so to redeem lies in the discretion of the ct., & depends on the circumstances of each particular case.—CAMPBELL v. HOLYLAND (1877), 7 Ch. 2989. —— —— ——.]—On a motion for judgment in default of defence in a foreclosure action, a mtgee. asked for an order for an account to be taken, & for payment, & the usual foreclosure judgment; the mtgee., however, being in possession, & having therefore to account on the footing of wilful default, did not show what he might have received but for his wilful default. The ct. therefore gave him the order for an account to be taken, & the usual foreclosure judgment, but made no order for payment. Deft. then said that pltf. had abandoned his claim for payment, & therefore ought to have proceeded by summons, & not by action, & was entitled under the foreclosure order to no more costs than if he had applied by summons:—Held: as pltf. had not abandoned his claim for personal payment, but had pressed it, he was entitled to his costs. The ct. refused to allow the case to go into the general paper for argument as to the question of costs.—BROOKING v. SKEWIS (1887), 58 L. T. 73; 36 W. R. 215.

Div. & is one of the matters specially assigned to that division by Jud. Act, 1873 (c. 66), s. 34, is not of itself a sufficient ground for changing the venue to London from the assize town named by pltf. as the place of trial, in his statement of claim. The writ in a foreclosure action was issued out of the Liverpool District Registry, the action being in the Ch. Div., & assigned to Bacon, V.-C. Both pltf. & deft. resided in London, but some of the witnesses were in Liverpool. Pltf. in her statement of claim named Liverpool as the place of trial & gave notice of trial at the Liverpool assizes without a jury. 2999. —— ——.]—Pltfs. in a foreclosure action applied by summons under R. S. C., Ord. 15, r. 1, for an account. The chief clerk pronounced the usual order for an account & foreclosure. Defts. objected to the direction for foreclosure, & pltfs. assenting, the order was drawn up for an account only, & was passed & entered in that form. When the parties came before the chief clerk to proceed with the account he objected to the order as not being the one he had pronounced, & refused to proceed with the account. Subsequently the registrar, at the instance of the chief clerk, without any motion or summons, altered the order by adding the usual directions for foreclosure. Defts. moved to strike out the additions. The judge declined to do so, as he considered that the parties were not at liberty to have an order drawn up, different from the order pronounced, without applying to the ct. for the purpose; but, being of opinion that the addition had been irregularly made, he stayed proceedings under the existing order, giving pltfs. liberty to apply for a fresh order for accounts & foreclosure. Defts. appealed:—Held: assuming the order as passed & entered to contain an error arising from an accidental slip or omission, an alteration made in it without any motion or summons for the purpose was irregular, & must be discharged, & pltfs. must pay the costs, as they ought to have applied to the judge when the chief clerk refused to proceed with the accounts. Qu.: whether a foreclosure order can be made under R. 3017. Irrelevant matter—Matter injurious to plaintiff's character.]—In a foreclosure suit, where for the alleged purpose of showing that the suit had been instituted through a vindictive motive, deft. introduced into his answer matter injurious to the pltf.'s character, & which had previously been made the subject of a public document. The ct., on exceptions for scandal, ordered such matter to be expunged as irrelevant to the question at issue.—EDMUNDS v. BROUGHAM (LORD) (1866), 13 L. T. 790; 12 Jur. N. S. 156.

3018. Admissions—Discretion of court to make order.]—An action having been commenced in Nov. 1876, to enforce an equitable mtge. with written memorandum dated in Feb. 1876, deft. admitted the mtge., but alleged, by way of defence, that it was part of the agreement that pltf. should not require a legal mtge., nor any payment of principal or interest for a year from the time of the advance. Pltf. moved for the ordinary foreclosure decree on the admissions in the pleadings; & the motion was refused:—Held: the Vice-Chancellor had a discretion as to whether a case was a proper one for making an order on motion under R. S. C., 1875, Ord. 40, r. 11; & the Ct. of Appeal ought not to interfere with the exercise of that discretion.—MELLOR v. SIDEBOTTOM (1877), 5 Ch. D. 342; 46 L. J. Ch. 398; 37 L. T. 7; 25 W. R. 401, C. A.

3019. —— What constitutes.]—In a foreclosure action the statement of claim stated an original mtge. deed, a deed of assignment, & that a sum remained due on the security. The statement of defence stated that defts. did not admit the correctness of these statements, & required proof thereof. Pltf. moved for judgment on admissions in pleadings:—Held: pltf.'s case on these pleadings must be taken to be admitted, but leave to amend was given.—RUTTER v. TREGENT (1879), 12 Ch. 3020. —— ——.]—The statement of claim in a foreclosure action set out the purport & effect of several mtge. deeds, & alleged that they were duly executed. The statement of defence craved leave to refer to the deeds, when produced, &, save as by such deeds, when produced, should appear, did not admit that the same were of or to the purport or effect in the statement of claim mentioned. Upon motion for judgment on admissions in the pleadings, the deeds being produced in ct.:—Held: there was a sufficient admission of the execution of the deeds, & as it appeared, on their being produced in ct., that they were of the dates & made between the parties mentioned in the statement of claim, pltfs. were entitled to judgment.—BARNARD v. WIELAND (1882), 30 W. R. 947.

3021. —— Defence delivered out of time—Judgment on admissions.]—A defence delivered after the expiration of the time limited by the rules cannot be treated as a nullity. Where, therefore, the ct. treating such a defence as a nullity, had upon a motion for judgment in default of delivering a defence, given a judgment for foreclosure, the Ct. of Appeal held the judgment improperly given. But as the defence substantially admitted pltf.'s claim the Ct. of Appeal under order R. S. C., Ord. 58, r. 4, ordered the notice of motion to be amended, &, the notice

The money was not paid according to the terms of the deed, & therefore the mtgee. filed a bill to foreclose. The ct. decreed an account of the principal money & interest, at 5 per cent. only. But on an appeal, this decree was reversed, & the mtgor. was ordered to be charged with interest, at 8 per cent. from the end of three months after each payment became due.—BURTON v. SLATTERY (1725), 5 Bro. The agreement was signed by A. & B. only ; but the bill alleged that D., & his four brothers & sisters, who were tenants in common of the equity of redemption, agreed to sell the property to pltf., & that A. & B., or at least one of them, signed the agreement as agents or agent of their brothers & sister. Pltf., with the privity of the five tenants in common, paid the purchase-money to the mtgee. in part satisfaction of the mtge., & he was let into possession, & expended moneys in draining, etc. An abstract of title was furnished & accepted, but before the conveyance was prepared, pltf. & his solr. received notice not to prepare it, as the five vendors would not execute in, on the ground that one of them did not concur in the sale & the others declined to complete. D., & A. & B., admitted that they agreed to sell the fields to pltf., & that they believed their brothers & sister would concur in the agreement, but that they had no authority for them to sell, of which pltf. was, as alleged, aware. A. & B. denied that they signed on behalf of any one. C. & G. denied that they had ratified the agreement, & submitted that they were not bound ; but it appeared that G. was, with D. & A. & B., present when the purchase-money of £1,000 was paid to the mtgee. D., & A. & B., submitted to a decree for specific performance :—Held : (1) as to C.'s one-sixth share in the equity of redemption, pltf. was entitled to a decree that he should redeem or be foreclosed ; in case of redemption, there should be a partition ; (2) pltf. must pay the costs of the mtgee., & he was entitled to those costs, & the costs of the suit, as against D., & A., B., & G.—DAVIES v. DAVIES (1860), 3 L. Defts. all appeared, & C. & R. put in statements of defence. C.'s defence alleged that his mtge. was registered in Middlesex without notice, & therefore had priority over R. R.'s defence made no answer to this allegation. At the hearing A. asked for a foreclosure decree, giving only one period of redemption for all defts. C. & R. both claimed that the decree should give successive periods for redemption:—Held: the mere fact that R.'s defence did not deny the allegation of priority in C.'s defence could not be taken as an admission by R. of the priority of C.'s mtge., therefore, the priorities were in dispute, & the pltf. was entitled to have only one period of redemption, as in Bartlett v. Rees, No. 3122, *post. Sect. 7.—Foreclosure or sale: Sub-sect. 6, C. (c), (d) & (e), D. (a) & (b) i. & ii., & E. (a).]

The mtgee. assessed the value of his mtge. security in accordance with the rules contained in schedule II. to the Bkpcy. Act, 1883 (c. 52). The mtge. debt amounted to £4,566 10*s.* 1*d.* & the assessed valuation of the mtge. security was £3,500. The mtgee. commenced a foreclosure action against the official receiver & subsequent incumbrancers. Upon motion for judgment in default of pleading: —Held: the judgment for foreclosure ought to show on the face of it that the official receiver was entitled to redeem the mtged. property at a sum less than that at which the subsequent incumbrancers were entitled to redeem the mtged. property.—KNOWLES v. DIBBS (1889), 60 L. 3148. Stay of proceedings—On payment in by mortgagor—Reconveyance subject to prior mortgages.]—A., a subsequent mtgee. of certain estates belonging to C. filed his bill against C. & all the prior mtgees., praying a decree of foreclosure against C. On a motion by C. for an order to stay all further proceedings in the suit by A. on payment of what was due to him for principal, interest & costs, an order was made, that all further proceedings in the suit should be stayed & that A. should reconvey the mtged. estates to C. subject to the prior mtges. on payment into ct. by C. of a sum sufficient to satisfy the amount due to A. for principal money, & interest & the costs as between solr. & client of A. & the other mtgees., defts. in the suit.—LASTETT v. CLIFFE (1840), 9 L. 3149. Apportionment of payments to prior mortgagees—Proceeds of sale in court.]—The mtge. of a mesne incumbrancer extended over the whole of certain estates, parts of which had been previously mortgaged to other persons, & parts of which were also subsequently mortgaged. The mesne incumbrancer filed his bill for an account, & for redemption of the prior & foreclosure of the subsequent mtges., & a decree was made by consent of all parties interested that the whole of the estates should be sold; that the proceeds of the sale should be paid into ct., & apportioned according to the value of the parts of the estates comprised in the several mtges. & that the priorities of the incumbrances should be ascertained on further directions. No question was raised as to the incumbrances or their priorities, but only as to the costs:—Held: each of the prior mtgees. was to be paid his principal, interest, & costs out of the sum in ct. apportioned in respect of his mtge., & not out of the general fund.—WILD v. LOCKHART, LEE v. LOCKHART (1847), 10 Beav. 320; 16 L. E. Foreclosure Absolute.

(a) In General.

3162. Effect of—Estate no longer subject to mortgage.]—An estate which testator holds as mtgee. will not pass under a general devise of all lands to uses in strict settlement although testator at the making of his will had obtained a decree for an account in a bill of foreclosure; for the estate does not lose the quality of a mtge. until the final order of foreclosure.—THOMPSON v. GRANT (1819), 4 Madd. 438; 56 E. 3194. ——— ——— Mortgagee out of jurisdiction.]—(1) Upon a motion for a final order of foreclosure, an affidavit made on Feb. 20, last by D., one of two joint mtgees., & by S., was tendered in evidence. J., the other mortgagee, had in 1874 gone to reside in New Zealand, & had granted S., a power of attorney, to act for him in the matter of the mtge. Under the authority of this power, & under power of attorney granted by D. S. had attended on Jan. 31, last to receive payment of the mtge. moneys. The affidavit stated that J. was still in New Zealand; that default had been made in payment of the mtge. moneys, & that the whole of this sum remained due to the mtgees.:—Held: the affidavit was not sufficient, & more recent evidence must be adduced.

(2) At the subsequent hearing of the motion on affidavit made by S. alone on Mar. 21, last was produced. In this S. stated that J. was still residing in New Zealand, that D. was away from his home in Derbyshire, & that his whereabouts was unknown, & that to the best of his knowledge the mtge. moneys remained unpaid:—Held: an affidavit made by S. alone was insufficient.—DOCKSEY v. ELSE (1891), 64 L. (c) Successive Enlargement.

3256. When granted—On presentation of strong case—Though last order peremptory.]—It requires a strong case to induce the ct. to make a fourth order, enlarging the time for the payment of mtge. money, decreed to be paid. If deft. has done all he can to obtain the money, & has been baffled in his purpose, by unexpected delays, & there appears a strong probability of the money being raisable within three months, the ct. would feel disposed to enlarge the time. It is sworn that the objections to the title are satisfactorily answered, & the solr. also swears, he verily believes the sales will be completed within three months. The last order does certainly purport to be a peremptory order, but, I think, the ct. has sometimes, in these cases, given further time, notwithstanding that expression. Let deft. take an order for three months further time, on the usual terms (PLUMER, V.-C.).—EDWARDS v. CUNLIFFE (1816), 1 Madd. 287; 56 E. R. 100.

My only doubt has been as to the costs of the suit. I think I must order C. to pay into ct. the principal & interest found due on the mtge. security £4,558. I must then direct it to be invested, & the dividends to be paid to F., on his undertaking to repay them if the decree should be reversed, & C. must at once pay the costs of suit & of this application. J. O. S. Ch. 197.

3263. —— Form of application.]—Where, in a foreclosure suit, exceptions are taken to the master's report, & the time appointed for payment of the mtge. money is likely to elapse before the exceptions are heard, deft. should apply to the ct. upon the exceptions being filed, to have the time enlarged until the exceptions are disposed of.—RENVOIZE v. COOPER (1823), 1 Sm. & St. 364; 57 E. 3264. —— ——.]—Some time after judgment nisi for foreclosure, which directed accounts against pltfs. as mtgees. in possession, but contained no inquiry or direction as to improper working of the collieries, it was discovered that the mines had been flooded in consequence, as the mtgors. alleged, of the improper working of the mtgees. or their sub-lessees in removing the pillars. The mtgors. applied to have under the foreclosure judgment as it stood an inquiry with reference to the flooding, & to charge the mtgees. with the injury so caused:—Held: although the application was wrong in form, as such an inquiry should have been obtained through a supplemental judgment, or by an addition to the existing judgment, yet as a probable case had been made out of serious damage to the mtged. property by the acts of the mtgees. in possession, the mtgors. should not be absolutely foreclosed & left to the remedy of an action against the mtgees., or on the covenants of the lease against the lessees, but were entitled to such an inquiry, & in taking the accounts to charge the mtgees. with the amount of the injury. The ct., in order to settle the question cheaply & expeditiously, directed a reference to ascertain whether the flooding had been caused by the improper working by the mtgees. or lessees or any persons acting by their permission, & if so what was the amount of loss or damage caused thereby, & added a direction that the mtgees., in taking the accounts directed by the foreclosure judgment, should be charged with the amount of such loss or damage.—TAYLOR v. MOSTYN (1886), 33 Ch. Between master's certificate & day appointed for payment—Saving expense of further account—Affidavit of amount due to day of notice of motion to fix further day.]—Where a receiver has received rents of mtged. property between the date of the certificate under a foreclosure judgment & the day fixed for redemption the mtgee. is not entitled to the rents so received, except on the terms of bringing them into account as between mtgee. & mtgor., & a fresh date must be fixed for redemption.

The ct. to save the expense & delay of a further reference to chambers allowed mtgees. to file an affidavit showing the exact amount which would be due to them for principal, interest, & costs, after allowing for everything received, brought down to the day for which notice of motion was given to fix another day for redemption.—JENNER-FUST v. NEEDHAM (1886), 32 Ch. 3279. —— Receipts belonging to party redeeming—Or mortgagee foreclosing—Judgment giving liberty to apply for payment.]—A receiver having been appointed in a foreclosure action relating to a mtged. mining property, let on lease at certain rents & royalties, a foreclosure judgment nisi was given in 1884. This judgment contained a special direction that any persons redeeming the premises under the judgment, or pltfs. in case of foreclosure, were to be at liberty to apply for payment of any moneys in the hands of the receiver. The mtgor. made default in payment at the time fixed for redemption:—Held: the judgment for foreclosure nisi not having been appealed from, that judgment must be taken to have decided who was entitled to the money in the receiver's hands, & on making the foreclosure absolute, pltfs. were entitled to such moneys without any further account or further period of redemption being allowed.—COLEMAN v. LLEWELLIN (1886), 34 Ch. foreclosure, pltf. should be at liberty to apply to the judge in chambers for payment of any money in ct. or in the hands of the receiver.—SMITH v. PEARMAN (1888), 58 L. T. 720; 36 W. R. 681.

3281. —— —— —— ——.]—Pltf. commenced a foreclosure action on Dec. 22, 1882, asking for judgment for principal & interest, a receiver, & the usual order for an account & foreclosure. A receiver had been appointed & a statement of claim delivered. Deft. had not appeared. Pltf. moved for judgment in default of appearance, asking, in addition to the order for payment & the usual foreclosure order, for the direction given in Coleman v. Llewellin, No. 3279, ante, "That any person redeeming under this order, & pltf. in case of foreclosure, should be at liberty to apply in chambers for the payment of any moneys in ct. or in the hands of the receiver":—Held: this direction can only be inserted under special circumstances, which were not shown to exist in this case; & the order for payment of principal & interest could only be made on production of an affidavit that nothing had been received on account thereof since the issue of the writ.—CHESTON v. WELLS, [1893] 2 Ch. 151; 62 L. 3283. —— Omission of rents received from accounts—Error discovered after foreclosure absolute.]—Some months after the usual order for foreclosure absolute had been made in favour of first mtgees. against the mtgor. & second mtgees., & after the first mtgees. acting upon that order had actually sold portions of the mtged. property, the mtgor. discovered that the receiver had omitted from his accounts certain rents which he had received. The mtgor. accordingly moved that the foreclosure might be re-opened; & that the first mtgees. might be restrained from parting with the legal estate of the mtged. property:—Held: there was no evidence that the first mtgees. had received any of the rents for which the receiver had not accounted, & there was no reason why the foreclosure should be re-opened merely because the receiver, who was not the agent of the first mtgees. for all purposes, but was an officer of the ct., had made a mistake which the mtgor. had not discovered before it was too late; the case did not come within the authority of Jenner-Fust v. Needham, No. 3277, ante, & therefore the motion failed.—INGHAM v. SUTHERLAND (1890), 63 L. T. 59.

3288. Partly before & partly after day appointed for payment—Receiver & manager.]—The receiver & manager, appointed before judgment in a foreclosure action, received moneys that represented the gross takings in the business of the mtged. property, which was a leasehold public-house. The moneys were received from day to day, partly before & partly after the date fixed for redemption.

The ct. made a final order for foreclosure & directed that the receiver & manager should pass forthwith his final account, & be discharged, his recognisance & bond to be vacated.—HOLT & CO. v. BEAGLE (1886), 55 L. T. 592.

For many years past, however, the practice has been to enlarge the time only on the terms of first paying the interest & costs already reported ; & these being paid, subsequent interest is to be computed on the principal only, that alone remaining unpaid. . . . If, for any special reason, the ct. should think fit to enlarge the time without ordering any immediate payment, I conceive that it would now be proper to order the subsequent interest to be computed on the aggregate amount of principal, interest, & costs before computed.—BREWIN v. AUSTIN (1838), 2 Keen, 211 ; 48 E. 3343. —— ——.]—On May 2, 1837, freehold & copyhold estates were mortgaged by C. to T., subject to a proviso for redemption on payment of £10,000 on May 2, 1844, with interest half-yearly in meantime. Prior to any default, C. paid to T. £7,000 by cheque, & gave him two bills of exchange, drawn by C. & Co., upon & accepted by C. for £1,620 at three months after date, & for £1,500 at six months after date, being together the total amount of the mtge. debt & interest. Upon the receipt of the cheque & two acceptances, T. signed the following memorandum: "London, Dec. 23, 1839—Received this day of C., the sum of £7,000 in cash, & two bills of exchange, as under, for £3,120, drawn by C. & co. of M., upon & accepted by the said C., one dated Dec. 16, for £1,620, the other dated Dec. 23, for £1,500, & which cheque for £7,000 & bills for £3,120, making together £10,120, are in full of principal & interest due to me upon a mtge. of C.'s freehold property in K. & S. for £10,000, & I do hereby undertake whenever required, to execute a conveyance of the said property. T." T. gave this memorandum, together with the title & mtge. deeds of the premises, to C. The cheque for £7,000 was paid, but both the bills of exchange were dishonoured; C. afterwards conveyed all his estate to a trustee for the benefit of his creditors, & then became bkpt. T. never reconveyed the premises :—Held : as between T. & C. & his assignee by deed, & his assignees in bkpcy., the receipt of the cheque & bills, & the giving the above memorandum, did not discharge the mtged. premises from the mtge., but that on their dishonour, T. was entitled to a decree against them all for the restoration of the title & mtge. deeds, & to a decree of foreclosure.—TEED v. CARRUTHERS (1842), 2 Y. & C. 3345. —— ——.]—W. L., on June 14, 1858, in consideration of forbearance of pltf. in not requiring the immediate repayment of the moneys he had advanced to or for him, signed an agreement undertaking to give & execute to pltf. a charge on the interests to which, by right of marriage with Mrs. L., he was or claimed to be entitled in the property settled on, or in or to which she might be interested or entitled in respect of, her former marriage, or the income arising therefrom, as a security to pltf. for the repayment of the moneys he had advanced to him; & W. L. pledged himself not to incumber his interests in such property or income by way of settlement or otherwise. Notice of the agreement was on the following day sent by pltf. to deft. A., one of the trustees. W. L., on June 18, 1858, with the knowledge but without the consent of pltf., executed a post-nuptial settlement, by which he conveyed all his interest, in right of his wife, in the property settled on her, on her first marriage, to trustees, on trusts for her for life, then for himself for life, & after the decease of the survivor, for the children of the marriage. On July 13, 1858, W. L. executed a deed, whereby he charged all the dividends, interest, & annual proceeds of the trust funds which were settled at the time of his wife's first marriage, & also his share in the trust funds themselves, with the payment of £800 & interest from June 14, 1858, to pltf. W. L. also assigned the same property to the pltf. by way of mtge., with a proviso for redemption on repayment of the said sum & interest by him:—Held: a valid equitable charge was created by the agreement of June 14, 1858, in favour of pltf., as a creditor of W. L. upon the dividends, etc., to which the wife was entitled under her first marriage settlement; the deed of mtge. of July 13, 1858, bound the estate of W. L. only; inasmuch as, by the post-nuptial settlement of June 18, 1858, the whole of the dividends had been subject to the charge, settled to the separate use of the wife, & vested in trustees for her benefit, it was improper to reserve an equity of redemption to W. L.; yet the deed operated as a recognition of the debt due to pltf., &, coupled with the agreement of June 14, gave plaintiff a right to an account, & payment of what should be found due; & in default of payment, a right of foreclosure against W. L. & his assignee in insolvency.—CAREW v. ARUNDEL (1861), 5 L. T. 498; 8 Jur. N. S. 71.

3346. —— —— Notice of incumbrance.]—Testator, by his will, gave certain property to trustees therein named in trust for sale; part of the property was sold, & the proceeds were paid into ct. to the credit of the cause. A share of the property having been mortgaged by one of the parties entitled thereto, notice thereof was given by the mtgee. to the surviving trustee. The remainder of the property was afterwards sold, & the proceeds arising from the sale were also paid into ct. The party who created the incumbrance became insolvent:—Held: the above notice was sufficient to bind his assignees.—MATTHEWS v. GABB (1845), 15 Sim. 51; 6 L. T. O. S. 42; 9 Jur. 649; 60 E. 3348. Destruction of security—Insurance moneys —Payment into court.]—A. & B. insured, in their joint names, certain leasehold premises which A. had mortgaged to B., & B. paid the premium on the insurance, & the policy was delivered to him. Afterwards the premises were destroyed by fire; & then A. became bkpt., & his assignees prevailed on the insurance co. to pay the money due on the policy to them; & they afterwards paid it into the bank to the credit of the accountant in bkpcy. B. filed a bill against the assignees, praying that the money received from the co. might be applied in satisfaction of his mtge. debt. The answer of the assignees tended to impeach the mtge. on the ground of usury. The ct., however, ordered them to pay the amount of the money into ct.—ROGERS v. GRAZEBROOKE (1842), 12 Sim. 557; 11 L. J. Ch. 329; 6 Jur. 495; 59 E. R. 1247, L. C.

3349. —— Mortgagee ranks with ordinary creditors.]—The lessee of a public-house at Dover, being under a covenant to leave & deliver up the premises with the fixtures, whether trade or otherwise, at the expiration or other determination of the term, not only insured the premises in pursuance of a covenant contained in the lease, but having laid out considerable sums in enlarging & altering the premises, effected separate insurances in his own name of the house, of the trade fixtures, & of his own household goods. He had also mortgaged the premises comprised in the lease. A fire took place, & the lessee, having obtained part of the insurance money, committed an act of bkpcy. by absconding, & was adjudicated a bkpt.—Inasmuch as the act of bkpcy. of the tenant also determined the term, the mtgees., having lost their security, were permitted to prove for their debt.—Re BARKER, Ex p. GORELY (1864), as reported in 5 New Rep. 22; 11 L. Certain creditors who had notice of the deed, &, after such notice, made use of a mtge. security, which had been previously given them by debtor in respect of a debt due at the time of the execution of the deed, were not permitted to take advantage of the deed, after having claimed in opposition to it by asserting their title as mtgees. in respect of a debt prior property of two different persons, who respectively derived title from the purchaser:—Held: upon the words of the deed, & the circumstances of the transaction, the estate B. was the primary security, &, as between the owners of the two properties, the estate A. was not to be resorted to for the payment of any part of the mtge. debt, till the estate B. was exhausted.

But may not a man make a mtge. of two estates in such a way, that, though the incumbrancer may go against both or either, yet, if the owner of the equity of redemption shall have created, in the meantime, two different titles to those estates, so that they shall go to different persons, the estate, which was the primary security, shall remain the primary security as between the persons claiming under that mtgor. 3380. —— ——.]—Testator held shares in a banking co. by whose deed of settlement it was provided that if any shareholder did not on demand pay all moneys due from him to the co., the directors might declare his shares forfeited, & that nevertheless he should still be liable to pay the debt, & it was also provided that a shareholder must have paid all moneys due from him to the co. before he could transfer his shares. Testator borrowed money from the co., & deposited the deeds of certain real estate with them as security. By his will he gave the above estate to his son A., & his residuary property to his other sons. A. claimed that testator's shares in the bank should contribute ratably to payment of the debt:—Held: (1) the provisions of the deed of settlement did not create a charge or lien on the shares for a debt due from the holder, & no case for contribution arose; (2) also if the deed of settlement had charged the shares with all debts due from the shareholder to the co., a debt for which real estate had been specifically mortgaged would still have been payable out of the mtged. estate before resorting to the shares which were only subject to a general lien.—Re DUNLOP, DUNLOP v. DUNLOP (1882), 21 Ch. A creditors' suit was afterwards instituted, & the exor. subsequently made a further charge on the same estates for £2,500, & which was declared invalid, as regarded the testator's estate:—Held: the creditors had no equity to compel the mtgee. to obtain payment of his first mtge. wholly out of the exor.'s private estate, so as to exonerate testator's estate for their benefit.—SHALCROSS v. DIXON (1838), 7 L. They afterwards entered into a personal obligation, by bond, for another debt. B. died, having certain shares vested in him as trustee to the co. By the decree, the shares were ordered to be sold, & the produce applied in payment of the debts of the co., for which the estate of B. was liable:—Held: the representatives of B. had a right to have the fund applied in payment of the bond debt, in priority of the mtge. debt.—LAWRENCE v. KEMPSON (1844), 7 Beav. 574; 49 E. There was a covenant in the settlement by A. against incumbrances, but there was no recital showing that there were any incumbrances. A. afterwards mortgaged the fourth estate, & took the benefit of the Insolvent Debtors Act. Soon afterwards a judgment creditor, being also equitable mtgee. of a mining lease on one of the estates, filed a bill against A.'s assignee & B. the tenant in tail, & against the other incumbrancers, praying a sale in satisfaction of the judgment debt, & of what pltf. might pay in discharge of prior incumbrances, subject to the estate & interest of B. under the settlement:—Held: the settled estate must be regarded as exonerated from incumbrances as between A. the tenant for life, & B. the tenant in tail, & pltf. was subject to the same equities as A. the settlor, & the judgment being of a later date than the settlement, B. the tenant in tail, was not affected by such judgment.—HUGHES v. WILLIAMS (1852), 3 Mac. & G. 683; 19 L. A decree was made in the suit, directing that, on pltf. & deft., the tenant in tail, paying what was due on the respective incumbrances, the unsettled estates should be conveyed to the party redeeming, & that the settled estates should be conveyed on the trusts of the settlement, &, in default of redemption, that the bill should be dismissed:—Held: the decree for redemption, being permissive only as against the tenant in tail, was correct, & a decree for a sale would have been improper.—CHAPPELL v.

I felt somewhat embarrassed by the use of the expression "void ab initio"; but I am satisfied now that the true meaning is that, not in regard to all persons & for all purposes is the case to be treated as though the legal estate had never passed, but that as regards the trustee & the person to whom the grant was made, he is, in respect of his liabilities, his burdens, & his rights, in exactly the same position as though no conveyance had ever been made to him (BYRNE, J.).—MALLOTT v. WILSON, [1903] 2 Ch. 494; 72 L. J. Ch. 664; 89 L. T. 522.

3397. Party claiming under charges on estate.]—In 1805 a lessee for lives, with proviso for renewal, charged the hereditaments, subject to his own life interest in part, with £1,500, &, subject thereto, conveyed the premises in trust for his son, W., testator in the cause. In 1811 W. settled the premises, subject to the life interest in part, & as to the whole charged with the £1,500, on himself, his wife, & eldest son; & further charged same with £2,000 for his younger children. In 1815, the tenant for life having died, W. executed deeds reciting, erroneously, that the whole of the £1,500 charges had been paid off, & taking from the trustee, in breach of trust, a conveyance of the hereditaments to himself absolutely, freed from the £1,500 charges; but there was no evidence that this deed was ever acted on. In 1818, the cestuis que vie having all died, W. obtained a renewal of the lease, but without prejudice to a question whether the lessee had not lost the right of compelling a renewal. In 1819 W. purchased the reversion in fee of the leaseholds, the latter not being merged. In 1838 W. was party to a deed whereby he recited that he had paid £1,200, part of the £1,500, but that when he did so he did not intend that same should sink into or be extinguished in the premises. In 1845 he appropriated the remaining £300 to himself as part of his share in the estate of the cestui que trust thereof, who had died. By his will, after reciting to the like effect, he devised the hereditaments comprised in the deed of 1805, subject to all such incumbrances as same might at his decease be subject to, & from the payment of which he exonerated his personal estate, to his son T. absolutely, subject to a further charge. W. died in 1859. T. entered into possession & disputed his liability to pay either the £1,500 or the £2,000, but paid interest up to 1869:—Held: if the above sums had been charged on the leasehold only, & not on the reversion, the mtgees. must have had recourse to the reversion first.

It was further contended that, if the claim of the pltfs. should be held only to extend to the existing lease, the mtgees., whose security comprehended the reversion, ought to resort to that estate in the first instance so as to leave as much as possible of the value of the leasehold for the purpose of satisfying such claim; & this would, I think, be consistent with the well-established principles upon which this ct. directs the marshalling of securities so as to preserve the rights of, & do full justice between the parties interested (BACON, V.-C.).—TRUMPER v. TRUMPER (1872), L. 3401. General rule—Only against mortgagor & volunteers claiming under him.]—Defts. were auctioneers & had sold for a customer a brewery, & part of the proceeds of the sale was in their hands subject to their claim for charges incurred in connection with the sale; they had also in their hands the balance of the price of some furniture sold by them for the same customer. Pltf. was a creditor of defts.' customer, & he by letter charged the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in favour of pltf. Defts. wrote to pltf. acknowledging the receipt of the letter of charge. Defts. afterwards paid their customer the balance of the price of the furniture, & appropriated the part of the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in their hands to the payment of their charges:—Held: (1) defts., as auctioneers, had a lien for their charges upon the part of the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in their hands; (2) defts. were at liberty to appropriate the part of the proceeds of the sale of the brewery in their hands to the payment of their charges, & were not bound to take payment of their charges out of the price of the furniture in order to enable pltf. to obtain payment of his charge, & the doctrine of marshalling did not apply.

(3) Assets shall not be marshalled where by so doing another man's right would be prejudiced (LINDLEY, L.J.).—WEBB v. SMITH (1885), 30 Ch. D. 192; 55 L. J. Ch. 343; 53 L. T. 737; 1 T. L. R. 225, C. A.

3402. —— ——.]—P., in 1876, conveyed certain paper mills to H. by way of mtge. for securing £6,000, & by deed of even date assigned a reversionary interest in personalty as collateral security for the same debt. In 1882 P. made a second mtge. of the paper mills & the reversion to pltf. for £5,000; & in 1884 P. made a third mtge. of the paper mills only to pltf. for £2,500. In 1885 a deed was executed whereby pltf. transferred his mtge. for £2,500 to H., & released the paper mills from his mtge. for £5,000; so that H. became first & second mtgee. of the paper mills, as well as first mtgee. of the reversion, & pltf. second mtgee. of the reversion. P. made subsequent mtges. both of the paper mills & the reversion. Pltf. foreclosed the mtges. on the reversion which were subsequent to his own, & then brought an action claiming to redeem H.'s mtge. on the reversion on payment of £6,000, & to have a transfer from him of his first mtge. on the paper mills, as a security for what he had paid:—Held: (1) pltf. was entitled to redeem the reversion & paper mills on payment of the £6,000 to H.; (2) the sum paid by him must be apportioned between the paper mills & the reversion, according to their respective values; (3) pltf. was entitled to have a conveyance of the reversion absolutely, & of the paper mills to be held as security for such part of the money paid as should be apportioned to that property.

(4) The right of a subsequent mtgee. of one of the estates to marshal . . . is an equity which is not enforced against third parties, that is, against any one except the mtgor. & his legal representatives claiming as volunteers under him. It is not enforced against a mtgee. or purchaser of the other estate. 3408. Claimant under voluntary settlement—In favour of judgment creditor claiming under settlor.]—A. being seised in fee of certain lands, subject to a charge for marriage portions, gave judgments for the amount of the charges upon the occasions of the marriages. Subsequently, on his own marriage, he executed a voluntary settlement reciting those charges & settling the land on himself for life, remainders over in strict settlement. A. afterwards executed two separate mtges. of the lands, & still later, on the marriage of his son, executed articles of agreement, reciting the voluntary settlement & the mtges. During A.'s life some of the above incumbrances were paid out of his life estate, & after his death a judgment creditor whose debt was later in date than the mtge. debts, & secured by judgment on his life estate, sought that so much of the mtge. debts as had been paid out of the life estate of A. as should be necessary to satisfy the demands of creditors whose demands affected the life estate alone, should be raised by sale of part of the inheritance in exoneration of the life estate:—Held: the applt. was not entitled to the relief sought, since cts. of equity will not, where there has been a voluntary settlement, interfere to disturb that settlement in favour of a person whose claim is derived only through the settlor.

A. afterwards, in 1832, borrows £500 more of B., on the security of both the freehold & copyhold estate This mtge. is effected by distinct instruments relating to each property respectively, neither of them referring to the other. In 1833, A. borrows a sum of £400 of C., on mtge. of the freehold estate alone, subject to B.'s incumbrances thereon. Again, in 1838, A., being indebted to D. in £600, executes to him a mtge. for that sum of the copyhold estate alone, without notice of the £500 incumbrance. In 1837, B. has notice of C.'s security, & in 1838, after having sold both the estates, under powers of sale, & received the purchase-money, he has notice of D.'s security. The produce of the freehold estate being insufficient to pay B. & C. in full, but that of the freehold & copyhold being sufficient for that purpose, C. claims to have the whole of the £500 charge thrown upon the produce of the copyhold estate, in order that he may receive payment out of that of the freehold; on the other hand, D. claims to be paid the whole of his debt out of the produce of the copyhold estate, in priority to C.:—Held: the claim of neither party could prevail to the fullest extent; but the £500 being by the security of 1832 charged on the freehold & copyhold estates, ratably, that is to say, in proportion to their respective net values, & without preference, C. had an equity of the nature claimed by him, to the extent of that proportion of the £500 which is charged upon the copyhold estate, while, in other respects, in relation to that estate, D. had priority over C.—BUGDEN v. BIGNOLD (1843), 2 Y. & C. So, also, where there are two funds, either or both of which A. has the right to apply in paying himself & one of such funds is assigned to B. & the other to C., then, whether that right arises from a positive charge or by operation of law, in the circumstances under which the two funds came into A.'s hands, it is a right which he can exercise against both B. & C., & an equity to an apportionment of A.'s debt exists between B. & C.—MOXON v. BERKELEY MUTUAL BENEFIT BUILDING SOCIETY (1890), 59 L. On Aug. 16, 1894, the mtgor. mortgaged the house alone to B., & on Aug. 22, 1894, gave a charge on the lease, goodwill, fixtures, & fittings to C., The interest on the mtge. fell into arrear, & the property was sold for £1,300, which in the assignment was apportioned £160 for the lease, £1,000 for the goodwill, & £140 for the fixtures.

B., the holder of the second mtge., claimed to be entitled to the whole proceeds. It was said that it was quite impossible to sever the goodwill from the lease. Mrs. H., by virtue of her power, mortgaged P. to A. in fee, by a deed reciting that testator's debts & legacies had been paid, which was not the fact, & containing an unqualified covenant by Mr. & Mrs. H. against incumbrances. Subsequently Mrs. H., by virtue of her power, mortgaged C. to D. in fee, & made similar mtges. of other parts of the devised estates:—Held: (1) however the case might have stood if these mtges. had been made by virtue of an ownership in fee, the recital & covenant in A.'s mtge. gave him no right to have P. exonerated from testator's debts & legacies out of C. & the other estates, as against D. & the other subsequent mtgees. under the power of appointment; (2) the charge of debts contained in the will did not give A. any right as against Mrs. H.'s other mtges., to have testator's mtge. on P. paid out of all the devised estates ratably, but that it must be borne by P.—STRONGE v. HAWKES, HAWKES v. HAWKES (1859), 4 De G. & J. 632; 45 E. J. re-entered, upon whom G. entered & made the lease to pltf. who entered & was possessed until deft. ousted him, but the special verdict did not convey any interest or authority to the deft. under the said J. :—Held : (1) the condition ought to be performed by a true & effectual payment ; (2) as the heir was expressly named in the condition, if all the money had been paid to him, bonâ fide, it would have been sufficient, although W., his father, conveyed over his whole estate in the land.—GOODALL'S CASE (1597), 5 Co. Mtgor. obtained an order in the action that on payment of the principal & interest into ct. the action should be stayed, that a reconveyance should then be executed, & that on its execution the money should be paid out of the ct. An arrangement was made that the wife should receive £100, & the husband the rest, & the mtgor., on being informed by pltfs.' attorney that pltfs. had settled their differences on those terms, consented to the payment out of ct. to pltfs.' attorney. The money was accordingly paid out to pltfs.' attorney; but he, claiming a lien on the £100 for some costs, offered the wife only £83, which she would not receive. The wife survived her husband, & died without having received any part of the money, & without having executed a reconveyance. 3434. —— —— —— ——.]—P., a solr. employed both by a mtgor. & mtgee., received the interest on the mtge. debt regularly. After a time he fraudulently obtained from the mtgor. a portion of the principal. At first the mtgee. received his interest regularly from P. at his office; but ultimately P. allowed the interest to fall into arrear till a large sum became due to the mtgee. During this time the mtgee. made no application to the mtgor. in consequence of the irregularity in payment. In Sept. 1853, the mtgor. paid the mtgee. £13 13*s.* 9*d.*, as a half year's interest on the principal remaining due; that led to an explanation & the discovery of the fraudulent receipt of the principal by P. The mtgee. did not repudiate the payment at the time. On Feb. 24, the mtgor. wrote to inquire in what way he should pay the half-year's interest just due, expressing his fear that P. would not be able to make good his defalcations to the mtgee. On Feb. 26, the mtgee. wrote requesting payment by cheque, & on Mar. 4, the mtgee. again wrote, saying that he believed that P. was hopelessly involved, & suggesting that the loss should be divided between them:—Held: P. was the agent of the mtgee. to receive the interest but not the principal; & in order to bind the mtgee. by the acts of P. in receiving the principal, it was necessary to show either that what he did was with the intention of adopting the acts of P. or that the position of the mtgor. was altered.—KENT v. THOMAS (1856), 1 H. & N. 473; 156 E. The solr. was in the habit of making investments for pltf. on mtge., purchase, or otherwise, & of keeping the various deeds in his possession. The solr., without pltf.'s knowledge or authority, gave notice to the mtgor. calling in the principal money due under the mtge., & the mtgor. repaid the money to the solr. upon being handed a deed of reconveyance purporting to be signed by pltf. & the title deeds of the property. Pltf.'s signature to the reconveyance was a forgery, & pltf. never received the money nor did he know that it had been paid off:—Held: the solr. had no authority to receive the principal money, & pltf. was entitled to have the security enforced against the mtgor.—JARED v. WALKE (1902), 18 T. 3446. —— —— Valued for purpose of composition.]—B. & co. were creditors of a partnership for £2,400, for which they held a security comprising joint property of the firm & also separate property of one of the partners. The firm being in difficulties, the joint creditors agreed to accept a composition, & B. & co. valued their security at £800, & proved & received the composition upon the balance. Subsequently they received from their security more than £800 & interest from the date of valuation. Four years after the close of the composition debtors brought an action to redeem their security. B. & co. claimed to retain the security on the separate property until they had received payment in full of their claim, on the ground that they need not have deducted the separate property:—Held: B. & co. having received £800 from the security & accepted the composition on the balance, their whole debt was discharged, & they could not retain the separate security.—COULDERY v. BARTRUM (1881), 19 Ch. 3447. —— —— ——.]—In 1903 P. as surety executed mtges. of certain property of his own to a bank to secure the overdraft of P. Brothers, a firm in which he was not a partner. The mtge. deeds all contained a provision that the bank should be at liberty without affecting their rights under the mtges. among other things "to vary, exchange or release any other securities held or to be held by the bank for or on account of the moneys thereby secured or any part thereof" . . . "& to compound with, give time for payment of, & accept compositions from & make any arrangements with debtors or any of them."

In 1908 P. Brothers, being insolvent, called their creditors together, & a scheme was arranged whereby a co. was formed who should take over certain properties of the firm for realisation & should issue debentures to the creditors at the rate of 25*s.* for each £1 of their debts in full discharge thereof. The bank in accordance with this scheme applied for debenture stock on a form which contained an express agreement by appcts. to accept such debenture stock in full discharge of all their claims against P. Brothers. The amount of the debt in respect of which debenture stock was to be issued was £1,900. This amount was arrived at by deducting from the total debt due to the bank £1,630 the value put upon securities held by them on the property of the firm; but no deduction was made on account of P.'s mtges. The interest on the debenture stock not having been paid, the bank threatened to sell the property comprised in P.'s mtges. In an action by P. for reconveyance of the mtged. property on the footing that nothing was due on the mtge.:—Held: as to the £1,900 the debt was completely discharged & therefore the surety's property was released, but as to the £1,630 the debt remained unpaid, although the principal debtor was released; consequently by the express terms of the mtge. deeds the surety's property continued liable.—PERRY v. NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND, [1910] 1 Ch. 464; 79 L. The co.'s debentures were worthless:—Held: the mtgee. was not remitted to his original position & had no charge on the assets of the bkpt., but only had a right to prove in the bkpcy for the damages he had sustained by reason of debtor's fraud in inducing him to accept worthless debentures for his security.—Re GOLDBURG, Ex p. SILVERSTONE, [1912] 1 K. An administration suit being instituted, a memorandum was discovered in the handwriting of testator, but which had never been propounded for probate, in which the two sums were mentioned in one sum, with the words in the margin, "not to be enforced":—Held: this was not sufficient evidence of a release by testator to relieve H. from accounting for these sums to testator's estate.—PEACE v. HAINS (1853), 11 Hare, 151; 17 Jur. 1091; 68 E. 3469. Trustees of mortgagor—Cestuis que trust not necessary parties.]—Mtgor. having conveyed his equity of redemption to trustees on trusts for sale, by a deed of even date, referred to in the conveyance, declared the trusts of the money produced by the sale, which trusts were first to pay expenses of the trusts, & then debts generally, & afterwards to divide the remainder of the money among several persons.

The trustees having sold the estate, made application, & paid the mtgee. the debt & interest due to him, applied to him, to convey the legal estate to a trustee for them. The mtgee., acting by the advice of counsel, refused to execute the deed, unless the cestuis que trust were made parties: —Held: that they were not necessary parties.— ANGIER v. STANNARD (1834), 3 My. & K. 566; 3 L. 3470. Persons claiming under mortgagor.]—Equitable mtgees. by deposit of title deeds took, at the time of the mtge., a conveyance from the mtgor. of the legal estates in the mtged. properties. They were subsequently paid off, when they surrendered to the mtgor. his title deeds, but did not give up the conveyance. They afterwards claimed a right to retain it as against his subsequent mtgees. of the same properties, on the ground that it comprised other property besides those specifically mtged. to them:—Held: those claiming under the mtgor. were entitled to a reconveyance of the legal estates in the specifically mtged. properties.—YOUNG v. WHITCHURCH & ELLESMERE BANKING CO. (1867), 37 L. J. Ch. 186; 17 L. T. 406.

3471. Person interested in equity of redemption—From whom payment of mortgage debt accepted.]—(1) Mtgee. is not bound to convey the legal estate in the mtged. property & to deliver up the title deeds to a person from whom he has accepted payment of principal, interest, & costs, if that person has only contracted to purchase a part of the mtged. estate, & has not accepted the title.

(2) On tender by a person having a partial interest giving right to redeem the mtgee. is bound to convey, but the conveyance should reserve the equities of the other persons interested.—PEARCE v. MORRIS (1869), 5 Ch. App. 227; 39 L. J. Ch. 342; 22 L. T. 190; 18 W. R. 196, L. C.

C. Mortgagee with Notice of Subsequent Incumbrancers.

3472. Not compelled to reconvey to mortgagor—Until satisfied that incumbrancers paid off.]—A legal mtgee. of an estate, who has received notice of subsequent equitable mtges., cannot be compelled, upon being paid off his mtge. debt by the mtgor., to hand over to him the title deeds of the estate & to execute a reconveyance to him in the ordinary form without being satisfied that the subsequent equitable mtges., of which he has received notice, have been paid off.—CORBETT v NATIONAL PROVIDENT INSTITUTION (1900), 17 T. L. R. 5.

3473. —— Without consent of incumbrancers.]—Mtgee. is not safe in transferring to the mtgor. or his nominee without the consent of puisne incumbrancers, of whose charges he has notice. Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 15 & Conveyancing Act, 1882 (c. 39), s. 12, have not altered the pre-existing rule in this respect.—Re MAGNETA TIME CO., LTD., MOLDEN v. THE CO. (1915), 84 L. SUB-SECT. 3.—RIGHT TO DELIVERY OF TITLE DEEDS.

A. When Arising.

3474. On payment of amount due.]—ROURKE v. ROBINSON, No. 3457, ante.

3475. Whether on tender of amount due—Tender properly made & improperly refused—Order for payment into court.]—(1) Where there has been an equitable deposit of deeds to secure repayment of a loan an action of detinue cannot be maintained therefor prior to repayment. The remedy is by a suit for redemption, or by summary application for the deeds on terms of substituting for the security a sum of money equal to the amount secured with a proper margin. In cases of legal or equitable mtge., a tender properly made & improperly rejected is not equivalent to payment.

LORD ELDON said: "I take it to be contrary to the whole course of proceeding in this ct. to compel a creditor to part with his security till he has received his money. Nothing but consent can authorise me to take the estate from pltf. before payment." To some extent the strictness of that rule has been relaxed in modern times, & it is now the practice, where a proper tender has been made & refused, to make an order giving the mtgor. liberty to pay into ct. a stated sum sufficient to cover the amount of principal & interest & the probable costs of the suit, & then upon payment into ct., but not till then, the mtgee. is required by the order to deliver up the title deeds. It would be contrary to equity to order a mtgee. to deliver up the title deeds of property on which he has a security upon any other terms (LORD MACNAGHTEN).

(2) [A mtgee.] is also entitled as of right to the costs properly incident to an action for foreclosure or redemption, though he may forfeit those costs by misconduct & may even have to pay the costs of such an action in a case where he has acted vexatiously or unreasonably (LORD MACNAGHTEN).

(3) If a mtgee. rejects a tender he rejects it at his own risk & in an action for redemption he may be refused his costs in consequence, or may even be ordered to pay costs (LORD MACNAGHTEN).— BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES v. O'CONNOR (1889), 14 App. Cas. 273; 58 L. C. What Documents must be Delivered.

3485. All documents relating to mortgaged property—Copy of draft deed of reconveyance.]—(1) A firm of solrs. acting for a number of sets of persons, five in all, interested in moneys secured upon mtge., on the mtge. being paid off, in their bill of costs charged the exors. of the mtgor. with the cost of five copies of the draft deed of transfer, & the taxing master having disallowed the charge for four such copies:—Held: the taxing master was right in allowing the costs of only one copy.

(2) Mtgee. or transferee of a mtge., though entitled to keep a fair copy of the draft deed for his own protection until the transaction is completed, has no right to keep copies of the mtge. deed or deed of transfer after he is paid off, but whatever copies he has are as a general rule copies paid for by the mtgor., & to be delivered up to him when he pays off the mtge.—Re WADE & THOMAS (1881), 17 Ch. D. 348; 50 L. J. Ch. 601; 44 L. T. 599; 29 W. R. 625.

3486. Trust deeds transferring mortgages—Mortgagee retaining by consent—Must furnish attested copies—& covenant for production.]—(1) Where mtgees. declared trusts of the mtge. moneys, & transferred the mtges. by the same deeds:—Held: on redemption, the trust deeds must be delivered to the mtgor., or in the case of one of them, being a marriage settlement, the mtgees. retaining it, by his consent, were bound to furnish him, at their expense, with attested copies & a covenant for production.

(2) Mtgor. had, before mtgees entered into possession, indorsed to the mtgees. bills of exchange for the arrears of interest. The bills fell due after possession was taken & were dishonoured:—Held: the interest was in arrear when possession was taken so as to preclude the mtgor. from claiming to have the accounts of the receipts of the mtgees. taken with rests.—DOBSON v. LAND (1851), 4 De G. & Sm. 575; 64 E. R. 963.

3487. Former mortgage & reconveyance between same parties.]—When there has been an assignment of a mtge., & a reconveyance to mtgor., & then a remortgage to the same mtgee., upon the usual order on redemption for delivery up of deeds relating to the title of the mtged. property, the original mtge. & reconveyance, as they form links in the title, ought to be delivered up.—HUDSON v. MALCOLM (1862), 10 W. 3489. Judgment against mortgagor on personal covenant.]—In a foreclosure action personal judgment for the mtge. debt being given against the mtgor., & a foreclosure judgment against the mtgor. & a purchaser from him:—Held: the purchaser, in the event of his redeeming the mtge., would be entitled to have transferred to him the personal judgment against the mtgor., as being one of the securities held by the mtgee. for the debt.—GREENOUGH v. LITTLER (1880), 15 Ch. 3490. Where mortgage deed comprises other property—One trust deed transferring several mortgages—Conditions entitling mortgagor to mortgage deed.]—Three mtges. on the estates of distinct mtgors. were vested in the same trustees by one deed, which was prepared in the master's office, in a suit for executing the trust. Upon the application of one of the mtgors. for liberty to redeem & to have his mtge. deed delivered up to him:—Held: he was entitled to have the deed, on his executing to the trustees a covenant to produce it, & paying the costs of the application; & the costs properly incurred in preparing & settling the covenant should be borne by the mtgee.'s estate.—CAPPER v. TERRINGTON (1844), 1 Coll. 103; 13 L. 3492. For payment of sum not covered by mortgage—Sum due on trading account.]—By agreement between A., a publican, & B., a brewer, it was stipulated that A. should deposit the lease of his house with B., as security for an advance of £150, for which A. had given B. a promissory note, payable on demand; & B. engaged not to call upon A. to pay the £150, or any part thereof, for two years, upon condition that the interest thereon should be duly paid half-yearly, that the rent should be paid agreeably to the covenants of the lease, & that A. should take of B. all the beer consumed upon the premises, & pay for it every twenty-eight days. The agreement then provided that, in case of failure on the part of A. to perform any or either of the above conditions, after fourteen days' notice, B. should be at liberty immediately to put the note in force, &, if not paid, with interest, to sell the lease; & that all expenses attending such sale, together with the principal & interest due on the note, should be deducted from the amount realised by such sale, as also any account that might be then due & owing for beer:—Held: the power of sale not having been exercised, on payment, or tender, of the principal & interest due on the note, A. or his assignee was entitled to maintain detinue for the lease; & B. could not set up a lien on it 3493. —— Sum due on another mortgage—Where no right to tack.]—Defts. were the holders of two mtges., made by the corpn. of Brecon, upon their land. One was made before Municipal Corporations Act, 1835 (c. 76), & the other subsequently. This latter mtge. comprised in addition lands acquired under a local Act. Defts. brought an action to obtain payment of the money due on both mtges. The corpn. then paid into ct. the sum due on the mtge. made before Municipal Corporations Act, 1835 (c. 76). Defts., pltfs. in the action, took this money out of ct. & proceeded with the action upon the second mtge., & obtained a judgment. Defts. refused to reconvey the lands or deliver up the title deeds in the first mtge.; & upon a bill by the corpn.:—Held: (1) the first mtge. was satisfied before any judgment was obtained, & no right to tack had arisen; & (2) defts. must reconvey the lands & deliver up the title deeds to the corpn.—BRECON CORPN. v. SEYMOUR (1859), 26 Beav. 548; 28 L. A. Action for Possession.

See Mortgage Act, 1733 (c. 20), ss. 1, 3; C. L. P. Act, 1852 (c. 76), ss. 219, 220.

3495. Jurisdiction to restore possession on payment—Mortgagor not having appeared—Possession recovered against tenant to mortgagor.]—If a mtgee. recovers possession of the mtged. premises under a judgment in an undefended ejectment, the ct. has no jurisdiction to restore, on payment of the debt, interest, & costs, the possession to the mtgor., who has not appeared. But if the recovery is had against a tenant of the mtgor., the ct. will set aside the judgment, & let in the mtgor. to defend as landlord, that he may be in a condition to apply to the ct. to stay proceedings on the terms of the statute.—DOE d. 3513. Married woman trustee—Reconveyance as feme sole—Trustee Act, 1893 (c. 53), s. 16.]—In a mtge. deed of freehold property executed only by the mtgees. the Christian name of one of the mtgees. was incorrect. After execution the incorrect name was erased & the correct name substituted therefor. The consideration for the mtge., being moneys advanced by trustees, was, subsequently to 1893, repaid to the sole surviving trustee, a married woman, who reconveyed the property to the mtgors. Upon a vendor & purchaser summons for a declaration that a good title had been shown to the property in question:—Held: the married woman on payment of the mtge. money became a bare trustee for the mtgors., & could therefore convey as a feme sole under above sect.—Re HOWGATE & OSBORN'S CONTRACT, [1902] 1 Ch. 451; 71 L. The lady having afterwards married she & her co-mtgee. transferred the mtge. & on a sale by a person deriving title under the transferees the purchaser objected that the deed of transfer had not been executed by the husband of the married woman or acknowledged by her. The vendor replied that being a mtgee. she could convey as a feme sole:—Held: the purchaser's requisition had been satisfactorily answered.—Re WEST & HARDY'S CONTRACT, [1904] 1 Ch. 145; 73 L. At the date of the will & death of testator, a satisfied mtge. term in the T. estate was outstanding in Y., the mtge. money & all interest having been paid to Y. by testator, during his lifetime:—Held: Y. was bound to execute a deed of surrender of the satisfied term to B. & the cestuis que trust were necessary parties thereto.—POOLE v. PASS (1839), 1 Beav. 600; 8 L. The second mtge. was paid off during the continuance of the first mtge., & a receipt was given by the second mtgee.:—Held: Satisfied Terms Act, 1845 (c. 112), did not apply, & the purchaser was entitled to demand surrender by the second mtgee. before he completed.—Re MOORE & HULM'S CONTRACT, [1912] 2 Ch. 105; 81 L. D. Other Property.

3518. Stock—Mortgaged by joint mortgagors—Reassignment must be to all.]—G., a stockbroker, who was one of three trustees & acted as broker to the trust, proposed to his co-trustees to sell B. stock belonging to the trust & re-invest in N. E. stock. The three trustees then, on Jan. 27, 1882, executed a transfer of the B. stock for a nominal consideration to two persons who were officers of a bank of which G. was a customer, G. gave the transfer to the bank as security for a loan, by them to him & the transfer was registered. G., in Feb. 1882, paid off the loan & on Feb. 15, the bank transferred the stock to purchasers from G., & without giving any notice to G.'s co-trustees, allowed him to receive the purchase-money. He invested it in N. E. stock in his own name. In 1883 he sold the N. E. stock & misappropriated the proceeds. Shortly after the sale of the B. stock G. had given an account to his co-trustees showing the sale of B. stock & a re-investment in N. E. stock & in 1884 he rendered another account in which he represented the N. E. stock as still forming part of the trust funds. In 1885 he absconded. The co-trustees remembered hardly anything about the transaction, but admitted the genuineness of their signatures of the deed of transfer:—Held: the bank had occasioned the loss to the trust estate by allowing the purchase-money to come to the hands of G. who had no authority to receive it, & whom they had no sufficient reason to believing to have authority to receive it, & the bank must therefore make it good at the suit of the co-trustees, although the co-trustees had been negligent in not seeing that the N. E. stock was registered in the joint names of the trustees.—MAGNUS v. QUEENSLAND NATIONAL BANK (1888), 37 Ch. D. 466; 57 L. J. Ch. 413; 58 L. T. 248; 36 W. R. 577; 4 T. L. R. 248, C. A.

Loan of roubles—Subsequent fall in rate of exchange—Redemption on payment of principal & interests in paper roubles—& costs in English money.]—Pltfs., a British bank, obtained from defts., a Russian bank, on the security of certain bonds, a loan of 750,000 Russian roubles, in June 1914, when the currency was based on the gold rouble. At that time 750,000 Russian roubles represented £78,206, but subsequently they became almost valueless owing to the issue of paper currency uncovered by gold. In an action for redemption:—Held: the loan was repayable in paper roubles issued by the authority of the Russian Govt. & in use at the material date, & upon payment of the principal & interest in roubles & of the costs in English money pltfs. were entitled to redemption.—BRITISH BANK FOR FOREIGN TRADE, LTD. v. RUSSIAN COMMERCIAL & INDUSTRIAL BANK (1921), 38 T. B. Mortgagor Discharging Prior Charge.

3552. General rule.]—A first mtgee. is primâ facie entitled to a judgment in a foreclosure action limiting only one period for redemption, both as against subsequent incumbrancers & the mtgor., & where there are conflicting claims as to priority between co-defts. the practice, as settled by Bartlett v. Rees, No. 3122, ante, is to grant only one period for redemption. Where, however, defts. have put in a defence or appeared at the bar, & have proved or offered to prove their incumbrances, & there is no question of priority between them, the ct. will at the request of the puisne incumbrancers, but not at the request of the mtgor., limit successive periods for redemption. A mtgor. has no right in himself to more than one period of six months to redeem. In a foreclosure action by the transferee of the first mtgee., the statement of claim alleged that defts. other than the mtgor. claimed to have some charge upon the mtged. premises subsequent to pltf.'s charge. None of defts., including the mtgor., put in a defence or appeared at the bar:—Held: pltf. was entitled to a foreclosure judgment on the pleadings, allowing one period for redemption as against all defts.

A mtgor. redeeming cannot stand in the mtgee.'s place against other incumbrancers (CHITTY, J.).—PLATT v. MENDEL (1884), 27 Ch. D. 246; 51 L. T. 424; 32 W. R. 918; sub nom. PLATT v. MENDEL, GURNEY v. CANTERBURY (VISCOUNTESS), 54 L. J. Ch. 1145.

Both mtges. were duly registered under the Yorkshire Registries Acts. O., being pressed by A. for payment, offered to sell the property to his daughter L. for £450, who accepted the offer conditionally on her being able to find some one to provide £300 to pay off A. She consulted W., a solr. & told him she had agreed to purchase the property & wanted some one to provide the £300 to A., & instructed him to carry through the transaction. W. mentioned the matter to F., who agreed to advance £300 on a first mtge. of the property, & W., having received the money from F., paid off A. & obtained from him the title deeds on F.'s behalf. W. acted for all parties except A. None of the parties except O. had any knowledge of the mtge. to M., & he did not disclose it. W. prepared three deeds by which (a) A. reconveyed the property to O., (b) O. conveyed the property to L., & (c) L. mortgaged the property to F. The deeds were executed three weeks after A. was paid off & the first two bore same date, & the third was dated a day after. M. brought an action against F., L., & O., claiming a declaration that on the execution of the reconveyance by A. his mtge. became a first charge on the property, & he was entitled to priority over F.—Held: the intention of the parties was that F. should have a first mtge. on the property, but, owing to a common mistake caused by O. concealing the mtge. to M., the deeds did not carry out the true bargain between the parties, & they could have been rectified on the application of F. & L.; by the payment of the £300 to A. & obtaining possession of the title deeds, F. became equitable transferee of A.'s first mtge., & the charge to M. ranked after that to F.

It is now quite plain that a purchase from a mtgor. & the first mtgee. can always, if he chooses, keep the first mtge. alive & so protect himself against subsequent incumbrances, whether he had notice of them or not (LORD HALDANE, C.).—WHITELEY v. DELANEY, [1914] A. 3562. Who is a purchaser—Trustees for creditors.]—By a deed conveying the real & personal estate of a debtor to trustees for the benefit of his creditors, the creditors executing the deed covenanted that it should operate & enure, & might be pleaded in bar, as a good & effectual release & discharge of all & all manner of actions, suits, bills, bonds, writings, obligations, debts, duties, judgments, extents, executions, claims, & demands, both at law & in equity, which they or any of them had or might have against the debtor or his estate or effects, for or by reason of all or any of the debts or engagements to them respectively due or owing by him; such covenant not to destroy any mtge., pledge, lien, or other specific security which any creditor possessed:—Held: (1) upon the construction of the entire deed, such general words had not the effect of releasing a judgment previously obtained by one of the creditors who executed the deed, so as to affect the priority of the creditor as between himself & a judgment creditor who was not a party to the deed, or so as to preclude the judgment creditor who executed the deed from enforcing the right which the judgment gave him as against the estate vested in the trustees.

A judgment creditor who had executed a deed, whereby the real & personal estate of the debtor were conveyed to trustees for the benefit of such of his creditors as should execute the deed, assigned his judgment to such trustees:—Held: (2) the trustees could not be considered as owners of the trust estate, so that the assignment by the judgment creditor would have the effect of merging the judgment; (3) the judgment creditor having assigned his judgment to the trustees of a creditors' deed, in trust for the benefit of the creditors who had executed the deed, of whom he was himself one, was entitled to sue on behalf of himself & all such other creditors, for the establishment of their rights in respect of the trust estate & the execution of the trusts.

(4) It would be going a monstrous length, to say, that the trustees for creditors under the original deed of Dec. 27, 1848, are to be considered as owners of the estate, to bring them within the principle of the case of Toulmin v. Steere, No. 3555, ante (TURNER, V.-C.).

3565. ——.]—Trustees of an equity of redemption were called upon by the mtgee. to pay off part of the mtge. debt. They, with the consent of the beneficiaries, borrowed £600 from third parties, who were trustees of another fund, & paid off the mtge. to that extent. The beneficiaries subsequently obtained an assignment of the equity of redemption, & the lenders now claimed against them a charge on the property for £600 & interest, & a declaration that the mtge. was kept alive in their favour to that extent. Interest had been paid to the lenders continuously since the advance :—Held : if the trustees of the equity of redemption had paid the £600 themselves, they would have been entitled to have the mtge. kept on foot for their benefit, & the lenders, who had paid it at their request, had a right to stand in their shoes.—PATTEN v. BOND (1889), 60 L. 3566. ——.]—The statutory receipt given by a building society under Building Societies Act, 1874 (c. 42), s. 42, on payment off of a legal mtge. vests the legal estate in the person having the best right to call for a conveyance thereof. A third party who pays off a legal mtge. at the request of the mtgor. has primâ facie a better right than the mtgor. to call for a conveyance, & becomes, in default of evidence of intention to the contrary, entitled in equity to stand in the shoes of the mtgee. The mere fact that as part of the same transaction the mtgor. executes in favour of the third party a memorandum of equitable charge containing an agreement to give a legal mtge. when called upon does not abrogate this primâ facie right.

In 1902 D. mortgaged freeholds to a building society. In June, 1905, D.'s bankers, at his request, paid off the mtge. The building society delivered the title deeds other than the mtge. deed to the bank, & D. executed in favour of the bank a memorandum of equitable charge containing an agreement to execute a legal mtge. when called upon. Shortly afterwards the building society handed the mtge. deed to the bank, indorsed with the receipt authorised by Building Societies Act, 1874 (c. 42), s. 42. The receipt was dated the day of payment off, though in fact executed afterwards. In Nov. 1905, by means of forged title deeds, D. obtained an advance from defts.' predecessor in title, & executed what purported to be a legal mtge. of the property to him. In 1906, pltfs. paid off the moneys owing to the bank. D. executed a mtge. of the property to them, & the bank handed them the title deeds, but did not convey the legal estate to them. Pltfs. were in ignorance of the transaction with defts.' predecessor, & he was ignorant of the bank's claim when he advanced his money to D. :—Held : (1) the statutory receipt operated to vest the legal estate in the bank & (2) the bank's mtge. was still alive for the purpose of giving pltfs., as having the best right to call for the legal estate, priority over the incumbrance vested in defts.—CROSBIE-HILL v. SAYER, [1908] 1 Ch. 866; 77 L. 3567. —— Request by mortgagor immaterial.]—If a stranger pays off a mtge. on an estate there is a presumption that he intends to keep the mtge. alive for his own benefit. The facts that the owner of the property, the mtgor. has not requested the stranger to make the payment, that the stranger intended to take a legal mtge. instead of an equitable charge, & that the stranger's mtge. was to be on only a part of the original mtged. property, are not material.—BUTLER v. RICE, [1910] 2 Ch. 277; 79 L. 3568. By son expecting devise of absolute interest—Rebuttal of presumption by other dealings.]—A son paid off a mtge. upon an estate belonging to his father, the son being at the time expectant devisee of the absolute interest in the estate, though afterwards, by an alteration in his father's will, he became only tenant for life of the estate :—Held : from the dealings between the parties an agreement was to be inferred that the son paid off the mtge. debt in settlement of pecuniary transactions between himself & his father, & consequently the presumption that the son paid it off for his own benefit was rebutted, & he was not entitled to any lien upon the estate for what he so paid off.—CROW v. PETTINGELL (1869), 20 L. 3570. By puisne incumbrancer—Necessity to keep first mortgage alive.]—A. contracted for the purchase of certain lands, which were subject to a first mtge. to M., & to a second mtge. to P.; one of the terms of the agreement being, that out of the purchase-money A. should retain in his hands the sum of £5,010 in order to pay off these incumbrances; & by indentures of lease & release, reciting the mtges., the estate was conveyed to him. Afterwards M., in consideration of £3,220 stated to have been paid to him by A., conveyed, by A.'s direction, the premises to G. in fee, & it was declared, that a trustee of an outstanding term should hold that term in trust for G., to attend the inheritance. By another indenture of the same date, & executed at the same time, reciting that W. had agreed to purchase of A. an annuity of £500 for £5,000, & that the £3,220 was in fact the money of W., & part of the £5,000, & was paid to M. by W.'s agent, at A.'s request; A., in consideration of the £3,220 & of £1,780, granted to W. an annuity of £500, to be issuing out of the lands; & G., by A.'s direction, demised the premises to a trustee for 500 years, upon trust, to secure the rentcharge:—Held: P. was now the first incumbrancer, & W. was not entitled, to the extent of the money paid to M., to have M.'s mtge. considered as still subsisting, & to have what might be payable in respect of it, applied from time to time in satisfaction of the arrears of his annuity.—PARRY v. WRIGHT (1828), 5 Russ. 142; 38 E. 3571. Annuity redeemed by mortgagee.]—In 1820, H. secured an annuity on trust funds, & in 1841, he, for a valuable consideration, assigned his interest in the same funds in trust to raise £1,100, & redeem the annuity, & hold the residue on trusts for his family. The trustees accordingly raised the £1,100 by mtge. & redeemed the annuity, & the trust funds were assigned to the mtgees., but no transfer was made of the annuity. The mtge. deed stated that the consideration to have been "for the repurchase & extinction of the annuity." The annuity had originally priority over certain claimants, but the deed of 1841 had not:—Held: to the extent of the moneys paid for the repurchase of the annuity, the mtgees. had priority over those claimants.—IRBY v. IRBY (No. 3) (1858), 25 Beav. 632; 32 L. A. a married woman, being tenant for life of lands allotted & exchanged under an Inclosure Act, in 1810, mortgaged them for one thousand years to B. to secure £105 advanced by him to pay her share of the expenses of the inclosure. B. died in 1812, & the husband of A. was his exor. & one of his residuary legatees. The term passed to A.'s husband as exor., & he died in 1824. Testator, being indebted by bond, devised certain real estate to his son for life, with remainder, subject to a term for the payment of legacies, to his grandson in tail, & died. Upwards of twenty years after the date of the latest of the bonds, the tenant for life & his assignee for value filed their bill against the tenant in tail & the legatees, alleging that the tenant for life had paid off the bonds, & seeking to stand in the shoes of the obligees as against the inheritance. The tenant in tail pleaded the Stat. Limitations, the other legatees did not:—Held: the payment of the bonds by the tenant for life did not constitute him an incumbrancer on the estate, & the bonds themselves, being more than twenty years old, the presumption was that they had been satisfied.

Semble: the plea of the Stat. Limitations, under the circumstances, by the tenant in tail, enured for the benefit of all defts.—MORLEY v. MORLEY (1855), 5 De G. M. & G. 610; 1 Jur. N. S. 1097; 4 W. R. 75; 43 E. R. 1007; sub nom. MORLEY v. MORLEY, HARLAND v. MORLEY, 25 L. J. Ch. 1, L. C.

3589. —— Reconveyance absolutely discharged from mortgage—Proof of intention to keep charge alive.]—A reversionary interest in trust funds was mortgaged by the reversioner. He afterwards on his marriage assigned the same interest, subject to the mtge., to trustees, on trust for his wife for her life, with remainder to himself for his life, with remainders over. After the marriage he paid off the mtge. debt out of his own moneys, & the mtgee. executed a deed which purported to reconvey the mtged. property to him "absolutely discharged from" the mtge. debt & all claims under the mtge. deed. The solrs. who prepared the reconveyance were ignorant of the existence of the settlement. In an action by the reversioner, claiming to have the reconveyance set aside or rectified, he gave evidence that he did not intend to pay off the mtge. debt for the benefit of the settlement, but that he intended to keep the charge alive for his own benefit:—Held: notwithstanding the form of the reconveyance, pltf. was entitled to have the charge kept alive for his own benefit, & the sum secured by the mtge. constituted a charge on the property having priority over the settlement, & a declaration was made to that effect.—GIFFORD (LORD) v. FITZHARDINGE (LORD), [1899] 2 Ch. 32; 68 L. The rents received from the estate were insufficient to pay the interest, & the tenant for life paid to the assignees of the charge this interest out of other moneys of his own; but did so without giving any notice whatever to the remainderman of his intention to make the deficiency a charge on the inheritance. 3597. —— —— —— ——.]—Tenant in tail in remainder expectant upon a preceding estate tail, purchased a mtge. on the estate & took an assignment to himself of the mtge. debt & of the term by which it was secured. He subsequently became entitled to the estate as tenant in tail in possession, & as such continued for six years in receipt of the rents; after which he died without barring the entail or doing any other act indicative of an intention as to whether the charge should merge:—Held: the charge was kept alive for the benefit of his personal representative.

Whatever discrepancy may exist between the earlier & the later authorities, it is clear, according to the latter, that in all cases of a tenant in tail in possession paying off a charge upon the estate, unless he indicates, at the time of making the payment, or at all events subsequently, an intention to the contrary, it will be assumed that he intended such payment for the benefit of the estate. But I am not aware of any case in which it has been determined that where a tenant in tail in remainder pays off a charge before he becomes entitled in possession to the estate, the charge shall sink for the benefit of the estate (PAGE WOOD, V.-C.).—HORTON v. SMITH (1858), 4 K. & J. 624; 27 L. With his consent a considerable part of the income was applied in the reduction of the charges. In Feb. 1909, pltf. came of age & disentailed & resettled the estate, becoming the first tenant for life. The same course as to payment off of incumbrances out of the income was continued:—Held: the presumption in favour of a limited owner who pays off incumbrances had not been rebutted, & the payments out of income were a charge on the inheritance in favour of the pltf.—WILLIAMS v. WILLIAMS-WYNN (1915), 84 L. (a) Express Intention.

3599. Express declaration prevents merger.]—A. mortgaged for five hundred years to B. Afterwards he mortgages in fee to pltf., & B. assigned his mtge. to deft., who advancing more money, took a conveyance of the inheritance, with an agreement that the five hundred years term should be kept on foot as an additional security, but the term was never assigned over to a third person. It was agreed, that if the term had been kept regularly on foot, deft. would have been in the care of a third mtgee. taking in the first incumbrance to protect himself by which he would have had the law on his side; whereas here the term was merged upon the grant of the inheritance, & therefore at law it would be with pltf., who had the first mtge. in fee:—Held: pltf.'s conveyance of the inheritance interposing between the term & deft.'s grant, the grant of deft. was void in law, the grantor having nothing in him, & the term could not be merged in a void grant of the inheritance, & deft. must be first paid his whole money.—HASKETT v. STRONG (1726), 2 Eq. In 1826 testator paid off the debts out of his own moneys, & satisfaction was duly entered on the court rolls of the conditional surrender. In 1831 the lands were, under a power in the first settlement, resettled by testator & his wife, but no notice was taken of the fact of repayment of the mtges. 3604. —— Declaration that charge to be kept alive—For protection of mortgagee his heirs & assigns.]—Although a mtgee., who purchases the equity of redemption in the property, may by a declaration keep the charge alive, the declaration cannot have the effect of converting the living charge into real property & making it descend to his heirs in the event of his dying intestate ; even though the declaration is to the effect that the charge is to be kept alive as a protection to the mtgee., his heirs & assigns, against subsequent incumbrancers, if any such there be, but for no other purpose.

In 1866 A. mortgaged freeholds to D. in fee. In 1867 D. charged his mtge. debt & created a term of 1,000 years to secure the charge. In 1868, D. foreclosed A., & between 1870 & 1872 mortgaged the fee to G. to secure sums amounting to £5,411. In 1872 D. by his marriage settlement, also charged the fee with £5,000, which sum, in the events which happened, became held in trust for him. In 1874 D.'s equity of redemption under his mtges. of 1870 to 1872 & his interest in the £5,000 were conveyed to G. subject to all existing charges & with a declaration against merger. In 1900 G. took a transfer of the charge, then reduced to £9,800, & term of years created by the mtge. of 1867 with a declaration against merger, & in 1902 he deposited the deeds of 1866, 1867 & 1900 with a memorandum of deposit with M. by way of equitable mtge. On G.'s death, intestate, the question arose between his real & personal representatives whether the above-mentioned three charges of £9,800, £5,411 & £5,000 or any of them had merged in the fee :—Held : the charges of £5,411 & £5,000 had merged in the fee, for that it would be a fraud on M. to keep them alive against him in favour of G. his mtgor.—Re GIBBON, MOORE v. GIBBON, [1909] 1 Ch. 367 ; 78 L. 3608. ——.]—By a marriage settlement, £20,000, the fortune of the wife, was assigned to trustees upon trust, subject to life interests of the husband & wife, as to one moiety for the eldest son of the marriage, & as to the other moiety for the younger children. By the same settlement, a certain plantation in Jamaica, of which the husband was seised in fee simple, was conveyed to the use of trustees for a term of five hundred years, upon trust, if the husband should so appoint, to raise £10,000 for his absolute use, & subject to such term, & to the life interests of husband & wife, to trustees for one thousand years, upon trust to raise £20.000 for the eldest son, £10,000 for the younger children, & again £10,000 for the eldest son. The settlement contained a proviso that the portions should be raised according to their priority, as stated in the settlement. Soon after the marriage the husband exercised his right of raising £10,000 for his own use, & for that purpose the trustees of the five hundred years' term borrowed of the trustees of the wife's fortune £10,000, & executed to the latter a mtge. of the premises comprised in the five hundred years' term. The husband & wife died, leaving five children of the marriage; the husband having by his will, after directing payment of his debts, & devising certain property not situated in Jamaica, devised all his residuary real & personal property to his eldest son J., & appointed him his exor. Upon the death of testator, J. proved the will, acted as exor., & entered into possession of the estates in Jamaica, of which he kept possession, paying the interest of the younger children's fortunes, until 1837, when he became a lunatic, shortly after which he died intestate & unmarried, leaving the four younger children surviving him, of whom W. was his heir at law. No arrangement had ever been entered into amongst the children relative to the charges in the settlement, nor was there any strong evidence of the intentions of J. as to the extinguishment of those charges to which he was entitled:—Held: under the foregoing circumstances, it was most for the benefit of J. that his charges on the Jamaica estate should be considered as not having been extinguished in the inheritance, & consequently they were not extinguished.—CLARENDON (EARL) v. BARHAM (1842), 1 Y. & C. Nothing, I think, is better settled than this, that when the owner of an estate pays charges on the estate which he is not personally liable to pay, the question whether those charges are to be considered as extinguished & as kept alive for his benefit is simply a question of intention. M. procured a conveyance of the fee on Mar. 27, 1882, & in 1885 sold to F., the conveyance being expressed to be subject to the lease of Aug. 20, 1880. In July, 1902, M. became bkpt., his trustee disclaimed the lease, & on May 5, 1903, an order was made by the registrar of the Warwick county ct. that H.'s representatives should be excluded from all interest in the lease, & that same should be vested in a purchaser from F., unless H.'s representatives declared their option to accept a vesting order of the lease. H.'s representatives did not appeal from the order in bkpcy., but now asked (a) a declaration that the term created by the lease of Aug. 20, 1880, subject to the sub-term created by the mtge. of June 24, 1881, became merged & extinguished on the conveyance of the fee to M.; & (b) a declaration that H.'s representatives were entitled to the premises for the residue of the term created by the mtge., subject only to a peppercorn rent & the equity of redemption:—Held:

3616. General rule.] — SWINFEN v. SWINFEN (No. 3), No. 3620, post.

3617. Only consistent with charge being kept on foot.]—Where a charge on an estate becomes vested absolutely in the owner of the inheritance of the estate, the three tests usually applied for ascertaining whether the charge has merged are : (a) whether there has been an actual expression of intention to that effect; (b) whether the acts done by the owner of the estates are only consistent with the charge being kept on foot; & (c) whether it is for the interest of the owner that the charge should not merge in the inheritance.

A fund which was held in trust for A. for life, with remainder to B. absolutely, was lent by the trustees, B. & C., to B., on mtge. of his fee simple estates. By the mtge. deed, the trustees declared that they would hold the fund after the decease of A. for " B., his exors., administrators & assigns, for his & their absolute benefit." B. survived A. & died :—Held : this was not a sufficient indication of a contrary intention to prevent the merger of the charge in the inheritance.

Three tests are usually applied for the purpose of ascertaining whether the owner of the charge intended that it should merge in the inheritance, at the time when he become entitled to the absolute interest of the charge. First, any actual expression of that intention; secondly, where the form & character of the acts done are only consistent with keeping the charge on foot; & thirdly, such an intention may be presumed, when, though a total silence in all other respects pervades the matter, it appears that it is for the interest of the owner of the charge that it should not merge in the inheritance (ROMILLY, M.R.).—TYRWHITT v. TYRWHITT (1863), 32 Beav. 244; 1 New Rep. 458; 32 L. 3618. Not referring to charge—Mortgage in fee—Subsequent will not referring to charge.] — A. devised his real estates to B. in fee, charged with £1,000, which he gave to B. in trust to be laid out for the separate use of C., his sister, for her life, &, after her decease, as she should by her will appoint, &, in default of appointment, to be retained by B. B. devised the estates to trustees in trust for C. & D. as tenants in common in fee, subject to his debts, etc.; & by a codicil he directed his personal estate to be first applied in payment of his debts, legacies, etc. After B.'s death, the trustees conveyed the estates to C. & D. as tenants in common in fee, subject to the £1,000, & other incumbrances. C. & D. having agreed to make partition, one moiety of the estates was conveyed to C., in fee, subject to a term for indemnifying D. from the £1,000, & the other moiety was conveyed to D. in fee. C. afterwards mortgaged her moiety in fee; & by her will, without referring to the £1,000, disposed of her personal estate in general terms :—Held : the £1,000 was merged.—TYLER v. LAKE (1831), 4 Sim. 351; 58 E. He afterwards became absolutely entitled to the estate in possession, & being in possession of it, devised all his estates by his will, without in any way referring to the incumbrances on this estate :—Held : under the circumstances of the case, the incumbrances were no longer subsisting. — SELSEY (LORD) v. LAKE (LORD) (1839), 1 Beav. 146; 8 L. Devise by the owner in fee without mentioning a charge on it to which he was absolutely entitled, held to be some indication of his intention to merge it. (2) A mtge. created on an estate for the payment of the greater part of the purchase-money, was afterwards paid off by the owner in fee & assigned to a trustee for him. He afterwards, by will, devised a life interest in all his real property to his wife, & subject thereto, devised the same upon trust for other persons :—Held : this charge was merged in the inheritance.—PITT v. PITT (1856), 22 Beav. 294; 27 L. iii. Transfer of Charge to Trustee.

3622. General rule.]—Where the same person becomes absolutely entitled to an estate & a sum of money charged upon it, the charge will be deemed extinguished, unless it appears that the owner intended otherwise.

For the purpose of showing the intention, evidence direct & presumptive may be resorted to. A transfer to a trustee must be considered as one of the grounds rebutting the presumption of merger; but does not amount to decisive evidence against the presumption.

Sect. 4.—By merger: Sub-sect. 2, G. (b) iii. & iv., (c) & (d); sub-sect. 3, A. & B.]

A., the owner in fee of an estate, paid off a mtge. in fee existing on it, which in 1807 was transferred to a trustee, in trust for A., her "heirs, exors., administrators, & assigns, respectively"; & the trustee convenanted to convey to A., her heirs or assigns, or unto such other person or persons, & in such manner & form as A., her heirs, exors., administrators, or assigns should direct. A. devised the estate to a trustee to pay certain specified legacies, & subject thereto, she devised it to C. in fee, & upon or for no other use, trust, intent, or purpose whatsoever." A. died in 1832:—Held: the mtge. had merged.

The presumption being, that when the owner of an estate pays off a charge, he does it for the relief of the estate, a contemporaneous transfer of the charge to a trustee must be considered as one of the grounds upon which the presumption may be rebutted; but no instance has been cited in which such a transfer has of itself been held to be decisive evidence against the presumption, & I am of opinion that it ought not to be so (LORD LANGDALE, M.R.).—HOOD v. PHILLIPS (1841), 3 Beav. 513; 49 E. 3624. Devise & bequest by mortgagor of all real & personal estate to mortgagee—Mortgagee retaining part of debt out of personalty—Devise by mortgagee with liabilities.]—A., the owner of a freehold estate, subject to a mtge. in fee to secure £1,300, devised & bequeathed his real & personal estate to B. the mtgee. B., in his residuary account, stated that he had retained £467, out of the personal estate, towards payment of his mtge. debt. Afterwards, B. devised the property to three relatives of A., "provided they undertake to receive the same with all the liabilities attaching thereunto":—Held: (1) under the circumstances, the mtge. had not merged in the fee; (2) the three took the estate subject to the payment of the balance of the mtge. debt.—HATCH v. SKELTON (1855), 20 Beav. 453; 52 E. R. 678.

3625. Devise subject to mortgage—Mortgagor appointed executor & residuary legatee of mortgagee—Nonpayment of interest after mortgagees death—Deeds in hands of mortgagor.]—By his will dated Aug. 5, 1919, testator devised his lands in Herts unto & to the use of trustees upon trust for sale as therein mentioned & to hold the proceeds of sale "upon trust to pay the costs of such sale & to discharge & repay all mtge. debts secured on the said estate," & then subject to certain other payments upon trust to pay the net proceeds of sale to his brother. By a codicil dated Sept. 7, 1920, testator, after making certain devises & bequests not material to be stated, confirmed his will. Part of the property in Herts had been charged by testator's predecessor in favour of M. G. to secure a loan of £2,500 by a deposit of title deeds coupled with a memorandum undertaking to execute a legal mtge. when required to do so. Testator had himself also charged another part of the estate to M. G. to secure a loan of £5,000 by a deposit of title deeds & an agreement by which he agreed to repay the principal money & interest & also agreed to execute a legal mtge. when required to do so. By her will dated Nov. 11, 1919, M. G., who died without either of the equitable mtges. having been paid off, appointed testator & another her exors. & residuary legatees. The will was duly proved by both exors. on Aug. 27, 1920, & testator died on Sept. 18, 1920. There was evidence that testator's share in the residue of M. G.'s estate would exceed the two principal sums, but that the estate had not been fully administered at the death of testator. The title deeds deposited to secure the loan of £2,500 were after testator's death found amongst his papers. The other title deeds were in the hands of M. G.'s solrs. No interest had been paid on the mtges. since M. G.'s death, but it had been regularly paid by testator up to then:—Held: the result of testator being the mtgee.'s exor. was that he had to be treated as having in his hands on the mtgee.'s death the amount owing on the mtges. as part of her estate, but on the evidence he must be treated as having intended to discharge them out of his share of the mtgee.'s estate. The charges were therefore no longer subsisting at the date of his death.—Re GREG, FORDHAM v. GREG, [1921] 2 Ch. 243; 91 L. J. Ch. 48; 125 L. T. 825.

3626. Proof of intention—By correspondence between solicitors.]—After a decree in a foreclosure suit to which both the mtgor. & the first & second mtgees. were parties, the pltf., the first mtgee., purchased the equity of redemption from the trustee in bkpcy. of the mtgor., & by the deed of assignment, in consideration of £1,380, the sum due on the first mtge., retained by the first mtgee. "in full satisfaction" of his debt, & of £20 paid to the trustee, making the purchase-money of £1,400, the trustee assigned the mtged. property to the first mtgee., "subject to the aforesaid claim" of the second mtgee. The value of the mtged. property did not exceed £1,380. The second mtgee. contended that the effect of this purchase was to extinguish the first mtge. debt, & to let in his own charge as a first incumbrance. A correspondence took place between the solrs. of the first mtgee. & the trustee at the time of the purchase:—Held: the question being one of intention, a correspondence between the solrs. of the first mtgee. & the trustee in bkpcy. at the time of the purchase, was admissible in evidence, on the question whether it was intended to keep the first mtge. alive.—ADAMS v. ANGELL (1876), 5 Ch. 3636. ——— ———.]—Costs & expenses properly incurred by a mtgee. in relation to the mtged. property, & which the mtgor. will be compelled to pay as a condition of being allowed to redeem the property, do not constitute a debt in respect of which an action can be maintained by the mtgee. against the mtgor.

No doubt if the debtor in his character of mtgor. claimed to redeem the mtge., the ct. would not grant him that which originally was an indulgence, a departure from the strict tenor & his legal right, without imposing upon him the condition of paying the mtgee., not only the debt which he had contracted to pay by his covenant but any expenses which had been properly incurred by the mtgee. in her position as such. But that is an entirely different thing from saying that an action of debt could be maintained by the mtgee. against the mtgor. for those expenses (COTTON, L.J.).—Re SNEYD, Ex p. FEWINGS (1883), 25 Ch. Subsequently a mtge. was executed, assigning the policy as a security for sums already advanced & thereafter to be advanced, but it made no mention of the costs:—Held: the deposit for costs merged in the subsequent mtge., & after the payment of the sums advanced by way of loan the solr. had no further lien on the proceeds of the policy.—VAUGHAN v. VANDERSTEGEN (1854), 2 Drew. 289; 61 E. 3639. Loan to pay off legal mortgage—Secured by equitable mortgage.]—C. held two properties, one, The Cedars, as trustee for his wife, pltf., & the other, the Riding School, in his own right. These properties were, with the consent of his wife, mortgaged to T. for £2,000. Afterwards C. came to M., & without disclosing the above facts, borrowed £1,200 from him on the representation that he would with it pay off a mtge. of that amount on The Cedars & transfer the mtge. to M. M. advanced the £1,200 & with £1,000 of it C. paid off half of his principal to T. In Jan. 1893, C. informed M. that the £1,200 did not entirely pay off T.'s charge, & C. on same day executed an equitable mtge. on The Cedars to M. to secure the £1,200, merely reciting that the £1,200 had been advanced to enable C. to pay off a then existing mtge.:—Held: the charge on The Cedars & the Riding School was kept alive in equity in favour of M. to the extent of £1,000 in so far as that could be done without prejudicing the rights of T. or pltf.; & that M. did not lose this charge by taking the equitable mtge. for £1,200, there being thereby no release or extinguishment of the prior charge, & no merger of the securities, neither the debts secured nor the securities being identical, nor the remedies given by them co-extensive.—CHETWYND v. ALLEN, [1899] 1 Ch. 353; 68 L. A. soon after became bkpt., & nearly three years afterwards C. discovered, for the first time, the nature of the transaction between A. & B., whereupon he filed a bill against the latter to be relieved from the mtges.:—Held: he was entitled to the relief sought & his claim had not been barred by acquiescence or confirmation whilst he was ignorant of the facts constituting his equity.—WALL v. COCKERELL (1863), 10 H. Misrepresentation—Fraud.]—Pltf. relying upon a false representation of her solr. that it was necessary to raise money to pay off an old mtge. on her sister's estate, & that she herself would not incur any liability by so doing, executed a mtge. of her estate in favour of deft. The solr. applied the mtge. money for his own purposes, & the fraudulent nature of the transaction was not discovered until his death:—Held: the mtge. must be set aside.—LEE v. ANGAS (1866), 7 Ch. 3643. —— —— Registered title.]—A son who was heir-at-law to his father, who was one of the exors. & trustees of his father's will, though he had not proved the will, & whose Christian names & description were identical with those of his father, after his father's death, executed mtges. of freehold & leasehold property of the father & applied the mtge. money to his own purposes. He handed over the title deeds to the mtgees. The transaction took place without the knowledge of his mother & sister, who were co-trustees & co-extrices. with him, & who had proved the will. The will had not been registered in the Middlesex Registry, though the property was situate in that county. The mtge. deeds were registered. They purported to the executed by the absolute owner of the property, & the solr. who acted for both parties believed the son to be the absolute owner. The son told him nothing about the father's will. The solr. searched the Middlesex Registry. The son took a beneficial interest under the trusts of the father's will. After the son's death the fraud was discovered, & the mother & sister, as trustees of the father's will, brought an action against the mtgees., claiming a declaration that the mtges. were void against them, & delivery up of the title deeds. The other beneficiaries under the will were made defts.:—Held: the son in executing the mtge. deeds was personating his father; the deeds were forgeries & passed nothing to the mtgees., except the son's beneficial interest under the father's will; & the mtgees. could obtain no title by virtue of Middlesex Registry Act, 1708

K., who was not a man of much education, & employed E. from time to time in relation to his property, & had implicit confidence in E., had signed the deed on his advice, but did not know that it was a mtge. & had not instructed E. to obtain a mtge. E. misappropriated the money & absconded. 3645. —— By conduct.]—W. was solr. & banker of pltf. co., & was also its managing director, & as banker & manager he kept the co.'s accounts. He was also one of the four trustees of a settlement & solr. to the trust. In 1892 W., as solr. to the settlement trustees, received £9,000, part of the trust funds, & paid it into his own account at his private bank pending re-investment. Subsequently, on W.'s advice, the directors of the co. resolved to replace certain existing mtges. of their property by one mtge. at a lower rate of interest, leaving the mode of raising the money entirely to W. W. then, without the knowledge of the directors, made an entry in his ledger purporting to transfer the £9,000 to the credit of the " mtge. account " of the co., & he also prepared a mtge. by the co. to himself & his co-trustees to secure the £9,000, with interest, on the co.'s property. At a meeting of the directors in June, 1893, W. produced the mtge. engrossed for execution, & it was then & there sealed with the co.'s seal & signed by two directors as well as by the co.'s secretary, a clerk of W.'s, but no cash actually passed, as the directors knew. The deed was then given to or left with W., who kept it in his own possession, & wrote to one of his co-trustees informing him of the mtge. investment of the £9,000. The deed was not entered on the co.'s register of mtges. In 1895 W. absconded & was adjudicated bkpt., when it was discovered that he had misappropriated the £9,000.

In an action by a co. to set aside a mtge. on the grounds (a) that the mtge. was only an escrow & not intended to become operative as a complete deed until the money was paid to the mtgors.; & (b) that the mtgees. never gave & that the co. never got the mtge. consideration :—Held : the mtge. was valid & binding on the co., for it was sealed & delivered by the co. to W. as a perfect deed & immediately operative, & was not merely an escrow; & the co. had by their conduct enabled W. as their manager & banker to represent to the mtgees., that their, the mtgees.', money was invested on the security of the co.'s property.—LONDON FREEHOLD & LEASEHOLD PROPERTY CO. v. SUFFIELD, [1897] 2 Ch. 608; 66 L. 3646. —— As to nature & contents—Plea of non est factum.]—W., who was formerly a managing clerk to H., a solr., was his nominee & trustee in respect of certain building speculations on land at E. belonging to H. W. left H.'s employment & was shortly afterwards requested by H. to execute certain deeds transferring the E. property, which he did. One of the deeds signed by W. was a mtge. between him & P. This mtge. was subsequently transferred to A., who sued W. to recover payment of the principal & interest which he as mtgor. had covenanted to pay in the usual form. W. set up a plea of non est factum, the deed having been signed under a misrepresentation as to its nature & contents :—Held : W. executed the deed knowing it purported to deal with the property, & therefore it was not sufficient for him, in order to support a plea of non est factum, to show that a misrepresentation was made to him as to its contents.—HOWATSON v. WEBB, [1908] 1 Ch. 1; 77 L. 3647. —— —— ——.]—A married woman entitled to a reversionary interest was induced by her husband to execute a document which he represented to be a power of attorney enabling him to raise money at some future time. It was in fact a mtge. of a reversionary interest to which she was entitled for £12,000 containing a personal covenant for payment by the wife. The wife knew that if her husband did eventually raise money under the document it would be raised out of her reversionary interest. She did not intend to create a present charge or incur any personal liability. The mtgees. brought this action against the husband & wife for foreclosure & judgment in their covenants. The wife pleaded, among other defences, non est factum :—Held : the husband's misrepresentation was as to the nature & character of the deed, & the plea was good as to the whole deed, & even if the charge on the wife's reversionary interest were valid, the defence ought to prevail

P. gave notice of repurchase, & demanded an account, which was at first refused, & when delivered was imperfect. Without having made tender, he filed his bill on the day before that on which the right of repurchase would, under the terms of the arrangement, expire, praying for an account & reconveyance. 3685. —— On bankruptcy of guarantors of mortgage debt—Express provision in guarantee.]—Where a guarantee society contracted to pay the principal & interest due on a mtge. on the mtgor. making default in payment thereof, it was held that the guarantee society did not contract to indemnify the policy-holder against any loss under her security, & accordingly, that in the winding-up of the guarantee society the costs of valuing her security & proving her claim came under the heading of mtgee.'s costs or costs of proof, & must be disallowed because under the winding-up rules creditors are not entitled to the costs of proving their claim.—Re LAW GUARANTEE TRUST & ACCIDENT SOCIETY, LTD. 3686. Advances for maintenance of live stock.]—A. gave his acceptance to B. for £18,700, payable, six months after date, on Feb. 5, 1867, & it was discounted by the Bank of C. A. mortgaged a station & also mortgaged the stock upon it to B. to secure the repayment of £18,700, with interest at 12½ per cent., on the day above mentioned, & to secure the payment of any bill which the mtgee. might receive, take, make, or indorse by way of renewal or in substitution for the acceptance, or on account of all or any part of the sum therein mentioned, or on any other account incidental thereto. It was also stipulated in the mtge. of the stock that if default should be made in payment by the mtgor. of the licence fees, or rent, charges, fines, penalties & other charges which should become payable in respect of the station or run, or the stock thereon, or in relation thereto, the mtgee. might pay it, & the run, stock, etc., should be chargeable therewith. The bill was renewed from time to time, B. paying the discounts to the bank on A.'s behalf, & debiting A. with the amount in an account current rendered to A., in which he charged A. with interest & mercantile commissions:—Held: (1) notwithstanding this mode of keeping the accounts, the amount of the advances for discounts was secured by the mtge.; (2) advances for payment of Govt. rent due & for scab licences for sheep might be charged to the mtgee., but sheep-wash could not.—FENTON v. BLACKWOOD (1874), L. 3687. Advances for carrying on business—Company mortgagor in liquidation—Whether payable in priority to debenture holders.]—Under agreements made between a co. & G., from whom the co. had previously bought its works, G. was to advance money to the co., & all moneys due to the co. were to be received by G., who was to apply these moneys & also the money to be advanced by him in paying wages & salries & other outgoings for the business of the co., & subject thereto was to repay himself. An order was made for winding up the co., under which G. & the liquidators, with the sanction of the Vice-Chancellor, made an agreement for an advance by G. of further sums on similar terms. G. advanced money for the payment of rent, rates, wages, & outgoings; a large balance remained due to him. The leasehold property, machinery, & plant of the co. were sold by the liquidators:—Held: the costs of carrying on the business were not payable out of the mtged. property in priority to debentures as costs of preservation, & subject to the costs of realising the property, the fund belonged to the debenture holders in priority to the claims of G. or the liquidators for the costs so incurred.—Re REGENT'S CANAL IRONWORKS CO., Ex p. GRISSELL (1875), 3 Ch. 3689. Cost of repairs—Not when carried out by receiver—Without authority of mortgagee.]—First mtgees. of leasehold premises, acting under the powers of Conveyancing & Law of Property Act, 1881 (c. 41), appointed as receiver the manager of a guarantee society which had guaranteed them against loss on their mtge. The mtgors. were under covenant with their lessor to keep the premises in repair, & were under covenant with the first mtgees. to observe the covenants of the lease. The premises being out of repair, the receiver put them into repair, & paid the cost out of moneys found by the society. These repairs were not authorised in writing by the first mtgees., & the cost of them was in excess of the rents & profits in the hands of the receiver. In an action for foreclosure by the first mtgees. against the second mtgee. & the mtgors.:—Held: in taking the account of what was due to the first mtgees. under their security, the cost of these repairs, assuming them to be necessary & proper, ought not to be allowed, whether such cost was to be treated as a payment by the receiver or by the first mtgees. themselves.—WHITE v. METCALF, [1903] 2 Ch. 567; 72 L. 3692. Life insurance premiums—Where express provision in mortgage deed—Failure of mortgagor to pay—Effect of limit of amount payable on mortgage.]—In a mtge. security, H. covenanted with C. & co. to pay the principal sum £6,648 3*s.* 4*d.* & interest thereon at 5 per cent., etc., & that he would pay during the life of R. the premiums on three policies of insurance, & that in case of default it should be lawful for C. & co. to pay any sums requisite for keeping on foot or renewing the policies, & it was further agreed, that the sums that should be so advanced should be charged upon the mtged. premises, & carry interest at 5 per cent., & be raised in like manner as the other moneys thereby secured: provided, that the total amount of the moneys secured & to be ultimately recoverable by virtue of the mtge. security, exclusive of the sums of £3,000 & £2,000 secured by bonds, being part of the said principal sum, in respect whereof the proper ad valorem stamp duties had been already paid, should not exceed the sum of £3,000; the stamp impressed on the mtge. security covered only the sum of £8,000:—Held: the master was correct in finding the amount due to the mtgees. to consist of the principal sum originally advanced, & a further sum, being the amount of moneys advanced in payment of certain only of the premiums due on the three policies of assurance, altogether amounting to the sum of £8,000, & also of the further sums of £3,417 17*s.* 7*d.* & £497 14*s.* 6*d.*, being interest due respectively on the original principal sums of £6,648 3*s.* 4*d.* & £1,351 16*s.* 8*d.*, the amount paid in respect of such premiums.—RICHARDS v. MACCLESFORD, COCKS v. EDWARDS (1841), 10 L. 3693. —— —— ——.]—A tenant for life, with remainder to his first & other sons by his then wife in tail male, remainder to himself in fee, being desirous of raising a sum of £12,500 on the security of his estate, applied to a life assurance society, & a deed of mtge. was entered into between the mtgor. of the one part & four persons of the other who were trustees of the society, but were not so named in the mtge. deed. The deed recited that there was no probability of the mtgor. having issue by his then wife, & recited that a policy of assurance in the said society had been effected, whereby three directors of the co. assured to the said four persons, trustees, the sum of £13,000 in case of the death of the mtgor. leaving male issue by his then wife, & in case the mtgor. should keep up the annual premium regularly. The deed then witnessed that, in consideration of £12,500 the life estate, & also the reversion of the mtgor., were conveyed to the four trustees by way of mtge.; & it was provided that, in case the mtgor. should neglect or refuse to pay the premiums, it should be lawful for the mtgees. to pay them, & that all such sums so paid by them should be charged on the hereditaments thereby conveyed. Another mtge. was made shortly after between the same parties by way of further charge, accompanied by a similar policy. The mtgor. paid the premiums on the policies for about four years; the directors then reduced the amount of the premiums & he continued to pay the reduced amount for three years longer. He then ceased to pay the premiums altogether. The co. debited his account in their books with the annual amounts, & added them to their mtge. debt. The mtgor. died without leaving issue male, & on taking the accounts in a mtgees.' suit against the estate, the chief clerk disallowed to the assurance co. the amounts with which they had debited the estate on account of the premiums:—Held: the co. were entitled, by the terms of the mtge. deed to be allowed the sums with which they had so debited the mtgor.'s estate.—FITZWILLIAM (EARL) v. PRICE (1858), 31 L. T. O. S. 389; 4 Jur. N. S. 889.

3694. —— —— —— Right to recover by action.]—Deft. by deed of mtge. reciting a loan of £12,500 by pltfs. to deft. upon the security of a demise of deft.'s life-interest in certain property & a conveyance of a reversion in fee, & also by a policy for £13,000 in the Norwich Union Life Assurance Office, payable within three months after the death of deft. "in case he should leave issue male by his then present wife living at his death," deft. covenanted that he would "from time to time during his natural life, & so long as the said sum of £12,500, or any part thereof, or any interest for the same, should remain due & owing on the said security, continue & keep on foot the benefit of the said recited policy of assurance, & pay or cause to be paid the yearly & other premiums, etc., & would not permit or suffer or do any act whereby the said policy might be forfeited or vacated," etc. The deed also contained a proviso, that, in case deft. should neglect to pay the premiums, it should be lawful for pltfs. to pay the same, & to charge the payments so made upon the hereditaments thereby charged. The deed contained no covenant by deft. to repay pltfs. the sums they might pay to keep the policy alive. Deft. paid the interest & premiums regularly down to the year 1848, but since that time, there being then no possibility of his having any issue by his then wife, he had discontinued to pay the premiums. The annual premiums accruing up to the present time were placed to the credit of the office in an account kept by them, called their "Policy Premium Account," & regularly debited year by year by the office in the mtge. account of deft., according to the practice of the office, but deft. had no notice of this course of dealing. Pltfs. having brought an action against deft. upon his covenant for payment of the premiums, deft. pleaded payment of 1*s.* into court. Upon a special case stating these facts:—Held: assuming pltfs. to have paid the premiums, they were not entitled to more than nominal damages. Semble: the course of dealing stated did not amount to evidence that they had paid them.—BROWNE v. PRICE 1858), 4 C. 3695. —— —— Whether commission to insurance agent included.]—Pltf. mortgaged her life interest in a fund to defts., it being part of the agreement that a policy should be effected on her life, & the premiums be secured on the mtged. property. In an action for redemption the chief clerk found that £173 19*s.* 1*d.*, "premiums paid on policies," was due from pltf. to defts. L., a solr. & agent to all the parties, paid the premiums to the insurance offices, receiving from them 5 per cent. commission. On summons to vary the chief clerk's certificate by the amount of the commission, on the ground that the "premiums paid on policies" only amounted to £165 5*s.* 0*d.* :—Held : after the premiums had been paid to the insurance offices, the mtgor. had no interest in them. 3696. —— Insurance company mortgagees—Extra premiums.]—By an indenture dated Nov. 14, 1837, in consideration of a sum of £6,800 advanced by an assurance co., G. covenanted to pay to the co. an annuity of £800 during his life, & he further assigned his interest in certain sums of stock to secure payment of the same. G. further covenanted that in case the co. should, at any time thereafter, insure any sum or sums of money not exceeding £6,800 on the life of G. & should pay any additional insurance by reason of G. going beyond the seas, he, G., would pay to the co. all such sum & sums of money as shall be advanced by them as & for an additional premium in respect of his going abroad, etc. : & that all & every the sums so advanced should be a charge upon the premises thereinbefore assigned. In the year 1842 G. went to reside abroad. In Jan. 1842, when he was about to embark, one year's additional premium was paid to the co., upon the understanding from an officer of the co. that the co. had paid, or would immediately have to pay, an additional premium to that amount. The co., however, effected no insurance except with itself. This was done by means of a policy dated in 1837, & executed in the same form as all other policies, whereby in consideration of an annuity of £329 per annum to be paid during the life of G., the sum of £6,800 was assured to be paid to one branch of the co. by another branch of the same co. A further sum of £958 was insured on the life of G. by a policy effected by one branch of the co. with another branch of the same co. in Nov. 1839. The co. claimed the annual payments of the additional premiums, which they alleged had been advanced by them from 1843 to 1855, when G. returned to Europe :—Held : the co. were not entitled to charge for alleged payments in respect of policies effected by one branch of their office with another branch of the same office.—GREY v. ELLISON (1856), 1 Giff. 438 ; 25 L. 3697. —— Right to payment on death of assured.]—By a marriage settlement a policy of assurance on the life of C. was assigned to trustees for the benefit of the wife, for her separate use, for life, & after her death as she should appoint. The husband covenanted that he would pay the premiums, & in default the trustees were authorised to apply the income for that purpose. Subsequently, the wife appointed the reversion in the policy by way of mtge. to secure sums of money advanced to her, with interest at 5 per cent. The husband & the trustees refused to pay the premiums, & they were paid by the mtgees. On the death of C. the mtgees. claimed to be repaid out of the policy moneys the sums they had advanced for keeping the policy on foot, with interest at 5 per cent. :—Held : they were entitled to immediate payment of the premiums paid by them, with interest at 4 per cent., & to a charge for the remaining 1 per cent. upon the reversion of the policy moneys.—GILL v. DOWNING (1874), L. Right of mortgagee—Debt due to mortgagor.]—A. executed a mtge. in favour of his bankers, M. & B., to secure any balance which might at any time be due upon his banking account, either to them or to the persons who should for the time being constitute the banking firm. A. became indebted on his account with M. & B., & also, after B.'s death, with M. & D., & in 1838, the balance on his account exceeded £3,000, when the banking business, with all debts & securities due to or held by the firm, was assigned to pltfs. They afterwards employed A., & became indebted to him for work & materials. A. became bkpt.; & the property comprised in the mtge. was not sufficient to pay the balance due from A., after paying off several prior incumbrances, the amount of which had not yet been ascertained:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to set off the debt due from them to A., against the balance due from A. to the banking firm.—CLARK v. CORT (1840), Cr. & Ph. 154; 10 L. 3722 i. Solicitor & client—General allegations of error.]—In ordinary cases the rule is, that the establishment of one mistake is sufficient to induce the ct. to give a decree entitling the party to surcharge & falsify an account. But where the relation of attorney & client subsists, the ordinary rule does not prevail, for there, though the party only alleges generally that the accounts, as settled, are erroneous, the ct. will, if sufficient cause be shown, make a decree opening those accounts.—LAWLESS v. MANSFIELD, MANSFIELD v. LAWLESS (1841), 1 Dr. & War. 557.—IR.

3723. —— Balance in favour of solicitor.]—(1) Settlement of accounts between attorney & client, not conclusive; the nature of their connection, excepting their accounts from the operation of the general rule in equity. Therefore accounts settled & signed, & where vouchers are delivered up, & a note given for the balance, will be re-opened at a very considerable distance of time after such settlement, where the parties stand in the relative situation to each other of attorney & client, agent & principal; & where the balance is in favour of the former under the peculiar circumstances affecting this case.

(2) Now, I apprehend, that, in the dealings & transactions of parties of this description, & when an account of those dealings & transactions has been ordered to be taken by the ct., a person standing in the situation of solr., agent, general manager, & director, & having [the management of] the whole concerns of the other party, & having made such other party execute instruments of this sort, which are therefore liable to suspicion, it becomes necessary not merely to rely on the instruments themselves, but to show that the advances were actually made (LORD REDESDALE). —LEWES v. MORGAN (1817), 5 Price, 42; 146 E. 3725. —— No independent advice—Misrepresentation as to identity of mortgagee.]—Accounts between a mtgee. & mtgor. in the position of solr. & client, although stated & signed more than thirty years ago, were opened on the grounds that the client had no independent advice & signed without examination or explanation, that the accounts contained improper charges, & that a third person was represented to be the mtgee.—WARD v. SHARP (1884), 53 L. 3726. —— ——.]—K. was a builder, & from 1883 to 1904 employed C. as his solr., who financed him in numerous transactions. No bills of costs were delivered, but from time to time accounts were stated between them, & the amount due for loans, interest & costs were agreed, & C. took mtges. for the agreed amounts. By 1904 all the mtges., except two, had been paid off, either by sales or by K. paying off & taking reconveyances of the mtges., & on each occasion the amount due was agreed. In 1905 C. died, & in 1906 his exors. brought an action against K. to enforce the two subsisting mtges. K. counterclaimed for an account of all the transactions & dealings between himself & C. from 1883, alleging, as the fact was, that he had had no independent advice, & in some of the settled accounts he proved errors in respect of interest, & that he had been charged profit costs prior to 58 & 59 Vict. c. 25:—Held: K. was entitled to open all the accounts & to tax, surcharge & falsify, & his right was not barred by Stat. 3731. Mortgagee acting through agent—Account of sums received from agent not sufficient.]—Defts. had by the judgment in the action been held to be mtgees. in possession of certain mtged. estates, & the usual accounts & inquiries as against mtgees. in possession were directed. Defts. brought in an account purporting to show their receipts in respect of the rents & profits of the mtged. estates, but which in fact only showed certain lump sums received by them from B., then deceased, their agent. On motion by the pltf. for a further & better account:—Held: defts. were bound to render the further account, for the receipts of B. were as between pltf. & defts. the receipts of defts.; defts. were bound to deliver an account showing not only what they had received from B. but what he had received from the tenants, & it was a question not of technicality but of substance, for without the knowledge derived from such an account pltf. would be unable to proceed on the inquiry as to wilful default, which was a matter of surcharge, & the death of deft.'s agent could not excuse defts. from this liability.—NOYES v. POLLOCK (1885), 30 Ch. D. 336; 55 L. J. Ch. 54; 53 L. T. 430; 33 W. R. 787, C. A.

3732. Effect of purchase by mortgagee.]—To a bill by the devisees of the equity of redemption of a plantation in the West Indies, against parties alleged to be mtgees., praying an account & reconveyance defts. pleaded, that judgment had been obtained against exors. of testator in the colony, & execution issued, under which the plantation had been sold to defts., & averred, that the proceedings, etc., were in conformity with, & according to, the due course of law in the said island. The ct. allowed the plea.—VERCHILD v. PAULL (1836), 1 Keen, 87; 5 L. J. Ch. 284; 48 E. R. 239.

3733. Mortgagee must be in possession as mortgagee.]—He [mtgee.] was . . . made to account not only for what he actually received, but for what he might without wilful default have received. . . . It follows . . . that cts. of Equity were very slow to decide that possession had been taken & would not do so unless satisfied that the mtgee. in possession took possession in his capacity of mtgee. without any reasonable ground for believing himself to hold in any other capacity (RIGBY, L.J.).—GASKELL v. GOSLING, [1896] 1 Q. B. After Assignment.

3734. Whether mortgagee remains liable—General rule.]—A mtgee. in possession assigned the mtged. premises to the son of the mtgor., a woman, upon an account stated & payment of the amount due to him; in a suit for redemption by the mtgor. against the mtgee. & her son, the mtgor. insisted that the assignment was a breach of trust:—Held: the mtgee. must account for all the profits both before & after the assignment, & reconvey or procure reconveyance to the mtgor.—VENABLES v. FOYLE (1661), Nels. 60; 1 Cas. in Ch. 2; Freem. 3735. —— ——.]—A. mortgaged leaseholds to B., who entered into possession, received the rents, & sold a part under a power. A. afterwards mortgaged the equity of redemption to C., & A. & B. then assigned the premises & mtge. debt to D. 3736. —— ——.]—(1) A mtgee. is accountable, not merely for his actual receipts whilst in possession of the mtged. property, but also for whatever is received by those to whom he transfers possession under an arrangement inoperative to transfer title, & in derogation of the rights of the mtgor.

(2) A mtgee. who in a redemption suit sets up & fails to prove an absolute title to the mtged. property, & is then found to have been at the date of the suit, overpaid as mtgee., will not only not be allowed his costs of suit but may have costs given against him.—NATIONAL BANK OF AUSTRALASIA v. UNITED HAND-IN-HAND & BAND OF HOPE CO. 3737. —— Not where assignment by order of court.]—(1) The liability of a mtgee. in possession, who assigns his mtge., to account to the mtgor. for the profits of the estate after the assignment, exists only where the assignment is volunatry, & not where it is made by order of the ct.

(2) In an action to redeem a mtge., the mtgee. raised a defence under which he no longer treated himself as mtgee., but laid claim to part of the mtged. estate:—Held: he might properly be made to pay the costs of the action.—HALL v. HEWARD (1886), 32 Ch. PART XVI. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 1.—A.

3733 i. Mortgagee must be in possession as mortgagee.]—In a redemption suit by the second mtgee. against the first, it appeared that the equity of redemption had become vested in the first mtgee., & that he had entered into possession & had cut & removed timber to a greater value than the amount due on his mtge.:—Held: he was bound to account only for the value of such timber & occupation rent as was taken or received by him as mtgee. not as owner of the equity of redemption.—STEINHOFF v. BROWN (1865), 11 Gr. 114.—CAN.

m. When liability arises.]—It is not always necessary for a mtgee. who has been in possession to produce his accounts on taking proceedings to foreclose. This necessity arises, first, when the mtgor. has deposited the principal, leaving the question of interest to be settled on an adjustment of the account; secondly, when he has deposited all that he admits or alleges to be due; thirdly, when he pleads & undertakes to prove that the whole of the principal & interest has been liquidated by the usufruct of the property.—FORBES v. AMEEROONISSA BEGUM (1866), 14 W. 3752. —— —— Mortgagee acting through agent.]—(1) Where a mtgee. in possession of leaseholds, being resident at a distance, employs an agent, & the property is advertised & let at intervals, but vacant for a long period, the mtgee. acting on the agent's advice in not letting, such mtgee. is not chargeable under a decree for wilful default in non-receipt of rent. But where a tenant is suffered to remain for several years in possession, paying no rent, & none being demanded by the mtgee., he is liable for wilful default as to such rent.

(2) Where a mtgee. in possession pays rent to the ground landlord, he is to be allowed such rent in account, but not after he has purchased the reversion; but he will be allowed payments made to a person for taking charge of the premises to save them from deterioration.

(3) The onus lies, primâ facie, on the party charging wilful default in not letting, to prove it; but if he shows that the property can be let, or has been let, the onus is transferred to the other party to show that he has not been guilty of wilful default, but has been vigilant.—BRANDON v. BRANDON (1862), 10 W. (2) The mtge. was of a leasehold public house to secure £700, & such further sums as might become due from the mtgor. to the mtgees. for money advanced, goods sold, or otherwise. The mtge. contained a power of sale, & it was declared that the sale moneys should after payment of the costs of sale, or in anywise consequent on the mtgor.'s default, & the re-imbursement to the mtgees. of all moneys paid by them for insurance or repairs, or for keeping on foot the lease & the licenses, be applied in payment of the principal & interest due on the mtge., & subject thereto, in payment of the principal & interest due to a second mtgee., & that the surplus should be paid to the mtgor., "provided always that the total amount to be recovered by the mtgee. under these presents shall not exceed £900." The property was sold under the power, & on the account being taken by the ct. it was certified that at the time of the completion of the sale there was due to the mtgees. £1,415 principal & £615 interest, & that they had or might have received £396 for rents & profits. The property sold for £2,650. The £1,415 included the £700 lent & £88 for goods supplied, the rest of it was made up of payments of rent & fire insurance:—Held: the proviso limiting the amount recoverable did not apply to interest, or to outgoings incident to the possession of the premises which the mtgor. was bound to reimburse to the mtgees., & as the sum due for moneys lent & goods supplied did not exceed the limit, the mtgees. were entitled to retain out of the proceeds of sale the balance due to them.

& after her death upon trust for C. in fee. In 1882 C. mortgaged his reversion in fee to the widow, who was in receipt of the rents & profits of the property as tenant for life. She died in 1897, & her exors. brought an action of foreclosure against C., who had made no payment either of principal or interest since the date of the mtge., & who set up the Statutes of Limitations. At the trial C. submitted to the usual judgment for foreclosure with arrears of interest limited to six years prior to the date of the writ, but counterclaimed damages against the estate of the tenant for life for non-repair of the cottages & depreciation of the marsh lands, alleging that the latter had been continuously mown against all custom, & had thereby been greatly impoverished, & offered to redeem on the footing that any damages awarded him should be set off in account against what was due on the mtge., & contended that on redeeming he was only bound to pay six years' arrears of interest prior to the date of the writ. Testator had in 1874 granted a seven years' lease of the marsh lands, with a covenant by the lessee not to mow them oftener than once in any one year, but to keep them during the term in good condition, & the tenant for life in granting subsequent leases of the same lands had inserted covenants as to mowing similar to that in testator's lease. The cottages were out of repair, & the marsh lands had been depreciated to some extent by mowing:—Held: C. was entitled to damages for non-repair of the cottages, but not for depreciation of the marsh lands, the tenant for life in her dealings with the latter having followed the course that had been adopted by testator.—DINGLE v. COPPEN, COPPEN v. DINGLE, [1899] 1 Ch. 726; 68 L. 3769. Sale by mortgagee under power—Purchaser let into possession before completion.]—(1) If a mtgee. in possession, or a mtgee. selling under his power of sale, has reasonably expended money in permanent works on the property, he is entitled on primâ facie evidence to that effect to an inquiry whether the outlay has increased the value of the property, & if it has done so, he is entitled to be repaid his expenditure so far as it has increased such value; & in such case it is immaterial whether the mtgor. had notice of the expenditure. Notice to the mtgor. is only material when the expenditure is unreasonable, for the purpose of showing that he acquiesced in it.

(2) A mtgee. in possession sold the property under his power of sale, a day being fixed for the completion of the sale & for letting the purchaser into possession. At the request of the purchaser the mortgagee let him into possession four months before the appointed day, but did not require him to pay any rent:—Held: in an action by the mtgor. for ascertaining the amount of the balance due to him, the mtgee. could not be charged with an occupation rent for the interval during which the purchaser had been in possession before the appointed day.

A. In General.

3775. General rule—Any expense incurred by reason of taking possession.]—WHITE v. CITY OF LONDON BREWERY CO., No. 3761, ante.

3776. Costs of ejectment.]—HORLOCK v. SMITH, No. 3851, post.

3777. ——.]—Mtgee., after the death of the mtgor. & the person supposed to be his heir, found the mtged. premises, which had been left vacant & out of repair, occupied by lodgers placed there by M., the owner of the adjoining house, who had entered by breaking through the party wall. Possession having been obtained by the mtgee., M. entered with a band of men & recovered possession. The mtgee. brought ejectment, upon the advice of counsel against M., & obtained a verdict. M. had previously brought an action of trespass against the mtgee., in which he was nonsuited:—Held: the mtgee. was entitled to receive the costs of the proceedings in ejectment out of the estate of the deceased mtgor., but not the costs of defending the action of trespass.—OWEN v. CROUCH (1857), 5 W. R. 545.

3778. Expenses of working mines.]—(1) A mtgee. in possession of mines expended large sums beyond the amount covered by his security in working the mines, paying agents, etc.; & also in keeping down the interest of prior incumbrances:—Held: the mtgees. were rightly allowed these sums with interest.

(2) It requires a very special case of vexatious conduct to induce the ct. to make a mtgee. pay the costs of a redemption suit.

An overstatement on the part of mtgees. in possession of a colliery as to the balance represented by them as remaining due on their mtge., & their refusal to furnish accounts to the mtgors., except on being paid the expenses of so doing:—Held: not such vexatious conduct as to deprive them of their costs of a redemption suit.—NORTON v. COOPER (1854), 5 De G. 3789. Annual charge fixed by mortgage.]—(1) If a mtgee. unequivocally refuses a proposed payment of the amount due, the mtgor. is not bound to make a formal tender of it, & the mtgee. cannot recover interest accruing subsequently. But a letter arguing that payment was not necessary, having regard to an unenforceable provision in the mtge., namely, that upon a default the mtgee. can purchase the property for the outstanding amount, is not a refusal which dispenses with the necessity of a tender. It was therefore not necessary to decide whether the above rule applied where the mtgor. had not the money or the control of it.

(2) A term in a mtge. whereby the mtgee. in possession can charge a fixed annual sum in respect of several charges & expenses of a variable amount is not invalid as giving the mtgee. an advantage which he is not entitled to exact.—CHALIKANI VENKATARAYANIM v. TUNI (ZAMINDAR) (1922), L. 3794. —— ——.]—(1) Mtgee. in possession of a West India estate is not entitled to charge the mtgor. with commission on the amount of bills paid, on the value of the consignments, or on the costs & insurance of supplies shipped for the use of the estate; but stands in precisely the same situation as a mtgee. in possession of an estate in England.

(2) Principles on which the expense of the home management of such estates is to be calculated.

It is plain that the mtgee. can charge nothing for his own trouble or superintendence in any way; it is equally certain that for necessary expenses to which he has been put he may charge. The question arises upon the manner in which these shall be reckoned. If he chooses to be consignee himself, he has no commission; if he employs another, as there must be a consignee, that consignee's commission may be charged. It cannot, therefore, be at all admitted that the gain to the estate is the measure of the right to charge, for the estate would gain by saving the consignee's commission, if the mtgor. were himself consignee; & yet be could not, on that account charge it (LORD BROUGHAM, C.).—LEITH v. IRVINE (1833), 1 My. & K. 277; 39 E. He assisted in the management of the business, & charged in account certain annual sums for his assistance, under the designation of "bonuses." 3824. —— —— When improvements reasonable.]—A mtgee. under a power of sale contained in the mtge. deed, put up the estate for sale by auction, but as there was no bidder he entered into the receipt of the rents, & expended money in repairs & the erection of new buildings. On the mtgor. filing a bill for redemption, the mtgee. claimed for the money he had expended in the repairs & the erection of new buildings. In the bill it was alleged that these were not done with the consent or knowledge of the mtgor., but there was no statement made in the bill that they were unnecessary & improper:—Held: as the mtgor. had not stated in his bill that the repairs & the erection of the new buildings were unnecessary & improper, he could only have the ordinary decree, in which deft. would be allowed for what he had expended in necessary repairs & lasting improvements.—POWELL v. TROTTER (1861), 1 Drew. & Sm. 388; 4 L. 3837. Party in possession taking transfer of mortgage.]—In 1853, A. died intestate as to his real estate, but having appointed by will, never proved, his brother, B., his exor., & leaving two infant daughters his heirs in coparcenary. In 1834, one of the daughters, while still an infant, died, whereupon her moiety of her father's real estate descended upon her surviving sister, who married during infancy & was still under the disability of coverture. Upon the death of A., B. entered into possession of the whole of A.'s real estate, & received the rents thereof from that period up to his death in 1858. B., during his possession, paid the interest on a mtge. created by A. Considerable sums had also been laid out in improvements by B. Upon B.'s death, his widow continued in possession of A.'s real estate, & she paid off & took a transfer to herself of the above mtge. In 1860 a bill was filed by the surviving daughter of A. & her husband against B.' widow & administratrix & his infant heir for an account of the rents of A.'s real estate from his death in 1833. B.'s infant son, by his answer, claimed the benefit of Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), as to the whole of A.'s real estate, but at the bar the right of the female pltf. to the moiety of the lands which descended upon her from her father was admitted:—Held: the entry of B., who was named as the exor. in A.'s will, & was the uncle of his infant daughters, could not be considered as that of a stranger, & an account was directed of the rents of A.'s real estate received by B. as bailiff from A.'s death up to his death in 1858, & by B.'s widow, as mtgee. in possession since the death of B., & an inquiry was also directed as to the sums laid out in improvements by B.—PELLY v. BASCOMBE (1863), 4 Giff. 390; 2 New Rep. 263; 33 L. An agreement was entered into between B., L. & P., by which L. consented to become tenant of part of the premises when rebuilt, & to take a lease of them from P., to whom B., had assigned his interest for a term of years, & to pay P. £1,000 for the lease, & £250 a year for rent. The premises having been rebuilt, L. entered into possession, but as no lease was granted by P., did not pay the £1,000 nor the £250 a year rent. In a suit afterwards instituted by P., & to which both B. & L. were parties:—Held: (1) the accounts of what was due to L. on the mtge. were not to be taken with annual rests, as the accounts on the other side could not be taken in the same manner either as to the £1,000 or the £250 a year rent; (2) L. was a mere tenant, & though at the time a mtgee., was not mtgee. in possession, the possession being in respect of the tenancy & not of the mtge., & the agreement not having the effect of changing the relative situation of the parties in that respect. —PAGE v. LINWOOD (1837), 4 Cl. & Fin. 399; 7 E. 3870. Entry to prevent forfeiture of lease—Possession as purchaser—Subsequent transfer of mortgage.]—A mtgee. of leaseholds may take possession, even when there is no arrear of interest due, under circumstances which may not render him liable to account with annual rests, as when he enters in order to prevent a forfeiture for non-payment of ground rent or for non-assurance, etc.

A. agreed to become the purchaser of some leasehold property which was subject to mtges. He entered into possession, & after the contract had been put an end to, he obtained a transfer of the mtges., having all along continued in possession:—Held: although the circumstances would have justified the mtgees. in taking possession, still A. was not entitled to stand in the same position, & he was directed to account as mtgee. in possession with annual rests from the date of the transfer to him of the mtges.—PATCH v. WILD (1861), 30 Beav. 99; 5 L. 3875. —— ——.]—A. conveyed his estates to B., in trust to sell & pay off a mtge. & other incumbrances on the estates, & to retain a debt due to B., &, until the sale, to apply the rents in keeping down the interest on the charges, & to pay the surplus to A. B. took a transfer of the mtge., & entered into & remained in possession for twenty-four years, but did not sell the estates. For the first ten years the rents were less than the interest; but afterwards they exceeded it. A. filed a bill for an account of the rents received by B., with yearly rests, & for a reconveyance of the estates. But the ct. refused to direct the rests.—LATTER v. DASHWOOD (1834), 6 Sim. 462; 3 L. J. Ch. 149; 58 E. R. 667.

3876. —— —— Though arrears of interest paid off.]—The ordinary rule between mtgor. & mtgee. in possession is, that the ct. will not direct an account with annual rests, if there was an arrear of interest due on the mtge. at the time of the mtgee.'s taking possession.

A property was subject to a mtge. for £1,000; B. agreed with the mtgor. for the purchase of a portion of this property, & entered into possession without paying his purchase-money. In 1813 B. bought up the whole mtge. for £1,000, on which an arrear of interest of £101 was due. There was at the same time due from B., in respect of his purchase, £365. Nothing further being paid by the mtgor., B. in 1816 recovered possession of the property. The rents exceeded the amount of interest, & in 1823 the whole arrear of interest had been paid off. The ct. refused to direct annual rests.—FINCH v. BROWN (1840), 3 Beav. 70; 49 E. R. 27.

3877. On payment of principal & interest.]—(1) After the time is ascertained at which the mtge. debt of a mtgee. in possession was paid off, annual rests from that date will be made in the accounts against him, though rests were not directed by the previous orders & decrees under which those accounts were taken. Annual rests are directed in an account of occupation rent as well as in an account of rents & profits received.

(2) Where a prior decree has ordered the costs of a deft. mtgee. to be taxed, he will be entitled to his costs, though it appears at the hearing on further directions, that his debt was paid off before the commencement of the suit, & that he has set up an improper defence.—WILSON v. METCALFE (1826), 1 Russ. 530; 38 E. 3880. ——.]—In a redemption action against mtgees. in possession pltfs., who claimed to represent the original mtgor., alleged that defts. had been overpaid. Defts. by their statement of defence denied the title of pltfs. to redeem; pleaded statute of limitations; & asserted that a large amount was still due to them. At the trial pltfs.' title to redeem was not disputed, & the defence of the statute was overruled. The judgment directed the taking of the ordinary accounts in a redemption action against mtgees. in possession, including an account of what was due to defts. for principal & interest, & their taxed costs of the action; & that, on payment by pltfs. within six months after the certificate of the balance, if any, which should be found due to defts., defts. should reconvey the mtged. property to pltfs., & that, in default of payment, the action should be dismissed with costs. But, in case it should appear on taking the accounts that defts. had been overpaid, the further consideration of the action was to be adjourned. The chief clerk found by his certificate that the mtgees. went into possession in May, 1857; that the mtge. debt was fully repaid in Nov. 1866; & that at the date of the certificate there was a balance of £618 due from defts.:—Held: (1) the account must be taken against defts. with annual rests from the date at which the mtge. debt was fully paid; (2) defts. must pay the costs of the action.—ASHWORTH v. LORD (1887), 36 Ch. 3883. Sale of part of property.]—A mtgee. in possession, who sells part of the mtged. property under a power of sale in the mtge., must apply the proceeds of sale, first, in payment of interests & costs, & then either pay the balance to the mtgor., or apply it in reduction of the principal due on the mtge.; &, in taking an account against the mtgee., who has retained sale moneys beyond the interest & costs due, a rest must be made at the time of the receipt of the proceeds of sale, even although he may have entered into possession when the interest due to him was in arrear. The same rule applies where two distinct mtges. are held by the same person, who sells one of the mtged. estates.—THOMPSON v. HUDSON (1870), L. R. 10 Eq. 497; 40 L. J. Ch. 28; 23 L. T. 278; 18 W. 3884. ——.]—(1) Under a proviso in a mtge. for the capitalisation of interest in arrear for twenty-one days, a mtgee. in possession, through the default of the mtgor., is not entitled, on the accounts being taken, to charge the mtgor. with compound interest, unless he can prove that after crediting the rents received each half-year the interest was actually in arrear at the times specified in the proviso.

(2) The sale by a mtgee. in possession of part of the mtged. property does not of itself entitle the mtgor. to an account with a general rest of the rents & profits as well as of the proceeds of sale, as on the date of the receipt thereof.

(3) Unless rests have been directed in the judgment the account of rents & profits, following the usual rule, goes on without rests.

The ordinary rule is admitted that in the absence of special circumstances the account against a mtgee. in possession is not directed with rests, that is to say, the account of the rents & profits runs on from beginning to end without reference to the question whether he has at any particular time had in his hands more than sufficient to pay the interest or not, the reason being that a mtgee. is not bound to accept payment by driblets, but is entitled to have the account taken as a whole, & not to be treated as repaid until that account has been so taken. It is said there are certain exceptions. One of those is where the mtgee. has himself claimed the property, that is to say, has insisted that the mtgor. is not entitled to redeem (WARRINGTON, J.).—WRIGLEY v. GILL, [1905] 1 Ch. 241; 74 L. C. Effect of Order.

3886. Time when rests made—Whether between annual rests—Order for application of excess in reduction of principal.] — (1) Where a decree ordered, that, in taking the accounts of a mtgee. in possession, annual rests should be made, & that the rents & profits of the premises, as often as they exceeded the interest accrued due on the debt, should be applied in reduction of the principal; a rest ought to be made at the date of the receipt by the mtgee. of a sum exceeding the interest, though occurring in the interval between the annual rests. From that date the subsequent annual rests ought to be computed.

(2) An equity of redemption, being subject to a trust for sale, the mtgee. with some of the cestuis que trust of the equity of redemption, filed a bill for the sale of the premises, alleging that the whole of his principal, with an arrear of interest, was due to him, & suppressing the fact, that he had been for several years in possession; the result of the account was, that nothing was due on the mtge. when the bill was filed:—Held: the mtgee. must pay to defts. the costs of so much of the suit as related to the mtge., & the accounts & inquiries concerning it.—BINNINGTON v. HARWOOD (1825), Turn. & R. 477; 37 E. The premises were afterwards taken by the Corpn. of London, by virtue of an Act of Parliament, for making public improvements & in consequence of questions between C. & his solr. respecting the amount due upon the security, & also in consequence of notice of judgment debt due by C., the purchase-money was paid into ct. & upon a petition by C. asking for an account, & that £500 might be set apart to answer what should be found due from him to his solr., & that the surplus, after payment of the judgment debt, might be paid to C.:—Held: the amount of debt between C. & his solr. must be ascertained by the master, & the corpn. need not attend, but it must pay the costs of the petition but not of the affidavits made relating to the claims of the parties.—Ex p. COLLINS (1850), 19 L. The defence & counterclaim having been served on the purchaser under R. S. C. Ord. 22, rr. 5, 6, he moved under Ord. 22, r. 9, to have so much of the counterclaim as affected him excluded:—Held: there being a question between deft. & pltfs. Release by mortgagee—Liability of mortgagor after death of mortgagee.]—A voluntary declaration by a creditor that he intends to release his debtor from a debt, though not amounting to a release at law, may nevertheless be held in equity to be a representation which the creditor is bound to make good. Where, therefore, a mtgee., on hearing that his son in law, the mtgor., was about to sell the mtged. property, a house occupied by the mtgor., in order to pay off the debt, wrote that he might continue to live there without paying any rent:—Held: the mtgor. was entitled to redeem, on paying the principal, together with interest from the last day on which interest fell due, previously to the death of the mtgor.—YEOMANS v. WILLIAMS (1865), L. 3903. Deed providing for increased interest—Executed after intermediate mortgage—Receiver appointed under first mortgage.]—A first mtge. was made to secure a principal sum, with interest at 5 per cent., & was accompanied by a receivership deed in the common form. A subsequent mtge. was made to M., containing a stipulation that if the interest should be in arrear forty days, the receiver under the former deed should act, & should stand possessed of the rents, after payment of interest on the first mtge., in trust to pay the interest on M.'s mtge., & pay the ultimate surplus to the mtgor. The first mtgees. & the receiver had notice of this deed. By a subsequent deed the property was charged, in favour of the first mtgees., with an extra 1 per cent. interest on the sum secured by the first mtge. The receiver at times took possession at the instance of the first mtgees., & from the date of the last-mentioned deed interest at the increased rate was uniformly paid to the first mtgees., sometimes by the mtgor., & at other times by the receiver with his consent, no notice ever having been given to the receiver to pay interest to M., or that his interest was in arrear. A foreclosure suit having been instituted by the first mtgees., a decree was made directing the usual account of what was due on the first mtge. The Chief Clerk certified the whole principal to be due, but the V.-C. directed him to review his certificate, & to charge the first mtgees. with everything they had received from the receiver in excess of 5 per cent.:—Held: this decision could not be maintained, for that whether the extra 1 per cent. was rightfully received or not, it was neither paid nor received in respect of the principal moneys & interest secured by the first mtge., & could not be attributed to it, nor taken into account in ascertaining what was due on the first mtge., & that M.'s claim, if any, in respect of such extra payments must be enforced by some independent proceeding; M. had no such claim, for that the trust to pay M.'s interest out of the surplus rents did not attach unless & until the receiver had notice that such interest was in arrear.

l. Bargain for extra interest between derivative mortgagee & mortgagor—Whether insurer to benefit of original

It was contended on behalf of defts., M., that the appointment of the receiver by the deed of even date with pltfs.' first mtge. . . . did not constitute the receiver for all purposes the agent of the mtgor. & that, in fact, the receiver must be deemed when in possession to have received the rents as agent of the pltfs., & that the only object & effect of the receivership deed was to prevent pltfs. from being charged in the accounts for wilful neglect or default. No direct authority was cited for this proposition & if it were necessary now to decide it I should hold that it could not be maintained & that the receiver must be treated as being for all purposes the agent of the mtgor. SUB-SECT. 2.—NO EXPRESS PROVISION FOR PAYMENT.

3908. Interest payable.]—A solr. paid off with his own money a mtge. debt on a client's property, which was thereupon reconveyed to the client. The solr. took the title deeds by way of equitable mtge. with a written memorandum. Afterwards he induced another client to advance a smaller sum on a proposed mtge. of the property. The money was paid to the solr. by the second client, & a mtge. was prepared for execution by the first client, who, however, never executed it, nor was aware of the intended security. The title deeds were kept by the solr. apart from other deeds of the mtgor., but were not placed in any box of the proposed mtgee. On the solr. becoming bkpt. :—Held : the second client had a valid security on the property as against the assignees, & the property having been sold by arrangement, he was entitled to be paid his principal & interest & costs in priority to any claim on the part of the assignees in respect of the residue of the sum secured.—Re EVERY, Ex p. HIRTZEL, Ex p. HINE (1858), 3 De G. & J. 464 ; 44 E. 3909. —— Agreement to secure money "with interest"—Covenants for payment restricted to principle.]—A mtge. deed recited an agreement to secure the money "with interest," but the proviso for redemption on a day certain, & the covenant to pay & the trusts of the produce of a sale, were restricted to the principal only :—Held : interest was payable.—ASHWELL v. STAUNTON (1861), 30 Beav. 52 ; 54 E. R. 808.

3910. —— Assignment absolute in terms—Actually by way of mortgage.]—The solr. to the trustees & exors. of testator advanced money to legatees entitled subject to a life interest, & charged no interest. He took assignments from such legatees, in terms absolute, & died insolvent. A creditor's suit was instituted to administer his estate, & the question was, it being admitted at the bar that the assignments were not absolute under the circumstances, whether interest was payable at 5 or 4 per cent., & how the costs should be borne :—Held : interest at 5 per cent. must be allowed, the general costs to be borne by the assignees' estate, those of a principal creditor by the assignors.

Semble : the ct. will lay down no general rule as to the rates of interest in cases of assignments redeemable.—Re UNSWORTH'S TRUST (1865), 2 Drew. & Sm. 337 ; 12 L. T. 49 ; 13 W. R. 448 ; 62 E. R. 649.

3911. —— Mortgage by deposit of title deeds—Subsequent memorandum not mentioning interest.]—A co. had borrowed from a bank a sum of money, to be repaid with interest, & deposited a lease as security. Afterwards a document was drawn up by the co., stating that the lease had been deposited as security for the loan, without mentioning the interest. The bank refused to give up the deed until the whole of the interest as well as the loan had been repaid :—Held : in an action of detinue for the lease, the written document was not conclusive against the bank as to the terms of the loan, & parol evidence was rightly admitted to show that the lease had been intended as security for the interest as well as the principal.—PENTREGUINNY FUEL CO. v. YOUNG (1866), 12 Jur. An action by a mtgor. against a mtgee. to set aside the mtge. having been dismissed with costs, which were ordered to be paid by pltf. to deft., judgment was given for foreclosure on deft.'s counterclaim, & an account was directed of what was due to deft. for principal, interest, the mtge. reserving 5 per cent., & the taxed costs of the action. On appeal the judgment was affirmed with costs, the Ct. of Appeal giving deft. leave to add the taxed costs of the appeal to his security. In carrying in his accounts deft. charged pltf. with interest at 4 per cent. on the taxed costs under the original judgment from the date of the judgment, & also interest at 4 per cent. on the taxed costs of the appeal from the date of the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal:—Held: no interest on the costs under the original judgment could be charged by deft., the mtgee.; but as to the costs of the appeal, interest at 4 per cent. was chargeable, though only from the date of the taxing master's certificate, & not from the date of the judgment of the Ct. of Appeal.—EARDLEY v. KNIGHT (1889), 41 Ch. 3942. —— ——.]—A mtge. was made for security of money with interest at 5 per cent. with a covenant that in case the money were not paid within one month after it became payable, that then 6 per cent. should be paid for interest; & upon a bill to redeem, the question was only concerning interest, whether 5 or 6 should be paid, & decreed that in this case 5 per cent. only should be paid, because the original agreement was for 5, & the covenant to pay 6 but a nomine pœnæ. But where the original agreement is to pay 6 per cent. with a proviso that if the money be paid within one or two months, etc., after it becomes payable, that then the mtgee. will accept 5, there, unless the money be paid within the time agreed, the ct. will allow 6 per cent.—ANON. (2) Interest computed by the master's report shall carry interest. But where the mtgor. signed an account, whereby so much is admitted to be due for interest, this will not carry interest unless the mtgor. by any letter or writing under his hand agrees to make it principal.—BROWN v. BARKHAM (1720), 1 P. But if the mtge. had been made, with a reservation of 4 per cent. interest, with a proviso that upon non-payment thereof, within a certain time after it is due, the mtgor. shall pay 5 per cent., such proviso would not be good, & has been determined several times; because where the interest is to be increased, if not paid at the day, that is but as a nomine pœnæ, & relievable in equity (LORD HARDWICKE, C.).—NICHOLLS v. MAYNARD (1747), 3 Atk. 519; 26 E. 3946. —— ——.]—There is a distinction in the Ct. of Ch., that if 5 per cent. be reserved for interest on a mtge., with a condition to accept 4 if punctually paid; this condition must be strictly performed & the debtor shall not have relief in equity after the day of payment is elapsed, because the 1 per cent. was to be abated upon a condition which is not performed. But if 4 per cent. be reserved, with an agreement that if the 4 be not punctually paid at the day, the mtgee. shall pay 5, that shall be considered as a penalty added & the ct. of equity will in such case relieve against it (LORD MANSFIELD, C.J.).—BONAFOUS v. RYBOT (1763), 3 Burr. 1370; 97 E. By a separate agreement, mtgee. covenanted not to call in the money within five years, unless the interest should be in arrear. The first half year's interest not having been tendered till after the three months, but the second half year's interest before:—Held: (1) mtgee. was only entitled to interest at 5 per cent. for the half year which had been tendered after the time; (2) in consequence of the default, he was entitled to call in his money.—STANHOPE v. MANNERS (1763), 2 Eden, 197; 28 E. 3950. —— ——.]—By a bond & disposition in security dated Nov. 9, 1910, a loan was effected on the security of a Scottish estate, the loan to be repaid on the following Whit Sunday with interest during non-payment at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable on Feb. 1, May 1, Aug. 1, & Nov. 1, in each year; & by a minute of agreement of even date with the bond it was agreed (1) that on the punctual payment of interest as thereafter modified the loan should not be called in for fourteen years, & (2) that the 5 per cent. interest stipulated for in the bond should be modified to 4 per cent. so long as the interest at said lower rate was punctually paid. By a letter of Apr. 29, 1918, the lenders demanded payment of the instalments of interest due on Feb. 1 & May 1, 1918, respectively & stated that unless the interest were in future regularly & punctually paid interest at the rate stipulated for in the bond would be exacted. On May 13 payment of interest for the two quarters at the lower rate was made & was accepted without demur. On Aug. 7 the borrower sent a cheque for the interest due on Aug. 1, but it was returned as being neither timeous nor sufficient:—Held: (1) default had been made in the punctual payment of interest, & (2) the lenders were not estopped by their conduct from insisting on their strict rights under the bond.—MACLAINE v. GATTY, [1921] 1 A. Mortgagee in possession—Right to charge higher rate.]—(1) In taking the accounts of a mtgee. in possession, the chief clerk disallowed three claims made for commission, at the rate of £5 per cent. paid to agents for receiving the rents; & on application to the ct. before certificate, the disallowance of the chief clerk was confirmed.

(2) Where the mtgee. was in possession, & there was a stipulation in the mtge. deeds for the payment of interest, at £4 10*s.* per cent. if paid regularly, & £5 per cent. if not, the ct. confirmed the chief clerk's decision, allowing £4 10*s.* per cent. —STAINS v. BANKS (1863), 9 Jur. 3963. —— ——.]—The other question which was much argued before your lordships was the question of penalty. I apprehend that there again the case is quite clear. The illustration of the form adopted in mtges. is a very good illustration, I think, of what the true principle is. The form adopted long since, I do not know whether it is still continued or not, in mtges., was when you wished to reserve in reality interest at 4 per cent., to reserve the interest by contract at 5 per cent., but to mitigate the severity of that contract in the event of the money being paid by a certain day. It is not a penalty on non-payment, though it seems a fine distinction, when you say that your contract shall be made for interest at 5 per cent. to be reduced, in the event of your punctual payment, to 4 per cent.; but it is a relaxation of the terms of that original contract, not taking it by way of penalty at all, but a relaxation of your contract which you would merit & purchase by paying at a definite & fixed time. If that definite & fixed time were exceeded, then the original contract revived in all its force. Sometimes mtge. deeds, being somewhat unskilfully drawn, interest at 4 per cent. was reserved by the contract to be raised to 5 per cent. if there was non-payment at a particular day; & although that brings the case to an extremely fine & nice distinction, it all the better illustrates the rule which has been applied at all times by the cts., with reference to this question of penalty. If there had been indulgence at any time upon given terms, as long as those terms are observed, the indulgence lasts. When those terms are departed from the indulgence at once fails, & the original contract is revived in full force (LORD HATHERLEY).—WALLINGFORD v.

SECT. 7.—INTEREST BY WAY OF DAMAGES.

3987. General rule.]—There is no authority . . . that where a security for money payable at a certain date stipulates for the allowance of a certain rate of interest up to the day fixed for payment, interest at the same rate is implied to be payable afterwards. On the contrary the distinction seems to be well established between cases where the interest is expressly reserved in the instrument, & where it is not. In the latter case it is recoverable not as interest according to the contract, but as damages for the breach of it (LORD CHELMSFORD).—COOK v. FOWLER (1874), L. R. 7 H. L. 27; 43 L. J. Ch. 855, H. About two months before the end of the five years, the mtgee. assigned over the mtge. for £500, being the principal & interest then due. The £500 shall carry interest, though the five years were not elapsed ; the mtge. being forfeited by the non-payment of the interest. —GLADWYN v. HITCHMAN (1690), 2 Vern. 135 ; 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 287 ; 23 E. R. 695.

4007. —— —— Necessity for concurrence by mortgagor.]—A. mortgages to B. for security of £500, the interest runs on for seven years unpaid, so that the money due to the mtgee. is then £710 ; then the mtgee., upon receipt of this £710 from S. assigns this mtge. to him :—Held : S. shall not reckon interest for £710 from the time of the assignment, but only for the £500 which was the original principal, for if that should be allowed, by that means the mtgee. might assign over every six months, & by that device have interest upon interest.—ANON. (1674), Freem. Ch. 303 ; 22 E. R. 1225.

4008. —— —— ——.]—Mtgee., after money is incurred for interest, assigns over to one that pays him his principal & interest : the question was, whether or no this assignee, upon the redemption, should have interest for the interest, & this difference was taken, that when a mtgee. assigns, with the consent of the mtgor., to one that pays him the principal & interest, there the interest & principal are consolidated by the consent of the mtgor., & there, upon redemption, the assignee shall have interest for the whole sum that he disburses ; & so it is, if the mtgor. & mtgee. state their account & come to an agreement to continue the money longer. But if a mtgee. assign over without the consent of the mtgor., there no interest shall be allowed to the assignee for what he pays for interest ; for if that should be allowed, the scriveners of London would make a trade of assigning every six months, & so turn their interest into principal, & by that means receive interest upon interest.—PORTER v. HOBBARD (1677), as reported in Freem. If a considerable sum be due for interest on a mtge., & the mtgee. assigns over for the consideration of so much as the principal & interest come to, if this assignment be without the privity of the mtgor. then the interest shall be carried on only upon the principal ; but if the mtgee. had applied to the mtgor. before, & demanded his money, & required him to join in the assignment, if the mtgor. refuses either to pay or join, the assignee shall carry interest both on the principal & interest.—ANON. 4013. —— —— Transfer taken to prevent sale.] —An estate subject to a mtge. was vested in C. upon trust to set apart out of the rents a fixed yearly sum, out of which he was to pay the interest on the mtge. & accumulate the residue as a sinking fund to pay off the principal. In June, 1804, the interest being in arrear, the mtgees. advertised the property for sale. C. thereupon applied to F. to pay off the mtgees. & take a transfer, which he agreed to do. 4028. —— Summons to stay proceedings.]—Defts. mortgaged leasehold property to pltfs., & afterwards sold & assigned the equity of redemption therein to B., who further charged the property in favour of pltfs. B. having become insolvent, pltfs. brought an action against defts. upon the covenants in the original mtge. for the principal money & interest thereby secured. Defts. then took out a summons asking that, upon payment within one month of the principal money claimed in the action, with interest down to the date of payment, & costs, all further proceedings in the action might be stayed, & that pltfs. upon such payment might reconvey the mtged. property to defts. Pltfs. refused to reconvey, except upon payment of the moneys payable under the further charge, as well as those payable under the mtge. A special case was then stated in the action, upon which the question was decided against pltfs., the costs being reserved. Accounts were then taken in the action as between pltfs. & defts., including an account of what was due under the mtge, & in taking such accounts the Chief Clerk computed & certified interest on the principal moneys secured by the mtge. down to the date of payment. Upon a summons taken out by defts. to vary the Chief Clerk's certificate, by disallowing all interest subsequent to the date of the summons to stay proceedings :—Held : (1) the summons for the stay of proceedings was not equivalent to a tender by defts., & interest must be paid by them down to the date of the payment of the principal; (2) where no actual offer of money is made, nor any payment into ct. under R. 4047. ——— Effect of including costs in security—"Just allowances."]—A mtge. deed provided that it should be a security not only for the principal sums advanced, & interest, but also for the costs of preparing the deed, & for all costs which might be incurred by the mtgee. in selling the property, or in any actions or suits relating to it. The mtgor. filed a bill to redeem, & a decree was made directing an account of what was due to deft. for principal & interest under the mtge. deed, & an account of sale moneys, rents, & profit received by deft. In taking the accounts deft. carried in a claim for costs incurred in legal proceedings relating to the property, which the chief clerk refused to entertain. & deft. then appealed from the decree:—Held: (1) the decree was right, for that all costs properly incurred in the actions might be claimed under it as "just allowances"; (2) the costs might be claimed under the decree as principal moneys due under the deed.—BLACKFORD v. DAVIS (1869), 4 Ch. B. Div. for recovery of the debt. (b) Costs of correspondence with a surety who had given a promissory note for part of the debt. (c) Costs of investigating the mtgor.'s title. (d) Costs of preparing a legal mtge. which the mtgor. refused to execute. (e) Costs of correspondence with the mtgor. as to the legal mtge.:—Held: a mtgee. is entitled to be allowed in account the costs of all proceedings reasonably taken by him to enforce his rights under the mtge. contract, including proceedings to obtain the mtge. money or any part thereof, either from the mtgor., or from a surety, or out of the estate, & therefore heads (b), (d), & (e) must be allowed. (a) Would ordinarily be a proper charge, but in the present case it could not be allowed as it was excluded by the special terms of the order directing taxation, & (c) could not be allowed, as an investigation of the title was not necessary for the purpose of preparing the legal mtge., but the mtgees. must be allowed all expenses properly incurred with reference to the preparation of the legal mtge., which would include the expense of such inspection of the title deeds as was necessary for preparing it.—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND v. GAMES (1886), 31 Ch. This was subsequently increased to 4 guineas, & an explanatory bill was delivered to account for the 4 guineas so charged. On taxation the taxing master refused to allow the second 2 guineas charged in anticipation, &, treating the explanatory bill as a bill delivered to be taxed, disallowed it:—Held: the 4 guineas was properly charged in anticipation, & the bill was explanatory only, & not to be taxed.

(2) Costs of certain attendances at meetings of the mtgor.'s creditors, & of advice as to the application of the proceeds of sale of part of the mtge. security, were disallowed by the taxing master:—Held: in the circumstances such costs were properly incurred, & were payable by the mtgor.—Re PAICE & CROSS (1914), 58 Sol. be owing to them from W., " his exors., administrators, or assigns " on any account whatsoever. W. died giving, by will, all his property to his wife, for life, without any directions as to carrying on his business. Letters of administration, with the will annexed, were granted to the widow. The widow carried on the business, & was supplied with beer by H. & co. to whom she from time to time made payments which discharged the moneys due to them from W. at his decease other than the £1,300, but a balance of £138 was due from her to them at her decease for beer supplied. H. & co. sold the property under a power of sale, & claimed to retain not only the £1,300 but the £138. The question was raised on summons in an action for the administration of W.'s estate. The chief clerk was prepared to make an order without costs against H. & co. to pay into ct. the balance of purchase-money in their hands without deducting the £138 ; but H. & co. insisted on having the case heard by the judge. KAY, J., held that they must pay in the balance without deducting the £138, & ordered them to pay the costs of the adjournment to him as being in the nature of an unsuccessful appeal. On appeal :—Held : as the widow was assign of the public-house, the £138 was covered by the security, & H. & co. were entitled to retain it ; the adjournment to the judge was not in the nature of an appeal, it being the right of H. & co. to have the point heard by the judge personally, & even if they had been wrong on the merits they ought not to have been ordered to pay costs, for that a mtgee. cannot be deprived of costs merely because he claims bonâ fide something more than the ct. holds him entitled to.—Re WATTS, SMITH v. WATTS (1882), 22 Ch. SUB-SECT. 1.—IN GENERAL.

4057. Completed mortgage—General rule—Mortgagor liable.]—When a mtge. is completed the mtgor. is liable to pay to the mtgee. the expenses incident to the mtge. transaction. The mtge. is primarily liable to his own solr. for those expenses. The mtgor. is liable to pay over to the mtgee. what he pays to his own solr., but there is no debt until the transaction is completed. Indeed, it has been decided that, if the transaction falls through, the intending mtgee. cannot recover his expenses from the intending mtgor., & to avoid that difficulty it has for many years become the practice of solrs. before engaging in a mtge. transaction to obtain an undertaking by the intending borrower's solr. to pay the expenses (JESSEL, M.R.).—Re COWBURN, Ex p. FIRTH (1882), 19 Ch. On the contrary, the transaction of borrowing implies that a security of any degree of safety may be made available by a term compensating for the increased risk.

Where a treaty for loan on specified securities goes off, the lender not being satisfied with the title, there being no contract by the proposed borrower to make any other or better title than he had, & the lender not being bound to accept the security unless he found it satisfactory, & no stipulation to pay costs in the event of the treaty going off, the proposed borrower is not liable for the costs incidental to the investigation of the title.—MELBOURNE v. COTTRELL (1857), 29 L. 4116. —— Sale by order of court.]—(1) The costs of several mtgees. held to be payable according to their priorities, although the estates were by order of the ct. sold, & the purchase-money was paid into ct., & formed one general fund.

(2) A. having two estates, mtged. both to B., then one to C., then both again to B. to secure both the original & a further advance, then both to D. The puisne incumbrancers had notice of the prior charges. The estates were not sufficient to pay all the mtges., but one of the estates called No. 32 was sufficient to pay B. in full. The ct. will not, as between C. & D., marshal the securities by directing B. to take his full payment out of No. 32, so as to leave C. the first incumbrancer on the other estate, but B.'s debt must be thrown ratably on both estates.—BARNES v. RACSTER (1842), 1 Y. & C. 4117. —— Trustees' costs—Mortgagee claiming under cestui que trust.]—Trustees' costs have priority over the claims of a mtgee. claiming under their cestui que trust.—ROSE v. SHARROCK (1863), 1 New Rep. 419; 11 W. R. 356.

4118. —— —— Conveyance by mortgagor to trustee for sale—Trustee obtaining transfer of some incumbrances & legal estate.]—The trustee of a mtgor. is not entitled to avail himself of the legal estate for the purpose of altering the priorities of the mtgees.

The owner of a farm mortgaged it in succession to three persons, the third mtgee. having no notice of the second mtge. By a deed made between the mtgor. & P., in order, as was recited, to stop a forced sale by the mtgees., the equity of redemption was conveyed to P. upon trust for sale, with power to postpone the sale & raise money, by mtge. or otherwise, to pay off the mtgees., & the proceeds were to be held by P. upon trust to pay his costs & expenses, & after payment of the same & the mtges., to pay the residue to the mtgor. P., having notice of the second mtge., paid off the first & third out of his own money & took a transfer of the benefit of them, & he subsequently got in the legal estate. Upon an action by the second mtgee. for redemption:—Held: P. acted as a trustee for the mtgor., & he was not entitled to tack to the prejudice of the second mtgee., but he was entitled to add his costs to his security.—LEDBROOK v. PASSMAN (1888), 57 L. J. Ch. 855; 59 L. T. 306.

4119. Costs of issue directed on exceptions to master's report—Mortgagee unsuccessful.]—On a bill to redeem, the mtgee. insisted that B., the heir-at-law stated in the bill to be dead, was alive. By the decree, a reference was made to the master, to ascertain whether he was dead. He reported he was dead. Exceptions were taken to his report, & master directed to review the same. In reviewed report he continued of opnion B. was dead. Exceptions were taken to the same, & an issue was directed whether B. was dead, etc. The jury found he was dead. Exceptions were then overruled; & held, the mtgee. ought not to pay the costs of the issue.—WILSON v. METCALFE (1818), 3 Madd. 45; 56 E. R. 426.

4120. Apportionment of costs — Mortgage to secure debt of partners.]—Where deeds were deposited, with a written memorandum, to secure the debt of two partners, & after the death of one, it was verbally agreed that the deposit should be extended to secure the separate debt of the surviving partner:—Held: the costs should be apportioned as to the sums respectively due from the joint & separate estate, in the one case as on a deposit with a written agreement & in the other as on a deposit by parol.—Re TAYLOR, Ex p. FORD (1843), 3 Mont. D. & De G. 457, Ct. of R.

4121. —— Separate mortgages of two estates.]—An action was brought by a mtgee. for the foreclosure of two mtges. of two distinct estates, executed by the same mtgor. to secure two different advances. Both mtges. were executed since Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), came into operation:—Held: the whole of the costs of the action ought to be included in the account relating to each estate, & the mtgor. could not redeem either estate separately without paying the whole of the costs of the action.—CLAPHAM v. ANDREWS (1884), 27 Ch. SUB-SECT. 2.—PLAINTIFF'S COSTS.

4128. Whether payable out of proceeds of sale.]—Upon an application for the sale of an equitable mtge., the costs of the assignees are to be paid out of the proceeds of the estate.

As the necessity of the application was created by the defect of petitioner's title, the expenses of it, & of all fair inquiries into the validity of the security should be satisfied out of the proceeds of the sale, unless indeed where the assignees by an unnecessary & vexatious resistance should call for a deviation from that practice (LORD ELDON, C.).—Ex p. GARBUTT (1814), 2 Rose, 78, L. Before appearing, & again immediately after appearing, A. told pltf. that he had no interest in the property, & offered to disclaim, & being served with interrogatories, he put in an answer & disclaimer. Afterwards he executed a transfer of his mtge. to B., & pltf. then offered to dismiss the bill against him without costs :—Held : A., until he executed the transfer, was a necessary party, & he was not entitled to his costs.—ROBERTS v. HUGHES (1868), L. 4173. —— ——.]—A.'s solr. agreed with B. that £1,000 of A.'s money should be advanced to B. on a second mtge. of property already in mtge. for £1,000. A mtge., dated Feb. 16, 1842, was prepared accordingly, & executed by B., no money passing. As soon as A. heard of the transaction he repudiated it, but agreed to advance £2,000 on a transfer of the first mtge. & a further charge. This was carried out by a deed of transfer & further charge, dated Feb. 28, 1842. The deed of Feb. 16 was not cancelled, but remained in the possession of A.'s solr. In 1844 the solr. advised C. to advance £1,000 on a transfer of the security of Feb. 16, 1842. C. paid the money to the solr., who handed over to C. the deed, with a memorandum, which he had fraudulently induced A. to sign, undertaking to transfer the mtge. The solr. employed the money for his own purposes. In 1848 the solr., by fraud, induced A. to execute to C. a deed of transfer of the mtge. of Feb. 16, 1842, & to sign a receipt for the £1,000. This deed contained words sufficient to pass the legal estate, which A. had in him by virtue of the deed of Feb. 28, 1842 : —Held : (1) A. must pay all the costs of the suit instituted by C. to obtain her rights, except the costs of the mtgor. & those of a deft. who ought not to have been made a party ; (2) the mtgor. was to blame in not having taken care, that the deed of Feb. 16, 1842, was cancelled, & he therefore must bear his own costs.

4174. —— ——.]—If a disclaiming deft. shows that he never had & never claimed any interest, or, having an interest, that he had disclaimed or offered to disclaim before the institution of the suit, he is entitled to his costs. But if, having an interest, he neither disclaims nor offers to disclaim till he puts in his disclaimer, he is not entitled. These rules prevail, though pltf. never applied to deft. to disclaim prior to the institution of the suit. In a foreclosure suit by second mtgee., a subsequent judgment creditor, by his answer, disclaimed all interest, & stated that he had never been applied to by pltf. to disclaim, previously to the filing of the bill ; but he did not add, that if he had been so applied to he would have disclaimed, or that he had never claimed an interest :—Held : he was not entitled to his costs from pltf.—FORD v. CHESTERFIELD (EARL) (1853), 16 Beav. 516 ; 22 L. 4202. —— ——.]—In a suit for foreclosure, a party interested in the equity of redemption disclaimed & stated, he did not, & never did, claim any interest. The bill being brought to a hearing:

PART XVIII. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 3.—C.

4188 i. Right to costs.]—Where a deft., having an interest in the property in question in a foreclosure suit at the time of the filing of the bill, puts in a disclaimer, he will not be entitled to any costs.—BERRIE v. MACKLIN (1863), 1 Ch. Ch. 351.—CAN.

4188 ii. ——.]—A person interested in an equity of redemption informed the mtgee. before suit that he was willing to release to him his interest in the property. The mtgee., notwithstanding, made him a deft. to a bill for sale of the mtged. premises, & he filed an answer setting forth his willingness to release, & that he had before suit informed the pltf. of such willingness:—Held: he was entitled to costs.—WARING v. HUBBS (1866), 12 Gr. 227.—CAN.

4188 iii. ——.]—To a foreclosure bill alleging that deft. C. was the assignee of the equity of redemption, & was entitled to redeem, deft. C. filed a disclaimer & asked to be dismissed with costs:—Held: upon a hearing on bill & answer, deft. C. should pay the costs occasioned by the disclaimer.—WILTON v. WILTON (1886), 4 Man. L. R. 227.—CAN.

4188 iv. ——.]—Where a judgment creditor, having registered a memorial of his judgment, is made a party to a suit for the foreclosure of a mtge. given previously by the judgment debtor, & disclaims, he is not entitled to costs on the dismissal of the bill as against him.—NICHOLSON v. REID (1899), 1 N. B. Eq. Rep. 607.—CAN.

4188 v. ——.]—There must be material before a judge to justify him in awarding costs against an encumbrancer who, in what is in effect a foreclosure suit, promptly disclaims all interest in the land & submits to the relief sought.—GIBSON v. SNAITH (1915), 8 W. W. R. 247; 25 Man. L. R. 278.—CAN.

4193 i. —— Sufficiency of offer to disclaim.]—To a bill of foreclosure, an assignee in insolvency filed an answer & disclaimer, admitting the statements of the bill, & alleging that he was willing, & offered before being served with the bill, to release his right to the property, but not alleging that he had made the offer to pltf., or to whom he did make it:—Held: he was not entitled to costs.—DRURY v. O'NEIL (1868), 15 Gr. 123.—CAN.

4193 ii. —— ——.]—MANITOBA INVESTMENT ASSOCN. v. MOORE (1886), 4 Man. L. R. 41.—CAN.

—Held: he was not entitled to his costs.—BUCHANAN v. GREENWAY (1848), 11 Beav. 58; 50 E. R. 738.

4203. —— ——.]—Parties properly made defts. to a suit in the first instance, & afterwards giving notice to pltf. that they do not claim any interest, are not entitled to their costs, notwithstanding such notice was given before putting in their answer, unless they have gone on to offer their consent to have the bill dismissed against them without costs up to the date of such notice, & it rests with defts. to offer such consent, & not with pltfs. to ask it.—TALBOT v. KEMSHEAD (1858), 4 K. & J. 93; 32 L. T. O. S. 60; 6 W. R. 263; 70 E. R. 39.

4205. —— ——.]—Where a registered judgment creditor, made a deft. to a foreclosure suit, disclaims by answer, the course is to dismiss the bill against him without costs up to the filing of the answer, but with the costs subsequently incurred, & it makes no difference that he has made a previous disclaimer by letter.—GOWING v. MOWBRAY (1863), 2 New Rep. 384; 8 L. T. 531; 9 Jur. N. S. 844; 11 W. R. 851.

4206. —— —— Through own default or negligence.]—A judgment creditor, whose debt had been satisfied but who had not entered satisfaction on the rolls, was made a deft. to a foreclosure suit. He disclaimed:—Held: he was not entitled to his costs, in consequence of his negligence in not entering up satisfaction of his judgment.—THOMPSON v. HUDSON (1864), 34 Beav. 107; 55 E. R. 574.

4207. —— —— ——.]—In 1870, certain chambers in Gray's Inn, were, by deed, assigned for the residue of a term of years to deft. A. in trust for deft. B. In 1871 B. mortgaged his interest in the chambers to pltf., who gave notice of her mtge. to A.

A.'s name was never substituted for that of the assignor in the books of the society, &, by an order of pension made in 1873, a previous order permitting the assignment to A., was rescinded. A. gave no notice of this latter order to pltf.

To a foreclosure bill filed in 1874, by pltf., A. put in an answer & disclaimer, & claimed to be dismissed with costs:—Held: A., as he had given pltf. no notice of the order of pension made in 1873, was not entitled to any costs.—SLIPPER v. GOUGH (1877), 36 L. T. 92.

4208. —— Bill against puisne mortgagee by prior incumbrancer.]—A subsequent mtgee. who, in his answer to a bill of foreclosure by a prior incumbrancer, disclaims & offers to assign on having his costs paid, may be brought to a hearing, & will not be allowed his costs.—LAND v. WOOD (1823), 1 L. J. O. S. Ch. 89.

4209. —— ——.]—In a foreclosure suit by the first mtgee. against a second mtgee. & the mtgor., the second mtgee. disclaimed, & was brought to the hearing of the cause by pltf.:—Held: pltf. was bound to pay the disclaiming party his costs, & was entitled to add them to the mtge. debt.—DALTON v. LAMBERT (1846), 15 L. J. Ch. 208; 7 L. T. O. S. 3.

4210. —— ——.]—Where, on a bill of foreclosure by a first mtgee. against a second mtgee. & the mtgor., the second mtgee., by his answer, disclaimed, yet pltf. brought the second mtgee. to the hearing, no costs were given to the second mtgee. on the decree against him, upon the preponderance of modern decisions, though, formerly, the practice was to give such disclaiming second mtgee. deft. his costs, pltf. adding such costs to his own.—OHRLY v. JENKINS (1847), 1 De G. & Sm. 543; 17 L. J. Ch. 22; 10 L. T. O. S. 155; 11 Jur. 1001; 63 E. R. 1185.

4212. —— ——.]—In a foreclosure suit by a first mtgee. against the mtgor. & puisne incumbrancers, pltf. alleged that application had been made to defts. to pay the debt, interest & costs, but that they had refused so to do. The second mtgees., by their answer & disclaimer, alleged that no application had been made to them, but that had they been applied to they would have released & discharged all interest. On the suit being brought to a hearing:—Held: they were entitled to their costs.—GURNEY v. JACKSON (1852), 1 Sm. & G. 97; 22 L. J. Ch. 417; 20 L. T. O. S. 176; 17 Jur. 204; 1 W. R. 91; 65 E. 4252. —— Subsequent admission of holding as mortgagee—Costs up to time of admission.]—In 1850, H. conveyed certain estates to two trustees for the benefit of creditors, & Y., who prepared the deed, was appointed the solr., & acted in the matters of the trust. Y. in Jan. 1857, in reply to inquiries on behalf of H. stated that he had, in Feb. 1853, purchased interests in the property, & was willing, on receiving the amount that would be due to him, to deliver up all the deeds in his possession, but limiting the offer to that month. The statement of account sent with the letter was disputed. Y. refused to furnish a copy of the deed of 1850, alleging that the document was his title deed. The original bill of H. was filed in Mar. 1859, & was dismissed in July following, he residing abroad, & not being able to comply with an order obtained by Y. requiring security for costs. The bill was again filed in July, 1862, & prayed for declarations that Y. was a mtgee. in possession & entitled to such sums as had been actually paid by him, for accounts, etc. On Dec. 6, 1862, Y. put in his answer, stating that he ceased to be the solr. to the trustees in Oct. 1852; that the interests in the estates & certain policies were conveyed & assigned to him in Apr. 1853; that he had never set up any title as purchaser, but was willing to be treated as a mtgee. On Jan. 7, 1863, Y. filed a bill for foreclosure, to which H. put in an answer in the following Mar. H. filed an amended bill in Feb. 1863, setting forth all the correspondence, for the purpose of showing that Y. had insisted upon his position of purchaser, & to that bill Y. filed a voluntary answer in Mar. following:—Held: H. was entitled to redeem, Y. must pay the costs of the litigation up to the time of filing his answer in Dec. 1862, when he consented to be considered as a mtgee. in possession, & H. must pay all the costs of the subsequent litigation; & ordered the usual accounts to be taken.—YETTS v. HILTON, HILTON v. SEWELL (1863), 9 L. 4257. Redemption by lessee of mortgagor—Lease not binding on mortgagee.]—Pltf. brings his action undoubtedly on an allegation that deft. T. is found to grant him his lease. I think there is no case for that at all, & if it had been asked for, I think the judge would have dismissed that portion of the action with costs. But as regards redemption I think the judge was right in following the ordinary course in directing T. to pay the costs up to the hearing. The mtgee. registered a memorial of his mtge., not stating the amount of it, & afterwards he made a further advance, for which he received a memorandum of further charge upon the same lands, which he did not register. The mtgor. subsequently mortgaged the same lands to another person to whom he gave no notice of the further charge to the first mtgee., merely saying that the first mtge. was for £1,100. The second mtgee. registered his mtge. & gave notice of it to the first mtgee. The first mtgee. having refused to be redeemed except upon payment of the amount due upon both his mtge. & his further charge, the second mtgee. filed his bill for redemption:—Held: the second mtgee. was not bound, when he found the memorial of the first mtge. on the register, to inquire how much was due to the first mtgee., & the first mtgee., having refused to be redeemed except upon payment of both his mtge. & his further charge, was not entitled to his costs of the suit.—CREDLAND v. POTTER (1874), 10 Ch. Pltf., before action brought, made deft. a definite offer to redeem deft.'s mtge. on A. This offer deft. refused, claiming to be entitled to consolidate his mtge. on B. with his mtge. on A., & requiring pltf. to redeem both. Pltf. then brought an action for redemption of deft.'s mtge. on A., & to have it declared that deft. was not entitled to consolidate:—Held: deft. was not entitled to consolidate; &, as the litigation had been solely caused by the refusal of deft. to accept an offer rightly made to redeem him, deft. should pay pltf.'s costs of the action up to & including the trial as well as the costs of the appeal.—SQUIRE v. PARDOE (1891), 66 L. (2) If on taking the accounts under the judgment the mtgees., notwithstanding the fraud of their agent prevents them ascertaining the truth, persist that a balance is due to them, they must pay the costs of action subsequent to judgment, subject to a set-off of the costs of the particular issue, & simple interest at 4 per cent. on the surplus balance from the date when they were overpaid.

(3) If the balance on taxation of costs should prove to be in the mtgees.' favour, the balance of costs ought to be deducted from such surplus balance & the interest thereon as at the date of the writ in the action, inasmuch as no costs could be incurred until the action was commenced, & not as on the date when they were first fully paid.—HEATH v. CHINN (1908), 98 L. 4277. —— Tender at time when mortgagor entitled to pay off.]—On Mar. 15 the solrs. for the mtgors. wrote to the solrs. for the mtgee. & said that they were willing to complete & pay the money on the next day upon an undertaking being given by the solrs. for the mtgee. to obtain execution of the deed of reassignment. On Mar. 16 there was a meeting at the office of the solrs. for the mtgee. & tender was made of the principal & interest up to that date. In the argument before me it was ultimately conceded that having regard to the authorities it is perfectly clear that on this occasion there was a good legal tender of the proper amount.

Well this tender was refused, although it was a perfectly good tender. I think that when such a notice be given or demand made as there was here mere failure to pay within or on the day of the expiration of the three months does not render the mtgor. liable to pay an additional six months' interest or anything of the kind ; & most certainly is this not so where the failure to pay happens or is occasioned in the manner in which it was in the present case. Therefore on this point as to tender & demand for further interest the mtgee. was wrong & has remained wrong throughout, & she certainly must pay the general costs of the action. . . . I think it clear that, even after tender improperly refused, it would be unreasonable that the mtgor. should have & make full use of the mtgee.'s money without paying any interest. On the whole I think that, in order to avoid payment of interest after tender improperly refused, the mtgor. must either pay the money into ct., if there be any proceedings in which that could be done, or keep the money ready, & either make no profit, or, if he make profit . . . he must account for such profit to the mtgee. The bank afterwards obtained judgment against her in respect of the debt, when an arrangement was made under which her husband guaranteed payment of part of it by instalments. The bank sued him on his guarantee & obtained judgment with costs; &, although the wife's debt to them had now been satisfied, they declined to retransfer the shares to her until these costs were paid. In an action by her against the bank to obtain a retransfer of the shares or their value:—Held: the action was in effect one of redemption; the costs of the action against the husband were properly incurred & the wife was bound to indemnify him against them; & the bank were entitled to the benefit of the indemnity & to retain the shares till payment of the costs of the action against him, on the principle laid down in National Provincial Bank of England v. Games, No. 4048, ante.—SACHS v. ASHBY & CO. (1903), 88 L. T. 393.

4336. —— Against executor of mortgagor.]—Mtgee. is not entitled, as against the devisees of the mtged. estate, to be paid the costs of an action on the mtgor.'s bond, brought by him against the extrix. of the mtgor.—LEWIS v. JOHN (1838), 9 Sim. 366; Coop. 4338. Costs of execution—Mortgagees of property having joint fiduciary character.]—There being two mtgees. having a joint fiduciary character, the costs of one solr. only will be allowed.

Bkpt. owed to one creditor £370, to another £267, & they had commenced proceedings against him. To induce them to stay proceedings, he gave them a second mtge. on property, at Torquay, already incumbered with a debt of £1,000, empowering them, "or either of them," to proceed to sale, in the event of the money not being forthcoming on a certain day, & to apply the proceeds in the payment of their debts & of the costs in the actions which had been begun, dividing it between them pari passu, according to the amount of their respective claims. The money was not paid; judgment was entered up upon both actions, & an execution levied, which was rendered abortive by the issue of the fiat before the sale:—Held: the mtgees. were not entitled to their interest up to the date of the sale of the property, nor to the costs of the execution, on the ground that they had a right to avail themselves of every means to secure payment; & they had no right, as mtgees., to employ two solrs., upon the ground that the power of sale was to both or either of them, & that they were interested in different proportions.—Re LIGHTFOOT (1851), 18 L. 4339. Administration—To deceased mortgagor.]—Mtgee. having been at great charges to defend a suit at law, brought by the heir of the mtgor., who endeavoured to defeat the mtge. by an entail, but could not prevail; upon a bill afterwards brought by the heir to redeem, the mtgee. allowed his full costs expended in that suit, & not tied down to the costs taxed. SECT. 8.—COSTS OF SUCCESSIVE INCUMBRANCERS.

4343. Priorities as to costs—Suit undertaken by incumbrancer—On behalf of himself & others.]—Under a bill by a second incumbrancer, a receiver being appointed, & the first incumbrancer taking the benefit of the suit, the costs are to be paid in the first instance, before the demand of the first incumbrancer.—WHITE v. PETERBOROUGH (BP.) 4344. —— —— ——.]—(1) Generally, the costs of a mtgee. are added to his security, & in whatever rank or order the security stands, his costs are united to it & form part of it; but if he institute a suit for the administration of a deceased mtgor., his costs are those of a pltf. in an ordinary administration suit.

(2) When a puisne incumbrancer sues for & recovers a fund for the benefit of all, his costs are paid, in the first instance, out of the fund recovered.

An estate was greatly incumbered. The first charge was an annuity, &, in default of payment, the annuitant had a power to sell & invest the produce in the purchase of a similar annuity. The grantor reserved a power of repurchase. The annuitant having sold the estate, the fifth incumbrancer filed a bill to repurchase the annuity & distribute the produce:—Held: pltf.'s costs were the first charge on the fund, & the costs of the other incumbrancers must be added to their securities.—WRIGHT v. KIRBY (1857), 23 Beav. 463; 29 L. T. O. S. 46; 3 Jur. N. S. 851; 5 W. R. 391; 53 E. R. 182.

4345. —— Suit to determine priorities & for distribution.]—In an administration suit, all proper & necessary parties have their costs prior to the administration of the fund. But in suits by mtgees. to ascertain priorities upon an estate or upon a fund produced by it, after the proper costs of pltf. are paid, the costs of the other incumbrancers are added to their securities, & paid in the order of their priorities.—FORD v. CHESTERFIELD (EARL) (1856), 21 Beav. 426; 52 E. 4346. —— ——.]—With regard to the costs, this being a question of priority, the usual rule in a case of this sort, where it is a mere question of priority, is for each party to add his costs to his security (CHITTY, J.).—POLLOCK v. LANDS IMPROVEMENT CO. (1888), 37 Ch. D. 661; 57 L. J. Ch. 853; 58 L. T. 374; 36 W. R. 617.

4347. —— —— —.]—A firm of solrs. who had recovered judgment against harbour comrs. for the amount of a bill of costs, brought an action against the comrs. in the Ch. Div. for a declaration that pltfs. were entitled to a charge on the property of the comrs., enforcement of the charge, an inquiry to ascertain & determine the other persons entitled to charges, & the rights of pltfs. & such persons, & for the appointment of a receiver of the comrs.' undertaking. A receiver was appointed, & judgment given, directing an inquiry as to incumbrancers & their priorities. The chief clerk, in answer to the inquiry, certified the priorities, & found that pltfs. were entitled to a charge subject to certain specified incumbrances & in priority to others. There was a fund in ct. consisting of moneys which had come to the hands of the receiver. Upon further consideration of the action:—Held: (1) Commissioners Clauses Act, 1847 (c. 16), s. 60, was applicable to the comrs., not only personally, but as a corporate body, & that, by virtue of the right of indemnity conferred by that sect., the Comrs., notwithstanding that they were in the position of mtgors., were entitled to their costs of the action as between solr. & client out of the fund in ct. in priority to all other parties; (2) according to the principles established in Ford v. Chesterfield (Earl), No. 4345, ante, & Wright v. Kirby, No. 4344, ante, pltfs. were entitled, in priority to the other parties except the comrs., to be paid out of the fund their costs of the action, so far as the other parties except the comrs. had had the benefit thereof in securing the fund in ct.

SECT. 10.—ACTION TO REALISE SECURITY BY SALE.

4351. Priority of mortgagee's costs—Equitable mortgage by deposit—Security not completed through default of mortgagor.]—Equitable mtgee. not entitled to costs on application for sale of pledge, etc., though it was owing to bkpt. that no regular mtge. was made.—Ex p. —— (1817), 2 Madd. 281; 56 E. R. 339.

4352. —— —— Under written agreement.]—On a petition for the sale of mtged. premises by an equitable mtgee. under a written agreement for a mtge., petitioner is entitled to costs.—Re WELLS, Ex p. BRIGHTWEN (1818), 1 Swan. 3; 36 E. R. 274, L. C.

4353. —— —— Written memorandum.]—Equitable mtgee. by a deposit of deeds, with a writing expressing the terms of the deposit, is entitled, on a petition on bkpcy., for a sale, to have his costs out of the produce of the mtged. property.—Ex p. TREW (1818), 3 Madd. 372; 56 E. R. 542.

4354. —— —— ——.]—As it is not disputed that there has been a sufficient part performance to take this case out of the Statute of Frauds, I think the statute should be excluded from consideration, & that petitioners are entitled to have their costs out of the security, which happens to be the rule in the case of an equitable mtge. with a written memorandum (KNIGHT BRUCE, V.-C.).—Re TAYLOR, Ex p. COOPER (1844), 3 Mont. 4355. —— —— No writing at time of deposit—Subsequent memorandum.]—An equitable mtgee., by deposit of title deeds without writing, exempted from paying the costs of his petition, the mtgor. having subsequently written a letter directing him to hold the deeds, after payment of his own mtge., for the second mtgee.—Re LEEK, Ex p. REID (1828), Mont. & M. 114.

4356. —— —— No memorandum.]—Where deeds relating to freehold & leasehold property were deposited with an equitable mtgee., but the memorandum accompanying the deposit merely related to the leasehold property:—Held: the mtgee. might nevertheless pray a sale of the freehold as well as the leasehold property, subject however to the payment of the costs of the sale.—Re EVANS, Ex p. ROBINSON (1832), 1 Deac. & Ch. 119.

4357. —— —— ——.]—Upon a bill filed to enforce an equitable mtge. by deposit without memorandum, costs will be given to pltf. as against the personal representatives of the mtgor.—CONNELL v. HARDIE (1839), 3 Y. & C. Ex. 582; 160 E. R. 834.

4358. —— —— ——.]—In equity an equitable mtgee., though the mtge. be without memorandum, will be allowed his costs as against the assignees of the insolvent mtgor.—R. v. CHAMBERS (1840), 4 Y. & C. Ex. 54; 160 E. R. 917.

4359. —— —— —— Custom not to give memorandum.]—Equitable mtgee. by deposit of shares in a public co. without written memorandum:—Held: entitled to his costs, on evidence of custom not to give written memorandum.—Re DAVIES, Ex p. MOSS (1849), 3 De G. & Sm. 599; 18 L. J. Bcy. 17; 13 L. T. O. S. 364; 13 Jur. 866; 64 E. R. 623.

4360. —— —— Deficient security.]—In a suit by a simple contract creditor, whose debt was secured by a deposit of deeds by way of equitable mtge., against the exors. & devisees of debtor, the mtged. premises were sold, & were not sufficient to pay pltf.'s debt. The general assets of testator were insufficient to pay his debts & the costs of suit. The parties beneficially entitled under the devise by their answer disclaimed, but the bill was not dismissed against them:—Held: pltf. as equitable mtgee. was entitled to the proceeds of the sale of the mtged. premises, & the exors. of testator were entitled to retain in full out of the general assets the debts owing to them by testator, & the residue of the assets should be applied in the following order: in payment (a) of the costs of the exors., as between solr. & client; (b) of the costs of pltf., including those of the purchaser, which pltf. was ordered to pay; (c) of the costs of defts. beneficially entitled under the devise; & (d) of the debts remaining due to pltf. & the other creditors.—TIPPING v. POWER (1842), 1 Hare, 405; 11 L. 4368. —— Mortgagee allowing his rights to be determined by suit.]—(1) A creditors' suit was instituted for the administration of an estate, pltf. being a puisne mtgee., the bill impeaching a first mtge. & asking for the realisation of the second security. The first mtgee., who was a party, by his answer insisted on his rights. A receiver was appointed by the ct., the first mtgee. not opposing, & he, the mtgee., took no part in, although he had notice of, the proceedings in the suit. Claims were set up by strangers against the estate paramount the mtges. & the mtgor.'s title, which were defeated in proceedings at law instituted by order of the ct.; & the receiver was ordered to pay the costs of these proceedings, without prejudice to the question how they were ultimately to be borne. The ct. ordered a sale of the estate, & directed that the first mtgee., whose title to priority had been established, should join therein. The income of the estate became insufficient to pay the interest on the incumbrances, whereupon the first mtgee. presented a petition, praying the discharge of the receiver & that he might be let into possession, but the petition was dismissed :—Held : the mtged. estate was not, as against the first mtgee., liable to the costs of the law proceedings of defending the estate, nor as against him to the general costs of the creditors' suit; he was entitled to have the receiver discharged, & to be let into possession without paying any of such costs.

(2) Whatever may be meant by the expression that deft. has adopted a suit, I think that there has been no adoption of the present suit by applts. 4393. ——.]—A mtgee. will not be deprived of his costs in a redemption suit because he has overstated the amount due to him. The directors of a building society, in answer to one of their members & mtgors., stated that £736 was due to the society on the mtge., the society having been for some years in possession. Soon afterwards the directors informed the mtgor. that they intended to sell the mtged. property, they having power under the mtge. deed so to do. The mtgor. thereupon filed a bill to restrain the sale, & for redemption. The directors informed the mtgor. that they had no intention to press a sale. The mtgor. then proposed that a decree for the usual accounts should be taken, & a decree for an account was accordingly taken. The mtgor. carried in surcharges to the amount of £1,227, principally for fines & commission, which he claimed to have disallowed, but which were allowed to the mtgees.; the mtgees. were, however, charged for certain occupation rents, & were disallowed charges for repairs, so that the amount due at the filing of the bill was found to be £517 instead of £736:—Held: (1) there was nothing in the conduct of the mtgees. which would deprive them of the right to add their costs of the suit to their security.

The right of a mtgee. in a suit for redemption or foreclosure to his general costs of suit, unless he has forfeited them by some improper defence or other misconduct, is well established (LORD SELBORNE, C.).

"Steps for exercising" remedies—Action for foreclosure before passing of Act—Attending on adjourned summons & giving notice of appeal after passing—Increase of Rent & Mortgage Interest (War Restrictions) Act, 1915 (c. 97), s. 1 (4).]—A mtgee., under a mtge. created in 1910, & to which above Act applied, before the Act came into operation issued a writ to enforce his security by foreclosure or sale, & applied by summons in chambers for an order nisi. It was admitted that all the conditions of above sub-sect. had been fulfilled by the mtgor. The summons was adjourned to EVE, J., after the Act had come into operation. He dismissed it on the ground that the Act was retrospective, & that by attending at the hearing of the summons the mtgee. was taking a step for exercising his right of foreclosure within the sect.:—Held: the Act did not take away any rights, but merely suspended a particular form of remedy; it related to a matter of procedure & therefore might operate retrospectively; both the attending on the summons & the giving of the notice of appeal were "steps" within above sect.—WELBY v. PARKER, [1916] 2 Ch. 1; 85 L. It does not affect the obligation on the mtgor. to pay the interest & keep the property in repair as provided in the sect., so that, where this had not been done, the case is not within the Act, & foreclosure absolute can be ordered. On an application by deft. to stay the action on the ground that pltf. had not complied with the provisions of Courts (Emergency Powers) Acts, 1914–1916, & above Act :—Held : this charge was not a mtge. ; this charge was an equitable charge within the words of exception to the Acts, where above Act, sect. 2, sub-sect. 4, says that it " shall not apply to an equitable charge by deposit of deeds or otherwise."—JONES v. WOODWARD (1917), 116 L. In 1917 pltfs. sued to recover the amount then due on the overdraft. Deft. pleaded that the deed was a " mtge." within above Act, sect. 1, sub-sect. 4, & that the action was not maintainable :—Held : this was an " equitable charge " within above Act, sect. 2, sub-sect. 4 (b), & the action was maintainable.—LONDON COUNTY & WESTMINSTER BANK v. TOMPKINS, [1918] 1 K. In June, 1914, notice was given for repayment on Sept. 29, 1914. Part of the principal was paid off, but it was arranged that the remainder should remain unpaid, & that the interest should be increased to 6 per cent. The mtges. came within the scope of Increase of Rent & Mortgage Interest (War Restrictions) Act, 1915 (c. 97), & it was agreed that the increase was valid during the operation of that statute. After the passing of Increase of Rent & Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920 (c. 17), the mtgor. objected to continue to pay interest at the rate of 6 per cent., but was willing to pay 5 per cent. from July, 1920, to July, 1921, & 5½ per cent. afterwards. The mtgee. issued a summons for foreclosure :—Held : as the Act of 1915 was repealed by sect. 19 (3) of the Act of 1920, the mtgee. was only entitled to such increases on the standard rate of 4½ per cent. as were sanctioned by sect. 4 of the Act of 1920, & as the mtgor. had paid, or offered to pay, the full rate of interest permitted under the Act of 1920 the summons must be dismissed.—HOLLANDS v. COOPER (1921), 91 L. I call it an unlucky dictum, because he did not think of the common law, which says that a man may take any name (JESSEL, M.R.).—LEVY v. WALKER (1879), 10 Ch. D. 436; 48 L. J. Ch. 273; 27 W. 18. —— Where no fraud intended.]—Where an estate is devised on condition of the devisee's changing his name, it is sufficient if he changes it within a reasonable time & it is not necessary that he should apply for the royal sign manual.

There is no necessity for any application for a royal sign manual to change the name. It is a mode which persons often have recourse to, because it gives a greater sanction to it, & makes it more notorious; but a man may, if he pleases, & it is not for any fraudulent purpose, take a name & work his way in the world with his new name as well as he can (TINDAL, C.J.).—DAVIES v. LOWNDES (1835), 1 Bing. —— —— Forgery.]—See CRIMINAL LAW, Vol. XV., pp. 1045–1049, Nos. 11,775–11,834.

20. —— —— Or pecuniary loss inflicted.]—Where the marriage of a commoner with a peer of the realm has been dissolved by decree at the instance of the wife, & she afterwards, on marrying a commoner, continues to use the title she acquired by her first marriage, she does not thereby, though having no legal right to the user, commit such a legal wrong against her former husband, or so affect his enjoyment of the incorporeal hereditament he possesses in his title, as to entitle him, in the absence of malice, to an injunction to restrain her use of the title.

Speaking generally, the law of this country allows any person to assume & use any name, provided its use is not calculated to deceive & to inflict pecuniary loss. . . . LORD CHELMSFORD in Du Boulay v. Du Boulay, No. 15, ante, stated that "in this country we do not recognise the absolute right of a person to a particular name to the extent of entitling him to prevent the assumption of that name by a stranger." Then, after alluding to trade names, the judgment continues: "The mere assumption of a name which is the patronymic of a family by a stranger who has never before been called by that name, whatever cause of annoyance it may be to a family, is a grievance for which our law affords no redress." If this is true of strangers, it is a fortiori true of persons who have once acquired the right to use a name which the usages of society allow them to retain (LORD LINDLEY).—COWLEY (EARL) v. COWLEY (COUNTESS), [1901] A. In point of law a man cannot change his Christian name, without prejudice to the question, whether he can do so at his confirmation. With regard to surnames, however, the law is different, they can be changed in various ways, as, for instance, by royal licence, a person can also change his name by use & reputation. If a man has a name which displeases him, there is nothing in law to prevent his changing it to any other he likes better, provided he can get the public to adopt & use the name he prefers (WILLES, J.).—R. v. SMITH (1865), 4 F. & F. 1099.

Pltf. was his first son & the first tenant in tail of the real estate under the will. After he had attained twenty-one he executed a disentailing deed of the real estate & limited it to himself in fee simple. He then claimed to be indefeasibly entitled in possession to the personal estate:—Held: (1) the forfeiture clause relating to the personal estate was valid, & the effect of it was to make the interest of the tenant in tail, in case it should be forfeited, go over to the person who would have been entitled to the real estate under the limitations of the will in case the tenant in tail had been dead without issue, & no disentailing deed had been executed; (2) pltf. was not indefeasibly entitled to the personal estate; but that his interest was liable to forfeiture in case within the period of twenty-one years he should discontinue to use the name & arms of C.—Re CORNWALLIS, CORNWALLIS v. WYKEHAM-MARTIN (1886), 32 Ch. D. 388; 55 L. J. Ch. 716; 54 L. T. 844.

62. ——.]—Where a will requires that a person shall within a specified time after becoming entitled under the limitations of the will take & use a certain surname, & there is a condition of forfeiture if such person shall "refuse or neglect to take or use such surname as aforesaid & in manner aforesaid," a continued use of the surname after the period is to be implied.

Although such clause requires the surname to be used "in deeds & documents & on all other occasions," it imposes no obligation except on occasions when a surname is commonly used. There is no forfeiture for signing a family letter with a Christian name alone, nor, in the case of a peeress, for signing an ordinary business letter with the Christian name & title, or using these latter on her visiting-cards.—Re DRAX, DUNSANY v. SAWBRIDGE (1906), 75 L. 63. Effect of non-compliance—Ignorance of clause.]—The terms "forfeiture" & "breach of condition" used in Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), ss. 3, 4, are to be read in the largest sense, & extend to forfeitures which operate to accelerate an estate under a conditional limitation, as well as to forfeitures of which the heir-at-law only can take advantage. Ignorance of a condition annexed to a gift by will does not protect the devisee or legatee from the consequences of not complying with the condition. An estate was devised in strict settlement, subject to a clause directing that every person who should become entitled in possession under the will should, on becoming so entitled, assume testator's name & arms; & it was provided, that in case any such person should fail or neglect so to do for twelve calendar months, after he should become so entitled in possession, his estate & interest should cease & the estate should go to the person who should be next in remainder & then in esse, as if the person so failing or neglecting were then dead. A tenant in tail, who did not comply with the clause, remained in possession of the estate for more than twenty years. At his death the next remainderman was in India, & being ignorant of his rights under the will, did not comply with the clause:—Held: (1) the tenant in tail had not acquired a title by adverse possession, but on his death, by virtue of Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (c. 27), s. 4, the remainderman became entitled to the estate; (2) the remainderman's estate was forfeited by reason of his non-compliance with the name & arms clause.—ASTLEY v. ESSEX (EARL) (1874), L. 64. —— ——.]—Testator who died in 1858 by his will devised & bequeathed real & personal estate to persons in succession in strict settlement, & directed that every person who should become entitled thereto should take & use the surname & arms of D., & that if any such person so becoming entitled should refuse or neglect to take & use such surname & arms within three months of becoming so entitled, the limitations to him should cease determine & be utterly void, & the estate should go & devolve to the person or persons next entitled in remainder, in the same manner as if the person whose estate should so cease & determine were dead.

Upon the death of a tenant for life without issue in 1923, a period of over a year elapsed before the next tenant in tail could be discovered. Eventually it was found that he was living in Canada, & had never heard of the terms or existence of testator's will:—Held: being ignorant of the condition he could not be said either to have "refused" or "neglected" to comply with it. The expression "refuse or neglect" is not equivalent to "fail" or "omit," as it implies a conscious act of volition. The tenant in tail therefore had not forfeited the estate.—Re QUINTIN DICK, CLONCURRY (LORD) v. FENTON, [1926] Ch. 992; 42 T. L. R. 681; 70 Sol. Jo. 876.

65. —— Gift absolute.]—Testatrix, who died in 1832, settled her freehold estate upon her grandchildren, a share becoming vested in one of them, Lucy, in fee simple in possession; & the will contained a proviso that any person becoming entitled in possession to the estate, should within one year thereafter, take & use the name of "Jones," & that in case any such person should refuse or neglect to use the name of Jones within one year, then the estate limited to him or her should be void, & should first go to her niece, Catherine Jones, since deceased, for her life, & after her decease to the person or persons next in remainder under the trusts of the will, in the same manner as if the person so refusing were dead. Lucy was twice married, & neither she nor either of her husbands ever took the name of Jones:—Held: the gift being in fee simple, & there being necessarily no person entitled in remainder, the name clause was void, & that there had consequently been no forfeiture by Lucy.—MUSGRAVE v. BROOKE (1884), 26 Ch. D. 792; sub nom. Re BROOKE, MUSGRAVE v. BROOKE, 54 L. J. Ch. 102; 33 W. R. 211.

66. —— Only heir can take advantage of omission—Effect upon making title to property.]—After devising a freehold estate to trustees & giving his daughter & granddaughter & her husband successive equitable life interests therein, with remainder to the use of the granddaughter's first & other sons in tail male, with divers remainders over, testator provided & declared that every person becoming entitled to the estate as tenant for life or tenant in tail in possession, & the husband of every such person if female & married, should within twelve calendar months of becoming entitled in possession assume testator's surname & arms. There was no provision for continued user of the name & arms & no gift over on non-compliance with the proviso. Neither testator's daughter or granddaughter, both of whom succeeded to the estate, nor the husband of either, assumed his name & arms in compliance with the proviso. Objection to title was taken on a sale by the granddaughter under the powers of the Settled Land Acts, on the ground that she was not, & had not the powers of, a tenant for life, her estate, as the purchasers alleged, having ceased by reason of her non-compliance:—Held: the vendor could make good title, for even if the expression of testator's desire contained a condition it would be a common law condition of which testator's heir alone could take advantage by entry, which he had not done, nor was there anything in the will to show that it was the intention of testator that the estate should go over on non-compliance with his desire, so as by necessary implication to convert the expression of that desire into a conditional limitation.—Re EVANS'S CONTRACT, [1920] 2 Ch. 469; 89 L. 68. —— —— ——.]—Devise to the heir at law in tail, with a proviso for taking testator's name, is not a conditional limitation.

This is not a condition precedent. It cannot be complied with instantly. It is "to take the name for themselves & their heirs." Now many acts are to be done, in order to oblige the heirs to take it; such as a grant from the King; or, an Act of Parliament. It is not, therefore, a condition precedent; but being penned as a condition, it must be a condition subsequent. It cannot be a limitation; for, the next proviso, against waste, shows that testator knew how to limit over, when he thought proper to do so, & in that case, he did think it proper to do it; & therefore that proviso is turned into a limitation (LORD MANSFIELD).—GULLIVER d. R. for life, with remainder to his sons successively in tail male, with remainder to his daughters as tenants in common in tail male, with cross remainders in tail male; & the proviso to be inserted in the settlement, as to taking the name & arms, & for giving over the estates on default, ought to be so expressed, as to take away the estates from the defaulting party, & his descendants only: that is, if a grandson of G. 71. —— —— ——.]—Testator was, under a deed of resettlement of his family estates, entitled to a reversion in fee, subject to an estate for life in his only son, who was a bachelor, & to remainders in tail to the first & other sons of that son. Testator soon afterwards devised all his real estates to his eldest daughter for her life, with remainder to her first & other sons in tail, with remainders to his other daughters for life & to their sons in like manner. The will contained a name & arms clause determining the estate of any person who should become "entitled to the possession or to the receipt of the rents & profits" of the estates, & not assume the family name & arms within a year after becoming so entitled. In several other parts of the will provisions were made respecting persons who, by virtue of the will, should be in the "actual possession" of the property or "entitled to the rents & profits thereof." The son died without issue two years after testator, & the first tenant for life under the will assumed the name & arms of H. within a year after her brother's death:—Held: there was no forfeiture, either as to the family estates, or as to property to which testator had become entitled in fee simple in possession after the date of the will.—LANGDALE (LADY) v. BRIGGS (1856), 8 De G. 73. —— —— ——.]—Testator devised & bequeathed real & personal estate to trustees upon trust to pay the income to his wife during her life, & after her decease, if H. was then living, to retain the rents of realty to their own use during his life, & to pay him the income of the personalty during his life, & after his death upon trust to convey & transfer the real & personal estate to such son of M. as should first attain the age of twenty-five years, upon condition that such son of M. as should become entitled to any property under the will should, within two years after he should so become entitled, take the name & arms of testator. At testator's decease M. was living & had no son who had attained twenty-five, but his eldest son attained that age during the lives of the widow & H. This son died in the lifetime of H. without having taken the name & arms of testator:—Held: although the limitation of the personal estate to the first son of M. who should attain the age of twenty-five was void for remoteness, the direction to convey the real estate to him gave him a contingent remainder which was not void for remoteness, although his estate was only equitable, the doctrine of contingent remainders being applicable to equitable as well as to legal estates; he was not bound to take the name & arms of testator until his estate came into possession, & the real estate devolved upon his heir.—ABBISS v. BURNEY, Re FINCH (1880), 17 Ch. 74. —— —— ——.]—Testator devised an estate to trustees on trust to allow his widow to reside in the mansion house during widowhood, rent free, with use of the furniture, plate, & stores, & subject thereto for his nephew, C., for life, with remainder to his issue in tail, with remainder for certain other nephews in tail male. Declaration that every person who, under those limitations, should become entitled as tenant for life or in tail male to the actual possession or receipt of the rents & profits of the estate should, within one year after becoming so entitled, take the name of V., & in case of neglect the limitations in his favour should determine, & the estate go to the person next in remainder as if the person so neglecting being tenant for life were dead, or being tenant in tail male were dead & there were a general failure of his issue inheritable thereunder; but such determination, in case of a tenant for life, was not to prejudice his issue, but the estate should remain in the trustees during his life, who should pay the rents to the person entitled to the next vested estate in remainder. Testator died in 1875. C., the tenant for life, died in 1889 without issue, & without having taken the name of V. T., the next tenant in tail, was now living & unmarried, but had not taken the name. R., the next tenant in tail, took the name of V. in 1891. Owing to a charge on the estate there had not been any profits therefrom for the persons entitled under the limitations in the will. The widow was still living:—Held: although the widow was entitled to occupy part of the estate rent free, she was not thereby tenant for life, & although there had not been any profits, C. had become on testator's death entitled to the actual possession or receipt of the rents & profits within the meaning of the will; C. had forfeited his interest in 1876 by not taking the name of V., but C. being tenant for life only, time did not run against T. until C.'s death in 1889; T. having failed to take the name of V. his interest was forfeited in 1890, & R., having taken the name within one year from T.'s forfeiture, was now tenant in tail of the estate.—Re VARLEY, THORNTON v. VARLEY (1893), 62 L. Testator's daughter & N. both survived testator, but his wife was dead. The daughter, who was now in her fifty-ninth year, was married, but had had no children. N. died in her lifetime intestate, without having taken testator's name:—Held: upon the construction of the will the condition requiring N. to take & use testator's name was a condition subsequent, that is, a condition to operate only upon N. becoming entitled to the possession of the estate by the death of the daughter without children, & not before; & as he had been prevented from performing it by the act of God, the estate would, on the death of the daughter without children, vest absolutely in his legal personal representative freed from the condition.—Re GREENWOOD, GOODHART v. WOODHEAD, [1903] 1 Ch. 749; 72 L. 78. —— —— Clause void.] — Testator, by codicil, after appointing two persons trustees, as also their heirs & assigns, to his will & codicil, desired that his sister A. should do what she pleased with his remaining property after payment of certain legacies, excepting a tenement at W., & a sum of stock, of which she should only receive the interest & rent during her natural life, & afterwards to his sister's eldest son, on his taking the name of M. ; but should he refuse to take the name of M., or his sister A. depart this life without a son, then the tenement at W. & stock should go to P., on his taking the name of M., & so on to his heirs, each taking the name of M., none of them being allowed to touch the principal, & no one should, after his sister A., inherit the said property or enjoy the interest who did not take or possess the name of M. :—Held : the trustees took an estate in fee by virtue of their appointment, & A. was entitled to an estate for life in the tenement & stock, with a remainder in fee in the tenement, & an absolute interest in stock to the first born of A. vested on his birth & baptism by the name of M.

The ct. will not necessarily hold a condition as to name & arms a condition subsequent, although it inclines to hold it so.

On the supposition that the shifting clause is valid, it has been contended, on the part of defts., that, in point of fact, the condition has been performed, inasmuch as the eldest son was baptised M. On the other hand, it is contended that that is not a compliance with the condition, because testator intended that the name M. must be taken as a surname. Now I do not see that that is to be concluded from the language of the codicil. Testator has, in the latter part, spoken of " taking or possessing " the name of M. ; & there is no gift to any family or individual bearing the surname of M. Moreover, this being a shifting clause, it must be construed strictly ; & when testator speaks of taking the name of M., without saying as a surname, it appears to me that the ct. cannot import such a requisition, & that the person who has taken the name, whether as a Christian name or as a surname, has complied with the condition imposed by testator.

The effect on the whole of the view I have taken of the case, & which, I think, presents less difficulty than any other, is this, that testator has expressed the intention, with regard to the realty, to give an estate for life to A., with remainder in fee to her first born son, to vest immediately on his coming into esse ; & that he intended to create a shifting clause in the event of such eldest son not taking the name of M., but without prescribing any time within which he must perform the condition ; for which reason the clause is void, & that, even if not void, the condition has been fulfilled, & I see no reason for coming to a different conclusion as to the personalty (KINDERSLEY, V.-C.).—BENNETT v. BENNETT (1864), 2 Drew. & Sm. 266 ; 34 L. There were other limitations over to other persons. The will then contained a proviso, that when any of the premises thereby devised should vest in any person not bearing the surname of Luscombe, that person should, as soon as he should be in possession of the estate, take upon himself the name of Luscombe, & use the same as for & instead of his own surname, & should, within three years then next after, procure his own name to be altered to testator's surname of Luscombe by Act of Parliament, or some other effectual way for that purpose, & in case any of the persons to whom the estate was limited, & who should be in possession of the same, should not take & use testator's surname, but should neglect to get an Act of Parliament, or some other authority as effectual for that purpose as aforesaid, for the space of three years next after he should be in possession, then the estate devised for the benefit of such person so neglecting to get such Act of Parliament, or other authority, should cease, & become void, as if no such use or estate had been thereby devised ; & the same should immediately, upon the expiration of the three years, go over to & vest in the person next in remainder or reversion, in the same manner as if such person so neglecting to change his surname was dead without issue, upon this express condition, that such person so to take did & should also take testator's surname, & get an Act of Parliament, or some other authority as effectual for that purpose, otherwise the estate was to go over again. J. L. Manning, before he came of age, or entered into possession of the premises demised, took upon himself, used, & bore the surname of Luscombe & no other. But no Act of Parliament had ever been obtained authorising him to change his name, nor was the King's licence for that purpose obtained within three years after he so entered into possession :—Held : inasmuch as he bore the surname of Luscombe at the time when the estate came to him, he had substantially complied with the directions of testator, & he did not incur a forfeiture of that estate by not obtaining an Act of Parliament, or other authority, the proviso

A name assumed by the voluntary act of a young man at his outset into life, adopted by all who know him, & by which he is constantly called, becomes, for all purposes that occur to my mind, as much & effectually his name as if he had obtained an Act of Parliament to confer it upon him (ABBOTT, C.J.).—DOE d. Part II.—Arms.

91. Assumption of arms—Jurisdiction of Court of Chivalry.]—The Ct. of Chivalry takes cognisance of questions relating to the right to use armorial ensigns & bearings.—SCROOP v. GROSVENOR (1389), Calendar of Close Rolls, Richard II., Vol. III., p. 586.

92. —— Method of assumption.]—A name & arms clause contained a proviso that in case the devisee should "refuse or neglect within one year to take, use, & bear the surname" of A., or should at any time afterwards "discontinue to use & bear such surname or arms," then, & in every such case, immediately after the expiration of a year, or immediately after such discontinuance, the devise should determine & become void. The devisee assumed the surname, & also used his best endeavours to comply with the direction as to the arms, but failed to obtain a grant from the Heralds' College of the right to use the identical arms used by A.:—Held: (1) the estate of the devisee had not been divested by the failure to obtain a grant of the identical arms used by A.

(2) Semble: a name & arms clause requires a taking of arms by a proper grant from a proper authority, namely the College of Arms, & is not satisfied by a mere voluntary assumption of a coat of arms.—AUSTEN v. COLLINS (1886), 54 L. T. 903.

Annotations:—As to (2) Reld. Re Croxon, Croxon v. Ferrers (1904), 48 Sol. Jo. 191. Generally, Mentd. Russian Commercial & Industrial Bank v. British Bank for Foreign Trade, [1921] 2 A. C. 438.

93. —— ——.]—A person cannot "lawfully assume" a coat of arms by mere user, or otherwise than by obtaining a grant of the arms in one or other of the ways recognised by the custom & usages of society with regard to arms—viz., by an Act of Parliament, a grant from the College of Heralds, or a Royal Licence.

Testator directed that every person becoming entitled under his will to his settled real estates should in certain events "lawfully assume" a coat of arms used by testator, but being in fact the arms of a certain ancient family with which testator could not be proved to be connected, & in default should, in effect, forfeit his estate. Upon evidence being given as to the impossibility of obtaining a grant of the arms from the Heralds' College to pltf., who was devisee of the settled estates:—Held: the direction in the will was void as a condition subsequent which was impossible of performance, & pltf.'s estate was not forfeited.—Re CROXON, CROXON v. FERRERS, [1904] 1 Ch. 252; 73 L. J. Ch. 170; 89 L. T. 733; 52 W. R. 343; 48 Sol. Jo. 191.

94. —— ——.]—Pltf., George Berens, in 1915 became tenant for life in possession of Pull Court under the will of W. Dowdeswell, which declared that unless within twelve months pltf. assumed & used under the sanction of an Act of Parliament or licence from the Crown the surname & arms of Dowdeswell his estate should cease & the subsequent limitations be accelerated. The arms which testator in fact used belonged to another family of the name of Dowdeswell. Pltf. obtained by patent a grant of the right to use the name of Dowdeswell after his own name of Berens & to bear the Dowdeswell arms with certain variations.

In 1924 pltf. became tenant for life in possession of the S. estate under the will of H. Berens, which provided that every person so becoming entitled who should not bear the surname & arms of Berens must within a stated period "bear & use exclusively the surname & arms of Berens," on the non-performance of which condition the will provided for the defeasance of the estate.

By the Berens arms testator meant a coat of arms used by his family for many years, but never granted or confirmed or recorded in the College of Arms, matriculated in the Lyon Register in Scotland, or confirmed in the Register of Arms in Ireland:—Held: (1) pltf. did not bear the surname of Berens but the composite name of Berens-Dowdeswell; (2) the obligation to assume the Berens arms would not be satisfied by a mere de facto user, but only by the authority of a royal licence through the College, & pltf., not having proved that he could not obtain a licence, was bound by the clause in the Berens will; (3) as regards the Dowdeswell will, as the College would refuse to grant the Dowdeswell arms, as having already been allowed to others, the Ct. would assume that Parliament would not authorise their assumption in violation of the rights of third parties & of the laws of arms; & therefore the condition requiring pltf. to assume those arms under the sanction of an Act or licence from the Crown was impossible & not binding.

The argument is that in so far as the name & arms clause requires him to bear the surname of Berens he bears it, & in so far as it requires him to assume & bear the Berens arms it requires an impossibility. As regards the first point, in my opinion he does not bear the surname of Berens. His surname is Berens-Dowdeswell; one composite name of which no doubt the word Berens forms part; but the surname which he bears is not Berens; it is Berens-Dowdeswell, & nothing else. The point is not susceptible of lengthy argument: but certain authorities were cited, none of which appear to me to be of real assistance in the matter. They seem to show that in the absence of special words, you will not comply with a requirement to take & use a particular surname by placing the required name in front of your existing surname, though special words in the clause may authorise this being done (RUSSELL, J.).—Re BERENS, Re DOWDESWELL, BERENS-DOWDESWELL v. HOLLAND-MARTIN, [1926] Ch. 596; 95 L. He died without issue, leaving two nephews, the sons of his brother: —Held: the nephews had not such an exclusive interest in the exemplification or instrument issued to A. by the College as to entitle them to maintain an action of detinue against his widow, who retained possession of it & to whom all the household effects were bequeathed.—STUBS v. STUBS (1862), 1 H. & C. 257; 31 L.
